Rejection of Offer May Mean Allied Arms, Latin American Food, Oil for Embattled Finns.

LONDON—Six British ships added to list of Allied vessels lost in war; Greek steamer reported sunk by submarine.

GENEVA—League of Nations gives Russia 24 hours to end Finnish war and submit to league mediation.

PARIS—German raids, repulsed with hand grenades, reported on western front.

HELSINKI—Russian troops reach points from 40 to 60 miles within Finland in heavy fighting; Finns say heavy losses inflicted on Red army; three companies wiped out in surprise attack.

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ JR.

GENEVA, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The League of Nations tonight gave Soviet Russia a "last chance" offer of 24 hours to halt her war on Finland and submit the dispute to League mediation.

What action the League might take if Russia refused to mediate still was uncertain, but it appeared rejection of the offer would mean Allied arms and munitions and Latin-American food and oil for the embattled Finns.

Send Reds Telegrams.

Following the call of the Finnish delegate, Rudolf Holsti, for "all practical support possible," a League committee on the Russian-Finnish question sent the Russian government a telegram of four points, informing it:

1—That the council had sent Finland's appeal for League action in the dispute to the assembly.

2—That the assembly invites both Finland and Russia to suspend hostilities and begin peace negotiations under League mediation.

3—That Finland immediately accepted mediation by the League.

4—That Moscow's reply was expected within 24 hours.

At Great Britain's suggestion, the committee decided it must have "no illusions" on the Russian reply, despite Soviet reports in Geneva that there was a 50-50 chance Moscow would accept.

To Meet Today.

The committee, therefore, is to meet again tomorrow to continue drafting its report to the assembly based on the Finns' demand for all the material help League members can give. Jose Caero da Matta, Portuguese delegate, is chairman of the committee.

During the day's negotiations it became apparent that Great Britain was assuming leadership in the League.

British sources went so far as to say that if Moscow refused to cease hostilities and accept League mediation, the British - French

"Scarlett" drives pluckily on toward Tara! The flight of the "Gone With the Wind" heroine from Atlanta with Melanie, Wade, Prissy and the infant Beau was re-enacted yesterday for newsreels under arrangement of The Constitution and the Jonesboro chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy. It occasioned, officials said, "the biggest day in Jonesboro's history." The characters are seen munching apples "Scarlett," in the story, found under a tree.

Scarlett, Horse Flee From City--in Truck

But Picturesque Company of Refugees Enters Jonesboro in World's Creakiest Wagon as Part of 'Biggest Day in Town's History.'

By WILLARD COPE.

Scarlett and her picturesque company of "Gone With the Wind" refugees—Melanie, Wade, Prissy and the infant Beau—rattled and jerked into Jonesboro early yesterday afternoon aboard the world's creakiest wagon, drawn by the world's boniest horse, with a cow tethered behind, as the climax to what the town's leaders termed "the biggest day in Jonesboro history," brought about by The Constitution.

Staging of the perilous wartime flight from Atlanta, arranged by this newspaper, with Mrs. W. G. Travis and Mrs. C. B. Lyle of the Jonesboro chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, was declared a complete success by Mayor Hugh Dickson, principal citizens and even by the M-G-M camera and sound men and the ample corps of volunteer advisors who went along for the ride.

Brought to Center.

"It has certainly brought Jonesboro and Clayton county directly into the center of the "Gone With the Wind" festivities in a way we had never expected," Mrs. Travis said. Both this town and county are strictly 'Gone With the Wind' terrain, and we are extremely grateful to The Constitution for what has been done."

NRLB HOUSE PROBE SHOWS DISSENSION

Newest Board Member, Leiserson, Regards Secretary as 'Incompetent.'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(UP) The special house committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board opened its long-awaited inquiry today with testimony by Dr. William M. Leiserson, newest board member, who waxed saltily critical of some of his colleagues but defended the record of the NLRB as a whole.

The committee's initial session was devoted chiefly to the examination of letters and notes written by Leiserson and other members of the NLRB hierarchy, showing dissension within the board itself and a charge by one woman regional director that methods like those of the Soviet OGPU had been employed in an investigation of her office.

Dubinsky's Attitude Told.

A third point brought out was the dissatisfaction of David Dubinsky, leader of the Independent International Ladies Garment Workers Union, over an unfavorable board decision and the appointment of Leiserson to the board by President Roosevelt.

During the course of the hearing committee counsel Edmund Toland, presented document after document to develop that:

1. Leiserson regards NLRB Secretary Nathan Witt as incompe-

POLICE TO GUARD FILM CELEBRITIES

Fear Atlantans Will Rip Clothes From Backs; Door Watch Is Set.

By LEE ROGERS.

When the celebrities are around, the policemen get all the breaks.

Latest announcement from the jumpy-nerved "Gone With the Wind" headquarters is that 20 of Atlanta's finest policemen will be assigned to guard the entrance to the stars' hotel rooms.

They'll be the personal protectors of Vivien Leigh, Olivia De Havilland, Carole Lombard and the male stars, Clark Gable, Lawrence Olivier and others, too. Right where they can see and speak to real live movie stars.

A Soft Assignment.

And the general impression has gotten around that the life of a policeman is tough. It certainly sounds soft to the hero worshipers.

It's beginning to look like the only people who'll really get to see and talk to Miss Leigh, Gable and the others will be these boys in blue (with or without brass buttons).

J. E. JAMES DIES IN SUICIDE PLUNGE FROM CITY HALL

Ex-Newspaper Employe Falls 10 Stories; Other Attempt by Gas Fumes, Is Recalled by Police.

Jesse Edward James, 42-year-old former newspaper employe, yesterday took his life when he dived from a window in a stairway well between the 13th and 14th floors of the Atlanta city hall to a court in the rear of the building, a fall of 10 stories.

About a week ago, he attempted to kill himself on a lonely DeKalb county road by asphyxiation with carbon monoxide gas from his automobile, according to DeKalb county police officers, who at the time rushed him to Emory University hospital.

A jury impaneled by Coroner Paul Donehoo late yesterday afternoon returned the following verdict:

"The deceased came to his death from a fracture to his spine and multiple other injuries when the deceased, with suicidal intent, jumped from a window on a staircase landing between the 13th and 14th floors to a court at the city hall."

Spectators Gather.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

James' spectacular plunge occurred just before noon, and within a few minutes the news of the suicide spread so rapidly that police were forced to lock doors leading from the second floor of the building to the court to prevent spectators interrupting the investigation.

The court extends between the city council chamber, and the press room and waterworks billing departments on the side opposite the council chamber.

Reporters were in the press room when they heard the thud of James' body as he crashed on the court within ten feet of where the newsmen sat.

DeKalb County Police Officers R. V. Anderson and C. M. Cloud said yesterday they found James in a car about 50 feet off Lavista road on the night of December 7.

The doors of the automobile were closed and newspaper were stuffed in the cracks. A hose ran from the engine exhaust back into the car and the engine was running, they said. When he was discovered, he was unconscious, but was revived at Emory hospital and was discharged.

After a preliminary examination yesterday, Donehoo ordered the body removed to Spring Hill, where an inquest was held. There was no eyewitness to James' plunge.

He had been employed until recently by The Atlanta Constitution's circulation department.

Leaves a Note.

L. Glenn Dewberry, superintendent of the city hall, found an overcoat on the landing from which it was believed James jumped. In one of the pockets was a note directing that it be return-

Dr. Robert B. Taft, of Charleston, S. C., tests the new radium-detecting apparatus with which he will attempt to find valuable radium which is believed to be lost either in Atlanta's network of underground sewers or at the Clayton disposal plant. The radium is valued at $1,200. Dr. Taft is a delegate to the annual convention of the Radiological Society of North America.

Let 10 Opportunities Make Yule Happier

Enjoy Holiday Spirit More by Giving to City's Neediest.

By FRANK DRAKE.

This is the time of the year, Atlantans, when the spirit of giving and helping others is in the air. The scheduled visit of old Kris Kringle is only a few days away and the gaiety of the holiday season daily is gathering momentum. People everywhere are planning a big celebration this Christmas and the stores are doing a whopping business.

That means happiness will prevail. Joy will be unconfined. Mothers and fathers will laugh jovially to see all the children having such a good time with new toys and presents. The kids will be so excited Christmas morning they won't know what to do.

Another Picture.

But what about the others? What about the neediest families in the city which the Ten Opportunity fund is trying to help? What's to become of them next year when it's cold and they haven't money or jobs and are under great handicaps?

Now is the time, Atlantans, for you to come forward and say that they will be helped over the bumps. Say now that you are willing to give a little this Christmas to provide a few dollars each month next year to struggling families fighting hard to win independence and keep off the relief rolls. (You have to foot the bill

'Opportunity 3' A Brave Woman

The Ten Opportunity story today might well have appeared in these columns five years ago had it not been for the courage of a young mother and her heartfelt desire to keep her little family together.

For, five years ago, Mrs. F.'s husband died after a long illness during which all the family savings had been expended and all resources exhausted. Many a mother of three children would have needed outside help but not Mrs. F.

Earned a Little.

She got a job in a dress shop, earning a little, to support herself and Mary and Susan and Baby Betty. Today, at 33, Mrs. F. has an even greater problem than the one she successfully overcame five years ago.

Her children are now 10, 8 and 6 years old, respectively, and all of them are in school. Mrs. F. since her husband died has kept those children in a happy home, mother and daughters together. But today, they face separation.

Serious Operation.

Recently Mrs. F. had to undergo a very serious operation. It left her weak and unable to stand long on her feet. That, however, is only a part of it. The company for which she had worked for five years obtained a new employe to take Mrs. F.'s place when she went to the hospital and only a few weeks ago notified Mrs. F.

65,000 Cleveland Needy To Get Full Relief Friday

CLEVELAND, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Cleveland's 65,000 needy, on short rations for 26 days, will be restored to "full relief" Friday, the city announced today.

Mayor Harold H. Burton said city council authorization of $1,050,000 in tax delinquency notes, and increased WPA activity would allow the restoration.

The situation here and in Toledo—where the city council adopted today an ordinance to provide an additional $273,000 for poor relief and WPA sponsoring funds—had provoked a federal-state dispute with numerous political implications.

Republican Governor John W. Bricker, who refused cities' pleas for a special session of the state legislature, observed today that "all blasts against us" have come from New Dealers. He referred to criticism of his relief policies from President Roosevelt, Secretary Ickes and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, of New York.

The President approved today expenditure of $1,248,991 for three Cleveland area WPA projects. These and projects previously authorized will provide more than 14,000 persons with six months' employment, the Federal Works Administration estimated, but will not raise this county's December quota of 37,000 workers.

Burton asserted the notes "could not have been authorized by the

Cox Files Application To Buy Station WSB

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Communications Commission announced today receipt of an application for authority to transfer control of Stations WSB and WEGG, Atlanta, Ga., now licensed to the Atlanta Journal Company, to James M. Cox, Springfield Newspapers, Inc., and the Evening News Publishing Company.

The application said ownership of the present licensee corporation was vested in James R. Gray, Inman Gray, Mrs. James R. Gray, Cordelia Gray Brumby, Frances Gray Yankey, Mary Inman, Pearce Smylie, Jennie Gray Pearce, John A. Brice, and John Morton Smith.

WSB is the Journal's 50,000-watt station and WEGG is a portable relay unit used by WSB.

YEAR-LONG SEARCH FOR THE PRECIOUS VIALS HAS FAILED

Sleuth of Science Will Take His Apparatus to Sewage Disposal Plant for Dramatic Check.

By LUKE GREENE.

Where all other methods have failed, one of the latest developments of modern science will be called into play this week in an effort to solve the deep mystery of Atlanta's lost vial of precious radium, which disappeared down the drain of Emory University hospital last summer and has since been the object of a frantic week-by-week search.

Dr. Robert B. Taft, of Charleston, S. C., who is attending the annual convention of the Radiological Society of North America in Atlanta, said yesterday he would take his newly-improved radium detector to the sewage disposal plant and make an intensive search for the $1,200 treasure that escaped the hospital and has brought no end of worry to hospital authorities.

Death Dealing.

Ever since the radium was lost officials have worried with the fear that if anyone found it or came in contact with it without knowing what it was he might be burned to death or seriously injured.

The scarcity of radium and its importance in the treatment of cancer make the loss of one milligram almost a catastrophe. The amount lost from Emory hospital was 40 milligrams, valued at $30 per milligram.

A Faint Hope.

Although the whereabouts of the two tubes containing the valuable radium is still as much a mystery as ever, Dr. Taft says there is a faint possibility they have found their way to the disposal plant and lie imbedded in the mass of waste accumulated there, and only science can find it.

V. P. Enloe, superintendent of the Clayton plant, said effort to find the radium had been made almost every week since it disappeared last summer and added that the entire sewer line from the hospital to the plant had been thoroughly checked. There are more than 225 manholes in this line.

Only 20 Minutes Needed.

Dr. Taft said he had not decided what day he would take his detector to the disposal plant, but declared that since he would be in Atlanta the greater part of the week he was going to make a final effort to reclaim the treasure.

"I assure you that if the radium is at the plant I will find it in 20 minutes' time," Dr. Taft said. "I don't have a great deal of hope that I will find it, but I am going to try."

The doctor pointed out that radium cannot be destroyed, but that if it has scattered there is little possibility of its being found. He said there was still a chance

Southern Governors Will Press Advantage Won in I. C. C. Ruling

Steps to press the advantage recently won by the south in its fight for freight rate parity will be taken at a meeting of the Southern Governors and Public Service Commissioners at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning at the Ansley hotel, Walter R. McDonald, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission, announced yesterday.

Governor Rivers, chairman of the Southern Governors' conference, will preside. Governor Rivers is slated to be named coordinator of the cases of the southeastern and southwestern territories in a move to present the case of the south as a whole.

A division of opinion as to whether the cases of the southeast and the southwest should be presented as a whole was ironed out at a recent meeting in Asheville, and the result was a movement to name Governor Rivers coordinator of the two territries.

Leaders of the fight for southeern rate parity say they have been heartened immensely by the victory already won before the Interstate Commerce Commission and have been inspired to speed up their efforts in order to take advantage of this opening wedge, McDonald said.

100 PERSONS HURT IN RIOTING IN INDIA

High Prices Blamed for Fight Which Turned Into Religious Brawl.

JUBBLUPORE, India, Dec. 11.—(AP)—One hundred persons were injured today in rioting in which police opened fire to disperse a mob after it had set fire to several shops in the marketplace.

Four platoons of British troops were called out and posted in the city after the riots.

The disturbance started with a protest against alleged profiteering by merchants. It soon turned into rioting between religious factions.

GIRL GROUPS' LEADERS MEET AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt brought National Girl Scout and Campfire Girl officials together at the White House today to discuss the possibilities of closer cooperation between the two organizations.

No action was taken at the informal luncheon, but one official said afterwards that further conferences would be held.

18 KILLED, 20 INJURED IN GERMAN COLLISION

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Eighteen persons were killed yesterday when a passenger train struck a bus near Linz. Twenty others were injured.

The wreck was the sixth in a series of serious railroad accidents which have occurred recently.

A note in a pocket of James' suit directed: "In case of accident, please notify Allen C. James at Walnut 8051, or Peggy Markham at Walnut 6070."

It was nearly an hour before identification was definitely made by Mrs. Markham, James' sister. Glancing quickly at James' clothing, she said it was her brother, adding: "I knew this morning something like this was going to happen."

In addition to the brother and sister, James is survived by his mother, Mrs. J. L. James, of 501 Greenwood avenue, with whom he lived; two other sisters, Mrs. G. D. Fagin, of Avondale, and Mrs. L. H. Davis, of Miami, and another brother, Grover James, of Fitzgerald.

UNION CONTRACT GIVES MEN PAST 55 A BREAK

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A contract containing a provision that for every 10 younger men employed on any project there shall be one over 55 years old was signed today by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) and the New York Electrical Contractors' Association.

The contract, affecting 6,500 electrical workers in the metropolitan area, contained the novel clause to relieve unemployment among older workers.

USHA TURNS EYES TO RURAL HOUSING

Straus Says Slum Work in Cities Drawing to a Close.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 11.—(AP) Declaring "our work in the city slums is drawing to a close," Nathan Straus, executive director of the United States Housing Authority, tonight asserted the government would turn its attention immediately to rural housing problems.

He said the Housing Authority planned to construct "as soon as possible" rural units each to rent at approximately $50 a year—similar to the nation's first such project now under construction in Lee county, near Tupelo, Miss.

"The purpose of our trip," Straus said, "has been to acquaint ourselves with the needs of the rural areas as regard housing. Present plans call for each unit to be set on about an acre of land, to be adequately equipped for decent, sanitary living. We think we can build each unit for about $2,000."

The Department of Agriculture will be asked to aid the Housing Authority by suggesting locations for projects and by helping discover proper rent rates to charge in different localities, the federal executive said.

Officers of Radiological Society Talk Business Here

RADIUM TREASURE WILL BE TRACKED

Expert Is Pioneer.

Hunting for radium is Dr. Taft's hobby, not his profession. He became interested in the subject when he lost a quantity of radium in his office one day. Since that time he has worked steadily on improvements in detecting apparatus and his written a small volume on "Radium Lost and Found."

His new apparatus, he explained, has an advantage on old devices in that it is easier to operate and is portable. The small machine fits in a small bag which he slings over his shoulder. He also has a pair of headphones attached to the mechanism through which the nearness of radium is registered by means of sharp staccato sounds.

Dr. Talt recalled that he once recovered a quantity of radium that went through the drain of a hospital. He added, however, that he found it before it got out of the hospital pipes.

"Radium Hound."

The doctor calls his apparatus the "radium hound," which really is an improvement on the old Geiger-counter apparatus. He says he coined the pet name.

Among oher celebrities at the convention yesterday was Dr. Owen H. Wangensteen, professor of surgery at the University of Minnesota, who has made notable progress in relieving obstruction of the intestines without the aid of surgery.

It was pointed out that in some cases the condition may be corrected completely without an operation, and that in others the general improvement of the patient removes the danger from such an operation.

New Hope.

The obstruction is relieved through a tube inserted through the mouth and a pumping process. The discovery, it was explained by Dr. Leo G. Rigler, also of the University of Minnesota, brings new hope to those who suffer from this condition.

Dr. John T. Murphy, of Toledo, Ohio, declared in an interview that chilhood's so-called "growing pains" may be the danger signals of deadly disease and should never be laughed at by parents. He said the persistent aches are sometimes the sign of bone tumor, which is generally fatal when malignant.

RADIUM'S USE DATED WITH SCARLETT

Thirty-one years after "Scarlett O'Hara" made ner fictional ride from Atlanta to Jonesboro, which was re-enacted yesterday, an obscure German scientist discovered the x-ray and made it possible actually to study the internal organs of the human body.

This comparison, made yesterday by Mac F. Cahal, executive secretary of the American College of Radiology, showed the extent to which radiologists from all sections of the country have been captured by Atlanta's talk of "Gone With The Wind."

Despite the fact the doctors are supposed to be holding a convention and discussing the more serious aspects of their profession, they constantly refer to the celebration which has all Atlanta agog.

But to go on with the story of the first discovery, Cahal pointed out that the famous scientist was Wilhelm Conrad Roentgen, who lived in the quiet old world town of Wurzburg.

It was one night in 1895 that he took his wife, who had become irked with his experiments, down into his little laboratory and showed her the mystery machine that had kept his thoughts in the clouds for so long.

Special
Gone With The Wind Souvenir Edition!

To further commemorate the great occasion of the return to Atlanta of "Gone-With-the-Wind" days, a special Souvenir Edition devoted to the event will be published by The Constitution. It will be issued Thursday of this week—December 14.

This wonderful souvenir edition has been in the making since it was first decided to have the premiere of "Gone With the Wind" in Atlanta. It will be a most unusual edition. It will be different and highly prized by all who receive it. It will contain exclusive stories and pictures. Stories and pictures prepared especially for this edition and which will not appear in any other publication.

Clark Gable's Own Story

Clark Gable's own story—written by him—giving an intimate account of his emotions during the speculative period before he was chosen for the part of Rhett Butler, and in the months when he lived the part. . . . David O. Selznick tells how he first decided to produce the picture; his personal reactions to the story and the many interesting experiences encountered in producing this five-million-dollar masterpiece. . . . Odd facts about the production are illustrated. In addition to the articles personally written by the stars and inside accounts of personal happenings, there are many special features relative to the picture and the premiere by your favorite feature writers, including Robert Quillen, Ida Jean Kain, Sheilah Graham and others. Your favorite comic characters—the Gumps, Orphan Annie, Jane Arden, and the others—will be devoted to Atlanta's greatest occasion in this special edition. A full page picture of Tara, drawn especially for the edition by Wilbur Kurtz, and a special article by Col. Thomas Spencer, foremost authority on the Civil War, will prove high lights of the edition.

Aside from these and numerous other features, there will be exclusive pictures and stories of the stars in Atlanta. Their impressions of the city will be given from first-hand interviews. In fact, The Constitution's Souvenir Edition will be the most complete account of the filming of "Gone With the Wind" and its premiere that is possible to produce.

Be Sure of Your Copy—Order Now

In spite of the great expense involved in producing this special edition, it will be distributed at no extra cost to all regular Constitution subscribers. It will be sold on the street and at newsstands at the regular daily issue price. And, for those who want to send copies to persons in other cities, provisions have been made by The Constitution to mail them anywhere in the world for only 5c extra. The total cost for mail copies—including postage—10c each.

There will be a great demand for this Edition. The number of extra copies will be limited! To insure all out-of-town mail orders being filled promptly, please send or bring your orders together with remittance to the Circulation Department of The Constitution at ONCE.

CHAMBER TO HEAR PLANNING EXPERT DISCUSS ATLANTA

Harland Bartholomew Will Outline Future Moves for City; Reservations Are Numerous.

The 74th annual meeting of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce will be held tonight in the Dinkler room of Hotel Ansley. Alvin B. Cates, president, announced that reservations already received indicated an even greater attendance than last year.

Harland Bartholomew, one of the nation's outstanding city planners, arrived from St. Louis last night, and will spend the day getting a clear picture of the city in preparation for his feature address of the evening on "A Master Plan for Atlanta." He also conferred with officials of both the city and county planning commissions.

Bartholomew holds more honors than any man in the nation in city planning, and Mr. Cates expressed his desire that everyone interested in a master plan for Atlanta hear him.

Other Cities Coming.

The past presidents of the chamber will be the honor guests along with the presidents and officers of many of the outstanding chambers of commerce in the state and south. Acceptances of invitations have been received from Birmingham, Chattanooga, Anniston, Rome, Athens, Macon, Decatur, Savannah, Albany and Elberton.

Mayor Hartsfield and members of the city council, the City Planning Commission, the Fulton and DeKalb planning commissions and others have announced their intentions of attending in order to hear Bartholomew help solve one of Atlanta's most vital problems, a master plan.

Not all will be in a serious vein at the meeting. A special "preview" of "Gone With the Wind" will be presented, and from all indications, should prove one of the most hilarious skits yet presented at a Chamber of Commerce meeting in the city.

Will Elect Officers.

A special business session will also come in for a part of the meeting, at which time the election of officers for 1940 will be held.

Harland Bartholomew is well qualified as a speaker on a master plan. He has been engaged in planning work for the past 25 years, both comprehensive city planning and regional planning. His experience has covered all phases of planning, such as major street plans, railroad and terminal studies, routing of streetcar and bus lines, parks and recreational facilities, civic centers, zoning, housing and slum clearance.

Among the many cities in which he has had responsible charge of preparation of various phases of planning are included Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh, Rochester, Toledo, Louisville, Grand Rapids, Knoxville, Memphis, New Orleans, Omaha, Minneapolis, Fort Worth, Los Angeles, Sacramento, and Portland, Ore. He also prepared master plans for the state parks of Missouri, and is employed as landscape architect on large-scale USHA slum clearance projects at Memphis, St. Louis, Peoria and Springfield, Ill.

Finland's Appeal

Few more dramatic or appealing documents are to be found in the archives of the world than the appeal of embattled Finland, made in a unanimously adopted paper of the parliament of that little country on Sunday.

Stating that the tiny country has "the right to expect active help from other civilized nations," the appeal further declares the Finns, in their heroic stand against Russia, are fighting not only for their fatherland, but for "democratic institutions, religions, homes, everything which civilized peoples hold sacred."

The self-evident truth of that statement strikes to the heart of all peoples of a world which has witnessed the Finnish-Soviet conflict with horror at the attempted destruction of a free country and with breathless admiration for the dauntless defense put up by a woefully ontnumbered army.

The United States, in granting a $10,000,000 credit to Finland for the purchase, in this country, of supplies, has extended sorely needed help. In present circumstances it is, of course, impossible for America to join as an active belligerent in any phase of European war. That is one development utterly out of the question. Thus it is through the extension of credits such as this, and possibly further financial and material help, that we can best answer the Finnish cry to the world for help.

Other nations are responding, too. Britain is sending planes and is permitting shipment of munitions from her own reserves. Italy has sent planes. Even Germany, foe of the British and French allies and bound by treaty to Soviet Russia, has found it possible to help the Finns.

How long the forces of Finland, with all possible aid from other nations, can hold out against the hordes of armed men that Russia can throw into the conflict is matter only for speculation. She is aided by weather conditions near the Arctic circle and by poor transportation facilities of Russia. It seems, however, there can be but one ultimate outcome, if Russia throws in all her strength. That outcome is the death of Finland as an independent nation. Such a national death would mean that the menacing shadow of Soviet Russia had advanced still further over the darkening world.

But it will, at the same time, write into history the saga of an heroic people, a story that will stand beside that of Thermopylae as the heritage of the brave.

Musical Odyssey

Leopold Stokowski, famous co-conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, announces he is about to embark on another musical adventure. This time, it is the organizing of an All-United States symphony orchestra for a grand concert tour of Latin America.

The noted orchestra leader said he had accepted the invitations of eight South American republics to make the tour during May, June and July. The undertaking is the first of its kind. It has the support of a committee recently organized by the United States Department of Commerce among shipping and travel men to stimulate tourist traffic to Latin America.

In his own vivid manner, the famous musician summed up the principal points of the plan. "I see it first of all as a wonderful musical odyssey; as a wonderful opportunity for talented young musicians of the United States; as a way of understanding our neighbors in Central and South America by the return visits they will make later, and as a simple and democratic way of making still closer and warmer the friendship of the other American republics and our own."

Interesting also is the All-United States feature of the idea. Stokowski will personally select the 109 musicians who will comprise the musical ensemble. Each state will be represented and preference will be given young musicians.

Music is the universal language. It is an art that breaks through barriers of prejudice. It is an intangible that unites peoples in a thoroughly tangible way. The three B's—Brahms, Beethoven and Bach—have profoundly affected the lives of countless men and women. It is a foregone conclusion they will serve, in this instance, further to cement good will between North and South America.

British Export Embargo

Although the British embargo against German exports may result in considerable inconvenience to neutral nations, it carries no real danger of an open rupture between England and such countries. While all neutrals do not recognize the right to place the embargo, notes of protest against it have been couched in not unfriendly tones.

The State Department's protest of last week appeared to be based as much on the practical side as on recognized law between nations. "In many instances," it read, "orders for goods of German origin have been placed by American nationals for which they have made payment in whole or in part or otherwise obligated themselves. In other instances the goods purchased, or which might be purchased, cannot readily, if at all, be duplicated in other markets."

The very wording of these sentences indicates an expectation of negotiating such differences of opinion as may later appear. The effect of the embargo must first be felt before negotiations begins. The protest seems in the nature of preserving a status which no nation would willingly see changed, at the present time.

The note, however, went on to state that Britain would have to justify interference with neutral vessels by basing her actions on "some recognized belligerent right." Such rights, according to international law, read the note, are conceded in cases where "the vessel is carrying contraband of war to an opposing belligerent, or is otherwise engaged in some form of unneutral service, or has broken, or is attempting to break, an effective blockade of an enemy port."

The art of making war has so changed with the perfection of modern machines of destruction, nations are more or less prepared for a gradual modification of the ancient rules of blockade. The fact that Hitler, himself, stated to the world that "Germany must export or die" could be construed as justification enough for an export embargo, although the present restrictions are said to have been invoked as a counter measure against illegal laying of mines.

Despite the seeming aggravation in some quarters, one phase of the argument stands out above all the others: Great Britain is a nation with which the United States can negotiate. There is a great deal of comfort in that in a world where negotiations between nations have fallen to such a low level.

Peace Comes to Detroit

Last week, after two months of industrial-labor word warfare, which was neither strike nor lockout, peace came to Detroit. The struggle was precipitated when the contract between CIO and Chrysler expired on September 30.

Some idea may be had of the effects of the dispute when it is noted that while the two factions haggled over new terms, 14 Chrysler plants, 56 glass and rubber plants, as well as many supply factories throughout the country, were closed down. An estimated 150,000 workers, who needed the wages for themselves and their families, were deprived of their wants.

Eventually, however, as all such disputes are settled, the controversy was brought to an end. The factories of various kinds are now getting back into production. This is all well and good. The automobile business has been surging ahead for months; but the fact remains both industry and labor suffered an almost incalculable loss as a result of the two months of inactivity.

The thoughtful observer will, no doubt, feel as President Kaufman T. Keller, of Chrysler, felt when he said, in commenting on the settlement of the dispute, "it should have been made without the loss of a single day's pay on the part of our employes, or the loss of a single automobile sale on the part of our dealers." Some of the negotiators on the other side of the table thought the same thing.

Opinions differ, as usual, as to the responsibility for the prolongation of the argument; and perhaps this is now unimportant. The important thing is the negotiators did agree, that they all seem satisfied with the terms of the new contract. Since it is a "good contract for the company and a good contract for the union," to use the words of President Keller, why wasn't it agreed to sooner, as practically every negotiator thought it should have been? A difficult question to answer and a question that goes unanswered year after year.

BY GUM, IT'S GOTHAM!

(From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Those sidewalks of New York which Al Smith made famous—or was it the other way around?—are all gummed up. This is no figure of speech. It is a sad but actual situation.

To the rescue of the famous sidewalks comes doughty Mayor LaGuardia, equal to any situation. He wishes to preserve them, not for Al alone, but for all the people of the metropolis. He has started a campaign against throwing on the pavements well-kneaded but no longer needed gum. Says the mayor in his appeal: "Literally hundreds of thousands of dollars a year" are spent by the city to scrape up caked gum from public places.

It's not the original cost of the gum-chewing habit but the upkeep that disturbs the mayor. Yet while he complains of the cost of cleaning up the used cuds, common observation is that they all travel home on shoe soles and are deposited finally on the Oriental rug. Doubtless those the mayor finds in the subway station were bound homeward for the rug but got lost in the rush-hour congestion.

Two gum manufacturers, so far, have promised to co-operate with the mayor. They will print notices inside the wrappers to save them to wrap up used gum. Now they are looking for a catchy slogan to educate the public. Civilization may yet be saved in the grand canyons of Manhatta-

THE CAPITAL PARADE

CANDIDATE FOR KEEPS. WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—John Nance Garner is telling his friends that, if he is not nominated for the presidency, he is through with politics. He will retire to his Uvalde squirearchate, there to cultivate his acres, hunt for Texas deer and angle for Texas fish after the manner of a lusty Cincinnatus. Meanwhile, he is a candidate for keeps.

Such is the final stage of the Garner candidacy, which has gone through a curious transformation. The shrewd, jolly old vice president undoubtedly entered the race with the sole intention of accumulating enough delegates to have a powerful say in the Democratic national convention. His mind was slowly changed by evidence of unsuspected Garner sentiment in Democratic organizations all over the country. Now a huge, well-heeled headquarters at Dallas is running his campaign, and early in January, when he will go through the formal ceremony of public disclosure of his ambition, he will be talking in earnest.

Furthermore, word comes from circles extremely close to the White House that the President himself regards Garner as the only conservative Democrat with a serious chance to capture the party nomination. For the New Deal group, intent on their third term plans, the firmly anti-third term Garner is public threat number one.

BACK TO NORMALCY. All this is perfectly sensible. It is pretty clear by now that unless the President intervenes, Jack Garner and his good friend Jim Farley will control the Democratic convention between them. They will have the delegates.

The Garner candidacy is customarily minimized, because it is said, quite correctly, that the negroes and organized labor do not love him. But, if the negroes and organized labor are unenthusiastic, Garner has an immense compensating following among normally Republican voters charmed by the impressive Garner build-up in the newspapers. Many Republican leaders are finding disquieting truth in the White House gibe, that "Jack Garner is the best Republican candidate we have."

Moreover, Garner is a colorful as well as a potent political personality. He authentically has the kind of rich regional flavor that Calvin Coolidge used for scenery. His speech would be admirable dialogue for a "down east" of the cattle country. When he wants to tell the President to let business alone, he says that the cattle ought to be allowed to rest and take on fat instead of being "choused" around. Or, if he wants to boast of his own fitness to walk 12 miles a day, he declares, "My legs are so hard that, if a deer hunter took a pot-shot at me, the bullet would bounce right off."

These echoes of an earlier America strike just the right engaging note for a man who is essentially a "back to normalcy" candidate. Of such stuff are political assets made.

HEAD-ON CLASH. In fact, Garner would be an excellent bet if it were not for the President. The Garner forces take the line that, so long as Garner is ready to support any Democrat the convention chooses, the President should be willing to do the same. But the President plainly is not willing to do anything of the sort.

Outwardly, amiable relations have been maintained between the two men. Only this fall, the President somewhat unwillingly gave Garner a free hand in managing revision of the neutrality act. In earlier days, Garner steered much New Deal legislation to passage, including, it is worth remembering, the first great, $4,800,000,000 spending bill. But Garner's interludes of independence have gravely offended Roosevelt. The offense does not find expression in personal criticism, but in suggestions that Garner is reactionary in his associations. Currently, the White House is making much of Garner's backing. E. B. Germany, Garner's campaign manager, is a leading Texas oil man. Roy Miller, a powerful backer, is vice president of Texas Gulf Sulphur Corporation, and W. H. Clark Jr., another backer, belongs to a rich business law firm. Men like these, say the White House crowd, are not fit sponsors for the successor of Franklin Roosevelt. These intimations are chiefly important as symptoms of a White House attitude. Sooner or later, this attitude and Garner's political power are going to come in conflict. Then there will be fireworks.

Atlanta "Theater" In the Sixties.

As a sort of footnote to recent columns here dealing with theatrical and motion picture history of Atlanta, this morning we reprint excerpts from a story entitled "Gifted Amateurs Played for the Confederacy," written by L. L. Parham and first published in "The Sunny South," on September 21, 1902.

There is, too, a thought that it may be particularly timely for this "Gone With the Wind" week in Atlanta, when so many modern players and amusement executives are in the city.

So, without further delay, let's get into this story of the theatrical activities of Atlanta during the War Between the States.

Raising Funds For War Hospitals.

"The magnitude of supplying the army at the front and taking care of the sick and wounded in Atlanta will be apparent to the reader when it is stated that near 100,000 of that class of our armies were in the hospital here from first to last. And so it soon became known that the Confederate government was unequal to the immense task, and then it was a noble band of patriots conceived the idea of rendering pecuniary assistance which they did to the extent of nearly $100,000 raised by concerts given in various cities of the south.

"As a nucleus on which to build a new dramatic company for the purpose stated, Atlanta had, in 1858, a splendid amateur aggregation, one which distinguished itself by supporting several famous artists at that early day. The "Murdocks" as they styled the company, was composed of the best talent to be found in the south. Colonel George W. Adair and Colonel Thomas Howard were the financial backers of the "Murdocks." William H. Barnes, author, actor, newspaper writer, and great secret society man, was the manager.

"As the company grew in favor and its popularity increased, they supported such old-time actors as Billy Burton, the celebrated comedian, in his characterization of Toodles. They also supported Maggie Mitchell and Adah Isaacs Menken in her wonderful impersonation of Mazeppa. At one time they supported Neafill, who played "The Corsican Brothers" for six consecutive nights, which goes to show that Atlanta in the late fifties was as appreciative of the dramatic art as now (1902).

"Bill" Choice, the tragedian of the company was the greatest local heavy man that ever strutted or fretted by hours upon the Atlanta boards. This amateur, who had done to death so many of his companions on the stage, later killed a man in Atlanta, for which he came near to being hanged.

Others in The Company.

"Others of the company were William H. Barnes, stage manager; Thomas Cox, Carson Fox, John Reilly Jr., Dr. Walter S. Taylor, a prominent druggist of that day, and Colonel W. Lowndes Calhoun, who still (1902), lives in Atlanta. The first piece essayed by them was "The Wife," with Bill Choice as Julian St. Pierre, and Bill Barnes, a heavy second villain. Miss Millicent Westmoreland, a fine professional, whom they employed, played the leading lady part. As an afterpiece, they gave "The Omnibus." Standing room was at a premium. So encouraged were they that they put on John Brougham's "Pocahontas," which had a run of twice a week for three weeks.

"The Atlanta Amateurs succeeded the Murdocks, which went to pieces after Bill Choice killed old man Webb. About two years after this Bill Barnes organized the Amateurs. The members were: Mrs. Maria J. Westmoreland, Miss Frankie Whitney (Mrs. May Charles W. Hubner), her sister, Miss Julia Whitney (Mrs. Jim Willis), Miss Jennie Sims (Mrs. J. L. Richmond), Misses Lizzie and Mamie Judson, Miss Rowena Hall (Mrs. D. Mobley), Miss Susie Sims (Mrs. Robert P. Trippe), Miss Lizzie Gowby (Mrs. W. A. Haynes), George H. Hammond, Tom Nash, Dr. J. A. D'Alviny, and Jake Schoen.

"The Amateurs then began giving entertainments for the benefit of Confederate soldiers. They sang in Charleston, Augusta, Savannah, Macon, Columbus, Milledgeville, Marietta and other cities of the south. They gave benefits to different Confederate commands, one being the "Raccoon Roughs," commanded by Captain (General) John B. Gordon, who had gotten the company up, and later commanded by Major J. L. McCollum, the present (1902) superintendent of the Atlantic and West Point Railway. When General John H. Morgan, who had been captured by the Federals, escaped, he came to Atlanta, and the Amateurs gave him two benefits, which netted $250. They gave all their receipts to the soldiers, for they were all well to do, and were inspired only by patriotism. Railroad fare and hotel bills were free. They had a permit from the Confederate government to go anywhere in the south."

Washington Incident. WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—An incident which has been dragging along in Washington these last 10 days proves either that Dr. Hans Thomsen, the man left in charge of the Nazi embassy, ain't no gentleman or that Mrs. Helen Essary, a journalist on Mrs. Cissie Patterson's Times-Herald, is a real good fortune teller. It might also prove an understanding between Hitler and Stalin for further corrections in historical error in Europe.

A week ago Sunday, which would be the third of the month, Mrs. Essary published a story purporting to be an interview with Thomsen in both direct and indirect quote. Incidentally, Mrs. Essary is a professional newspaper writer as distinguished from that class of vain and futile female amateurs who have made clumsy stabs at the business since Mrs. Roosevelt opened her little store and made a success of it. Mrs. Essary speaks the language and belongs.

In this piece Thomsen was made to say that Russia's attempt to conquer Finland was merely a step to redeem her own territory and to predict that Stalin would move down through Bessarabia to Turkey.

Here Are The Quotes. These were the quotes attributed to him on that subject:

"Russia has but one logical course. Her objective, a port on the Black Sea, is understandable. She will move down the continent through Rumania, taking back Bessarabia, which belongs to her, as she goes. There are many Russians in Bessarabia. It would be Russian land were it not for the mistakes of the Versailles treaty. Turkey is the real Soviet objective. All of Turkey? No. But full control of the Bosphorus."

In indirect quotes Thomsen was said to have remarked further that if Rumania had not foolishly enlarged herself she would not now be in danger from Russia and also from Hungary, which wants back her part of Rumania. All this was covered with the comforting observation that the honest European knows that war, for him, is almost everlasting.

Thomsen closed the discussion with a prediction, admonitory in tone, that the United States, having no proper concern in European affairs, would stay home and mind her own business.

Interview Denied. But there is a question whether Thomsen ever said anything of the kind, ever discussed these matters at all with Mrs. Essary, for soon after the piece appeared the press associations were notified that he repudiated it all in the following terms:

"The remarks about the actual political situation, attributed in direct quotation by a Washington columnist to the German charge d'affaires, are entirely unfounded and must be left to the columnist's own imagination and responsibility. No interview on the subject mentioned was given by Dr. Thomsen."

Well, now, let us check.

Mrs. Essary knows Thomsen well and described in circumstantial detail the meeting at which the remarks are said to have been made. She also relates confidentially several other remarks which she claims he tossed off, with the warning, however, that they were off the record. She had interviewed him before on the subject of Poland without painful reactions, and it is her contention that these portions of this later story which she did publish were given by Thomsen and without any reservation or question of confidence.

But here we find Dr. Thomsen, declaring that "no interview on the subject mentioned was given by Dr. Thomsen."

Borne Out By Events. That leads to the conclusion that Mrs. Essary is a remarkable woman, either a good, enterprising journalist who did obtain a forecast of Russia's politico-military conspiracy against two other nations from the German ambassador, or a seer who called the turn on events of history's recent rush.

As to that you may take your choice, but reference to the actual news developments of last week will show that Russia did make the first preliminary passes at Rumania, and toward Turkey consistent with the plan which Mrs. Essary attributed to Thomsen, and that the Turks threatened to throw out Captain Von Papen, the Nazi ambassador, for disseminating propaganda hostile to their security.

It is proposed that Mrs. Essary's story and Thomsen's chivalrous comment on the same be put upon the spike and compared to fuller historical developments, say, six months from now.

Toss-Up.

In Huntington, W. Va., the audition completed, the judges pondered while Dick Dixon, of Carlisle, W. Va., and Rinard Hart, of Brownsville, Pa., tensely awaited their verdict.

Perplexed, Louis Fay Haworth, singing teacher who posted the scholarship, decided to settle by the flip of a coin.

Dixon, a junior, won.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

"THY PALE LOST LILIES" I assume, indeed I have heard, although I never asked, that Miss Margaret Mitchell took the title for her book from one of Ernest Dowson's poems, "Non Sum Qualis Eram Bonae Sub Regno Cynarae." Most college sophomores, who recite it after the third beer, call the poem "Cynara."

Poet Dowson was a very excellent poet but also an assiduous and devoted rum pot. As I recall the story from my own sophomore days, he was very much in love with an inn-keeper's daughter, the one celebrated in the poem with the long Latin title. The Latin title, indeed, states that he was not long enough under the influence of the good Cynara.

Be that as it may, she turned him down to marry a waiter who had saved up enough money to start an inn of his own. Dowson could write poems, but his money frequently "non est," and Cynara, being as practical as the girls of today, married the waiter instead of the poet.

Dowson promptly became even more of an energetic and talented rum pot and started chasing his potions with stronger stuff. The poem to Cynara is his best known, although I think you will like best a very short one called "Vitae Summa Brevis Spem Nos etat Incohare Longam." He liked Latin titles.

Anyhow, that verse which reputedly gave the title to the book by Miss Mitchell, reads:

"I have forgot much, Cynara! Gone with the wind,
"Flung roses, roses riotously with the throng,
Dancing, to put thy pale, lost lilies out of mind;
But I was desolate and sick of an old passion,
Yea, all the time, because the dance was long:
I have been faithful to thee, Cynara! in my fashion."

There is a lot of that in the south, if one will but come to think on it.

THE DANCE WAS LONG We spent quite a few years, south of the Smith and Wesson line, dancing to put out of our minds the pale, lost lilies of what was gone.

I think we flung roses riotously with the throng, mourning after the mocking birds and the mulberry leaf; the juleps stirred with a silver spoon, and all the rest of the tradition which was not the real tradition.

And while we sought to put the pale, lost lilies out of mind, our fields ran red into the rivers, our farms poured their young men and women into the cities; we neglected education.

The dance was long and we were, I am sure, desolate and sick of an old passion. And we were, most assuredly, faithful to the old tradition, only in our own fashion.

There was an old south. It had strength. It had intelligence and power. We stifled it in too much devotion to the pale, lost lilies.

And so we went with the wind and it blew us hither and yon and at last it stripped us bare and left us there for the economists to probe and examine; a sick section called "The Nation's Number One Economic Problem."

It is, of course, the number one economic opportunity. The whole picture was not presented in that report. Yet we know what they said was true enough, even if they did it hastily, cadging from old reports. Indeed, they could have got the entire story from Henry Grady's speeches made 50 years ago. He, a half-century ago, was asking the south to keep all that was great and glorious in her life and to quit dancing to put the pale, lost lilies out of mind.

We have, I think, just about quit that dance.

THANKS TO MISS MITCHELL I see that our statues are cleaned. It is a bit startling to go by a familiar statue and look to see the familiar smoke-begrimed figures of stone or bronze. They are cleaned and seemingly new. They are not nearly so familiar and one is impelled to halt and look more closely at old friends with their faces washed and their suitings cleaned.

It makes one a bit angry they were not cleaned long ago; indeed, that they are not given frequent cleanings. If we had the money to do it for the premiere of a picture, we had the money to do it for those of us who have come to know, and have an affection for, the statues.

Henry Grady looks magnificent. I think now, the family is right. Once I thought the statue might be moved to the new park. But there is the place for Grady—there where the city boils about him; where people go; where the shouts of newsboys reach his ears; where the traffic flows. He belongs in the life of Atlanta, not in some quiet park.

Well, the premiere almost is upon us. When the ball and the premiere are done, the movie will be on view twice daily at moderate prices. Mr. Gable and Miss Leigh will be just as alive, and probably more so, on the screen than if seen from a distance rising to take a bow in some theater.

Let's give those visitors an enthusiastic but orderly reception, so they may wish to come again to a city where the people do not become mad, screaming mobs at the sight of a movie star.

Where Honor Is Unknown, There Is No Law But Fang and Claw

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The swindler is a thief who uses trickery instead of force because it is safer. When trickery fails, he has no moral scruple against using other methods.

Russia's Reds were first to adopt the policy of deliberately violating all ethical rules. To justify themselves, they argued in this fashion: "We are at war with those who possess property, and any treachery is fair in war."

Eventually all totalitarian states adopted the same policy, and their leaders also justified themselves. They said, in effect: "Ethical rules were made by winners to protect their winnings. The man who thinks it wrong to steal is the one who has something to be stolen. Property is protected by the rules requiring men to keep their word, tell the truth, pay their debts and respect the rights of others, but these rules, which please the rich people they benefit, are obstacles and handicaps to the lean and hungry who are on the make. Since we cannot gain land and wealth by methods which are called honest, we shall disregard the old rules and get ours by any method that works."

For a time this gave them a great advantage. Players of little ability can win any game if they violate the rules that restrict others. Any nation could have made brief gains by the same method.

But the swindling game has a fatal weakness. It can't repeat. Victims become wary. In this case they were a long time learning, for they were accustomed to a world in which responsible and highly-placed men observed the rules of honor. They could not believe that such men would deliberately lie, or brazenly deceive, or make a pledge with the intention of breaking it. They were easily "outwitted"; any man can easily cheat or defraud a neighbor who trusts him.

But treachery has its limitations, and the totalitarian nations have long since adopted the quicker method of force—i. e., simple robbery with firearms. Italy, Germany and Russia have deliberately stolen the lands they coveted; Japan has stolen much of China and apparently is bent on stealing Holland's East Indies.

Now the world must make a decision that will determine the fate of mankind.

Obviously it cannot continue the present arrangement, with a few great nations bound by ethical rules and the others free to gain their ends by deceit, treachery, violation of pledges and outright theft. All must return to jungle law and "let him take who has the power and let him keep who can," or the rule-breakers must some how be required to honor the rules again.

There was no civilization till men agreed to abide by rules; there will be none left if the rules are disregarded.

COURT SUSTAINS NON-UNION HIRING

Employers May Discriminate in Selecting Workers, Ruling Says.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The United States circuit court of appeals ruled today that under the National Labor Relations act an employer may discriminate against union or nonunion members in hiring.

Only after the relationship of employer and employe is established, the court said, must the employer refrain from discriminatory acts.

The decision, declared by the court to be the first ruling on the question, was in a case involving the National Casket Company of Oneida, N. Y.

A CIO official commented that the ruling would have little effect upon that organization because, he said, most of its labor contracts were made with the understanding that workers must become union members only after a stated period of employment.

The AFL, he added, would be directly affected.

GOOD MORNING -:- By Louie D. Newton

LEE BATTLE.

Mercer men all over Georgia, and all over the world, felt that unspeakable throb of the heart which only true love knows when they read last Saturday morning the dispatch from Macon that Lee Battle had heard the golden bells and that the chariot of the Lord had swept low to bear his spirit away to the bosom of the Lord. President Dowell and his associates did a gracious and fitting thing when they took the body of this faithful, beloved negro servant into the chapel, where it lay in state for teachers and students and friends to pass by in one last reverent tribute to admiration and affection. They took his body to Monroe county to rest beside the body of his mother till the morning of the resurrection.

Lee was 74 years old. He had served as janitor in the Mercer dormitories for nearly a half century. He was a Christian gentleman. Loved and respected by teachers and students alike, he served his day and generation by the will of God. I shall gratefully cherish his memory to life's latest day, and I look forward with joy unspeakable to conscious fellowship with him through all eternity in the land that is fairer than day.

I first knew Lee during my student days at Mercer. He knew how to help first-year men. He helped me to get my bearings. He helped me keep my footing. I went to him many a time for advice and for strength. And then I knew Lee in a yet deeper and more vital fellowship, when, as a youngster I was placed on the faculty of the college and put in charge of the dormitories. I roomed right across the hall from Lee. Day and night he was at my side. I could never have met and managed the many difficult situations that arose in those years without the constant and unfailing support of Lee Battle.

Never did I return to the campus in all these intervening years that I did not seek out Lee Battle. His handclasp was a blessing. His radiant personality renewed my deepest devotions to my alma mater. He always had a good word for every Mercer man. He believed in Mercer. He believed in Mercer men. He entered into our joys and sorrows. He cheered us in battle and he rejoiced with us in victory. He wept with those who wept.

There will be a fitting monument raised, I know, on the Mercer campus for Lee Battle, and we shall all wish a part in whatever is suggested in the wisdom of the authorities at the college. And in our hearts there is a tablet engraved to his memory—the memory of a man who served nobly because he loved greatly. He fought the good fight, he kept the faith, he finished his course. God be thanked for such a friend, and help us so to live.

GERALD CARREKER FINAL RITES HELD

SIX DEATHS ADDED TO WEEK-END TOLL

Four Negroes Perish When Home Burns; Five Others Rescued.

By The Associated Press.

Fire and automobile accidents last night had added six to the toll of seven lives previously reported in a week end of mishaps, bringing to 13 the toll of tragic deaths in Georgia.

A negro tenant farmer, his wife, and two of their eight children perished when their home on the Social Circle-Madison road burned Sunday night. An older son rescued five other children from the blazing dwelling.

L. T. Langley, of LaGrange, hurt in an accident which killed James Lawrence, of Greensboro, N. C., Saturday night six miles north of LaGrange, died of his injuries.

Leonard F. Moore, 35, of Calhoun, was killed in an automobile-truck collision on the Appling-Grovetown road, near Harlem.

STARK CITES PERIL OF TRADE BARRIERS

Says Civil War Could Result From Situation; Gets Publicity Award.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(UP)—Trade barriers between the states beget hatreds which conceivably might lead to war between the states, Governor Lloyd C. Stark, of Missouri, said tonight in receiving an award of the National Association of Accredited Publicity Directors, Inc.

Stark was granted the association's annual award "for outstanding work in the public interest in the field of publicity." This was in connection with his work as chairman of the Governors' conference and president of the Council of State Governments, in which he has been campaigning against interstate trade barriers.

In an interview before his address, Stark said that such barriers could lead to a situation "similar to that which existed before the War Between the States," and in his speech he said:

"Where irritation against neighbors exists today in many states, hatred may exist tomorrow. When a state or a nation stifles trade, it strikes at the pocketbook and at the market basket of its neighbor—and that is the route to war."

BERNARD PINCUS TO RETURN TO CITY

Former Davison-Paxon Man Called Back.

Bernard F. Pincus is to return to Atlanta to the Davison-Paxon Company in January as merchandising councillor in charge of basement merchandising, it was announced by store officials yesterday.

Mr. Pincus was connected with the company for nine years before he moved to Newark, N. J., two years ago where he was connected with a large firm in a similar capacity.

BANKER MURPHEY HURT AS BLAZE RAZES HOME

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 11.—(AP)—William Murphey, vice chairman of the board of directors of the Citizens and Southern Bank, was burned on the hands by a fire that destroyed his suburban home today.

Murphey placed the loss at about $100,000. He was burned while removing furnishings, including a portrait of his mother, from the blazing dwelling.

HISTORICAL BOOK RELEASED TODAY

Pamphlet Describes High Spots of Interest in Atlanta; Maps Included.

No more will Atlanta's spots of historical importance be unfamiliar to any resident, because today approximately 10,000 copies of a booklet describing the outstanding points of interest in the city will be placed in hotels and other public places by the Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Convention and Tourist Bureau, joint publishers of the pamphlet.

Included in the book is a map of the city showing the locations of historical markers which have been erected in the past few weeks by the Chamber of Commerce. Photographs of several of the more famous places are contained in the pamphlet, together with a condensed version of the inscription which appears on every marker.

The marker project, of which the booklet is a part, was rushed to completion for the "Gone With the Wind" celebration. All but four of the plaques are now in place.

PRIZES ARE OFFERED FOR HOLIDAY LIGHTS

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

DALTON, Ga., Dec. 11.—Officials of the water, light and sinking fund commission, operators of Dalton's public utilities, announced this week that prizes will be given for the best electrically-lighted homes in the city during the Christmas season.

The city will be divided into four districts, with prizes being given the winners of first and second places in each district for the best Christmas lighting effects. The business section of Dalton already has been decorated, the lights being more elaborate than ever before.

Second Tech Student Quits Nazi War Diet Experiment

James T. Scanlon's Withdrawal Is Blamed on a 'Hot Letter From Home'; Had Lost 10 Pounds in Two Weeks; Mayo and Schmidt Vow They Will Continue.

By CHARLES GILMORE.

Three hungry Tech boys
Eating no-beef stew;
One drank a chocolate malted milk
And then there were two.

James T. Scanlon yesterday stepped on the scales, noted that his stock was 10 pounds under par, reached for a chocolate malted milk shake and thus became the second "wreck" from Georgia Tech to resign from the German war rations diet.

Herr Scanlon made his decision as the group entered its third week of self-appointed starvation, leaving Henry Mayo and Ed Schmidt holding an empty feed-bag. Scanlon, 21 years old and from Bellaire, N. Y., dropped from 158 to 148 pounds on the scanty menu.

He attributed his resignation to "increased presure from without and absolutely no pressure from within." In explanation, he said the news of his diet reached a Bellaire newspaper, caused alarm in his family and thus resulted in "A hot letter from home."

"They told me to stop this nonsense at once and get something to eat. I did. That's all there is to it. I could eat a German boot, even if it isn't made of leather. Those are the worst two weeks I've ever spent. Give me another one, malted."

Last week when George Stribling jumped off the starvation special, Stribling said for publication: "I feel fine. I can hold out until Christmas easily. Of course, I've lost a little weight but the limited diet has made me feel more alert, I can think better. Stribling must be crazy."

Yesterday, informed of their conferere's decision, Mayo and Schmidt said, "We're surprised at that. He seemed to be doing all right. But you can never tell in this war rations diet; it's here today, gone tomorrow."

Gone yesterday was 10 pounds from Henry Mayo and six pounds from Ed Schmidt, the two survivors so far. Late last week they crosed sworns concerning Schmidt's allegations that southern share-croppers and negroes ate less than German citizens, but yesterday they were reunited in misery.

"We're going on with it," they said yesterday. "We both feel all right, a little hungry, but we think we can make it until Christmas."

Last night Scanlon had his first big meal in two weeks. Rations food is furnished free to the students on the diet by Manager Jack Lester of the Georgia Tech College Inn. As they resign from the test, they can eat for one meal all the food they want. Both Stribling and Scanlon ate it.

SIGMA NUS TO GIVE PLAQUE TO KAY KYSER

Kay Kyser, whose orchestra is to play for the "Gone With the Wind" ball Thursday night, will be presented with a plaque during the N. B. C. program to be broadcast from the auditorium beginning at 10:30 o'clock, it was announced yesterday.

The presentation is to be made on behalf of the active chapters of the Sigma Nu fraternity at Tech, Emory and Georgia "in recognition of Kyser's contribution to Sigma Nu and college men in general," it was stated.

RARE ILLNESS KILLS BABY

BALTIMORE, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Two-year-old Billy Boblitz died today of myeloid leukemia, after three weeks' vain effort to obtain a blood transfusion from some person who had recovered from the disease.

Myeloid leukemia, marked by excessive multiplication of white corpuscles in the blood, is usually fatal.

Finn's Appeal to League Greeted by Wild Ovation

But Advocate Avoids Any Suggestions for Expelling Soviet Russia.

GENEVA, Dec. 11.—(UP)—The moribund League of Nations, which was unable to save China, Ethiopia, Czecho-Slovakia or Poland, tonight dispatched a 24-hour "ultimatum" to Moscow "inviting" Soviet Russia to withdraw Red troops from Finland and begin peace talks under League auspices.

Dispatch of the message to Moscow followed an impassioned plea for aid by Rudolf Holsti, former Finnish foreign minister and that country's chief advocate at Geneva. He received a wild ovation when he asked the world to help the embattled Finns "with acts, not words."

Wildly Cheered.

Holsti was cheered as have been few men before the august League assembly.

He attacked the "hypocritical" attitude of Russia—for years a principal champion of punishment for aggressors—and quoted Russian statemen's previous speeches deploring aggression by other nations. But Holsti carefully avoided any suggestions for expulsion of Russia or for sanctions against the Soviet for invading Finland.

Makes Appeal.

He asked the League to deal with the situation "from the moral point of view" and then made this appeal:

"You must help Finland. Finland alone cannot save its women and children from bullets and gas and bombs. If you do your duty to Finland, Finland will do its duty toward the world."

Holsti declared that Finland was profoundly touched by world sympathy, and added: "Please transform this sympathy into some practical means of aid for we hope the world does not expect Finland to fight the enemy alone."

He was bitter toward Russia for presuming to recognize the "People's Government" set up under Red auspices on the Russian-Finnish border a few hours after Red army troops began the invasion of Finland.

'As Soon Have Hitler as Ickes,' Texan Declares

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 11.—(UP)—Jerry Sadler, a Texas railroad commissioner, today told a congressional subcommittee that "if we get (Secretary of Interior Harold) Ickes at the head of this nation's oil business, we might as well get Hitler over here."

"The states can manage their own affairs—at least I know Texas can," Sadler told the House committee which opened hearings on the proposed Cole bill to put the oil industry under federal control.

HALT FINNISH WAR, LEAGUE TELLS REDS

Allies would support the Argentine move to oust Russia from the League and give Finland the aid she asked.

The Latin-American nations, despite frequent reports on a division in their ranks, seemed to have reached an agreement on a common stand.

(A Helsinki correspondent wrote today that Finnish fliers had dropped pamphlets on Soviet airfields urging Russian pilots to fly to Finland where they would be paid a bounty for their planes, the United Press said.

(The dispatch said 14 Soviet fliers already had complied).

Flint Is About To Start Home.

BERGEN, Norway, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The American freighter City of Flint, in charge of its American crew, is about to leave the Norwegian port of Haugesund for a roundabout journey to the United States and may carry Finnish refugees with her.

Shipping circles expect the City of Flint to reach Bergen Saturday and depart again Monday for an undisclosed northern Norwegian port. The cargo of the vessel, which the Germans who captured her last October 9 declared was contraband, was left at Haugesund.

Held by Reds, Finn Declares.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—(UP)—Dr. A. A. Yrjo-Koskinen, Finnish minister to Moscow until the outbreak of Russo-Finnish hostilities, said today that Russian police had held him, his wife and his legation staff of 26 persons under arrest for six hours at the frontier before permitting them to leave the Soviet Union.

"Armed guards surrounded our train when we got to Bigosovo, on the border, Thursday morning," said Yrjo-Koskinen, who is en route to Helsinki.

"They kept us locked up for six hours. We finally were given some food and the train was allowed to continue to Dunaburg. It was a rather alarming experience and I am thankful to get out of Russia although I have been minister to Moscow for nine years."

Six British Ships Added To Toll

LONDON, Dec. 11. — (AP) — Six more British ships were added today to the ever-growing list of Allied vessels lost in sea warfare.

In addition, a neutral steamer, the 4,708-ton Greek ship Garoufalia, was reported torpedoed and sunk by a submarine off the Norwegian coast, with a loss of four lives.

Among the victims were four missing merchantmen, long overdue, which the British believed sunk. These were the Ash Lea, 4,222 tons; Newton Beech, 4,651 tons; Trevanion, 5,299 tons; and the Huntsman, 8,196 ons.

A fifth merchant vessel, the 4,815-ton Willowpool, went down after hitting a mine. The minesweeper Ray of Hope also met disaster in the form of a mine. Four of her crew were killed.

'Japan Pledges Backing'—Nazis.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—(UP)—The Berlin radio today circulated a dispatch from Shanghai asserting that Germans in China have been assured by unidentified Japanese naval authorities that Japan will not permit Britain and France to interfere with German exports to Japan in line with the Allied war blockade.

The dispatch said the Germans were told that if Britain attempts to seize cargoes on Japanese vessels the Japanese will make equal seizures from British vessels in far east waters.

Nature Believed Blocking Soviets.

MOSCOW, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Evidence that Soviet Russian troops were meeting heavy natural obstacles in Finland in addition to the stubborn resistance of the Finns was seen today by foreign neutral observers.

These sources said the Russians apparently realized now their mistake of trying to effect a mechanized advance over lakes and through rock and wooded terrain in their drive to cut in from the east and then attack the Mannerheim line from the rear.

The opinion was expressed that the Russians would advance faster as soon as they used cavalry and infantry more extensively.

Sweden Agrees On New Cabinet.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Swedish party leaders agreed today upon a new coalition cabinet to bear the responsibility of the Swedish neutrality program in the face of the Russian-Finnish war crisis.

Only the choice of a foreign minister to succeed Richard Sandler remained undecided, but in political sources it was said the new foreign minister would be a man without party affiliation, probably either Carl Hamilton, minister to Copenhagen, or Christian Gunther, minister to Norway.

The Social Democrat premier, Per-Albin Hansson, remained in the cabinet lineup. It was expected to include two Conservatives, two Liberals, one Independent, two Peasant party members and one without party affiliation, compared to the present lineup of eight Social Democrats, two Independents and three Peasant party members.

Red Aim Held Domination.

HELSINKI, Dec. 11.—(UP)—The Finnish government asserted tonight, in a 50-page "whitebook" describing Russia's demands which led to the invasion of Finland, that the Soviet sought military domination over Finland such as they acquired over the other small Baltic states.

Hoover Gratified At Response.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 11.—(AP) Former President Herbert Hoover said today the "response to the appeal for the Finnish relief fund is demonstrating real national outpouring of sympathy to the Finnish people," and that "the multitude of donations has been most gratifying."

Nazi Freighter Delays Sailing.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Dec. 11. (UP)—Departure of the German freighter Arauca was postponed indefinitely today as result of reports that a "suspicious" warship sighted off this port was a British destroyer.

Sharpshooters Slaughter Reds.

KIRKENES, Norway, Dec. 11.—(UP)—Hidden Finnish sharpshooters were reported tonight to have wiped out large numbers of Soviet troops attempting to land from Russian ships in Petsamo fjord to reinforce the Red army's Arctic dirive.

The unconfirmed report said that the Russan losses were severe but no estimate was given.

One report said that "entire Soviet units" had perished because their uniforms and equipment were not adapted to the cold.

Nazis Hit Talk Of Peace Move.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Dec. 12.—(UP)—Germany in a semi-official statement early today, assailed reports of a New Nazi peace move, circulated in connection with the League of Nations session at Geneva, as an attempt by the Allies to "pit Germany and Russia against each other."

Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, which reflects the views of the Wilhelmstrasse, said the reappearance of the old rumors reveals that the western powers are fearful that they may not be able to stand up alone against the Reich.

"After those efforts which they conducted for many months to enlist Russia in the anti-German front failed the western powers obviously believe they will be able to shake the belief of Germany and Russia that their return to the old tradition of harmony is to their best interests," the foreign office organ said.

"In order to achieve this two maneuvers have been tried recently. The first, as had been expected, was a false report alleging that Germany after the start of the Russian Finnish hostilities either sent war materials to Finland or permitted their transport through the Reich.

"In order to increase the effects of this western intrigue the French news agency Havas additionally alleges that Germany intended to win over the Scandinavian countries.

"But above all the semi-official Petit Parisien (of Paris) and the Daily Telegraph (of London), in reports from Geneva, alleged that Germany wants to make peace with the western powers in order that all nations of Europe may jointly go against Russia.

"The villainous acts which the western powers are using in an attempt to play Germany against Russia seem at first sight to be complicated but in reality they are extremely simple.

"If things went according to the wishes of London and Paris all the neutral powers would be brought into opposition against both Berlin and Moscow."

Claim Capture Of Terminus.

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Dec. 12. (UP)—The Soviet high command, claiming advances "on all fronts" in Finland, early today announced the occupation of the railroad terminus of Pitkaranta on the northern shore of Lake Ladoga.

Do Reds Fear Turn by Reich?

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

On the surface it looks as though Soviet Russia already is reacting in some measure to the world outcry against her aerial bombing of Finnish cities.

At any rate, Russia's present aerial strategy seems strange since she did not hesitate to strike ruthlessly at the outset. It is all the more strange in view of the growing dificulties the Red army is encountering against a Finnish resistance that has set the world cheering.

What may be the answer is Russia's growing uncertainty as to how her Berlin partner ultimately may react to Russian efforts to dominate the upper Baltic, through which run vital German supply lines. None can reasonably doubt that a Germany suddenly released from the stress of her war with the Franco-British Allies would turn eastward again to stem Russian advances both in the Baltic and the Balkans.

A short German-French-British war, ending in months rather than years, would confront Moscow with that situation. Against an unexhausted Germany, Russia could hope to retain permanently what she has gained or hopes to gain in the Baltic and Balkans only if her air force as well as her vast armies placed the military power in her hands to compel German acceptance.

Like Germany, in the Hitler march to Munich and on, Soviet Russia has relied chiefly upon air power to back up her diplomatic efforts to expand along the lines of old czarist Russia's imperial dreams. There are indications that not even the unexpectedly stout Finnish resistance will induce Moscow to risk that air power.

'Mein Makeup'

Proper German Lassies Comply With Hitler's Tip.

By WILLIAM L. WHITE.
Special Correspondent.

BERLIN (By Mail)—The Fuehrer has suggested that no decent German woman should wear makeup—arguing that such artifices are unnecessary to true Aryan beauty and are therefore suitable only for foreigners, prostitutes and Jews, and in Germany he is obeyed.

I noticed, during 5 o'clock coffee hour in the big cafe on Unter den Linden, that the waiter was seating all the five girls with lipstick at a group of tables toward the back of the cafe. Of course, they were window tables, for the girls with lipstick wanted to be in sight not only of the men in the cafe but also in view of those passing along the street. The cafe wanted the business of the girls with lipstick, but, of course, it does not want them filling the tables overlooking the main boulevard where all the smart Berliners pass, so their window tables overlook the side street. I thought it was a nice point. The girls with lipstick were all fine Aryan types and had blondined their hair to point up the fact. I noticed all this as I sat down, but before my coffee came another girl came in and, although she had glossy black hair and wore no makeup, I noticed the waiter was very firmly escorting her to a table among those of the girls with lipstick. She did not take a window table but the waiter made her sit with the five painted girls. She ordered coffee.

Unlike the other girls, she kept her eyes demurely on her lap, and she wore no lipstick, had no imitation silver fox nor no big battered handbag. Also unlike them, she was Jewish.

Since I have come to Berlin I have been looking for evidence of mistreatment of Jews.

The official National Socialist position is that no physical violence is used, only firm enforcement of the anti-Jewish laws. I have so far seen nothing to contradict this. I might also add that so far I had seen no Jews in Berlin, and correspondents explain this is because all week they have been in hiding, few of them venturing out of doors.

Because just a year ago in Paris Vom Rth died, and this was immediately followed by Brown Shirt raids at night on Jewish homes and stores, the smashing of furniture and fixtures.

The Jews in Germany have feared that, what with the recent attempt on Hitler's life, the Storm Troopers might again observe the sentimental anniversary of Vom Rath's death with another display of firmness.

But so far I have seen none of this firmness and no brutality and no Jews, except the young girl who was so careful to keep her eyes on her plate as she sat quietly in her allotted place among the bold-eyed Aryan women with lipstick.

WHITE'S PLANE MEETS RAIDERS

HELSINKI, Dec. 11.—(UP) A Finnish transport plane flying from Stockholm with a number of passengers, including William L. White, son of the Emporia, Kan., publisher, postponed a landing at Aabo, on the southeast coast of Finland, today when Russian planes arrived simultaneously and started to bomb the town.

The transport turned back to Sweden. It was picked up by 15 Swedish fighting planes and escorted to Stockholm.

Later in the day it took off again from Stockholm for Aabo and landed there safely.

The Russian bombers dropped only one bomb on Aabo.

Japan Would Settle U. S. Claims For 10 to 20 Cents on the Dollar

Conversations With Grew Reveal Fundamental Difference of Opinion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A fundamental difference of opinion as to what constitutes settlement of American-Japanese difficulties has developed in the conversations between Japanese Foreign Minister Nomura and Ambassador Joseph C. Grew.

Japan, it is learned reliably, is willing to settle all outstanding American claims resulting from incidents in China.

The United States insists that only respect for the territorial integrity and sovereignty of China can guarantee respect for American rights in the future.

In other words, Japan is eager to "talk turkey" solely as between herself and the United States. She may desire to do so in order to improve public opinion here against the time when the Japanese-American commercial treaty expires January 26 and the Senate begins to discuss the resolutions of Senators Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, and Schwellenbach, Democrat, Washington, for an embargo on the shipment of raw materials to Japan.

Japan's offers to settle the direct claims of Americans are not regarded as generous. She is offering 10 cents to 20 cents on the dollar.

Yarnell Says Death, Destruction in China Exceeds Great War's.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, U. S. N., retired, said tonight that the Sino-Japanese war "has caused in two years and more of its duration, more death, destruction, misery and suffering than resulted from the great World War of 25 years ago."

He declared that 40,000,000 persons in China have been driven from their homes, and added, as a "conservative estimate, that between five and ten millions have died of disease, privation and starvation."

In an address prepared for the Massachusetts branch of the American Bureau for Medical Aid to China, the former commander of this country's Asiatic fleet said that "before the present war began, China was making definite progress in establishing a stable and progressive government."

"Had they been granted a few more years of peace," he said, "there is no doubt but that China would have become one of the stable nations of the world, and a stable democratic government in China would have been the greatest factor for peace in the far east."

Poles Dismissed In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(UP) The chief of the Polish press bureau in this country and three members of the embassy staff here were dismissed today as result of a reported tiff with the exile Polish government in France over the matter of foreign service appointments.

The press bureau chief Edward Weintal, said that he and his colleagues were given their walking papers "without notice."

Russian Attack Goes Forward.

HELSINKI, Dec. 11.—(AP)—In heavy fighting today along the entire Finnish battle front, Russian troops reached points from 40 to 60 miles from the border in some places but, a Finnish communique said, at a cost of many casualties.

The Finns reported three companies of Russians wiped out in one surprise machinegun attack, and counterattacks by fast-flying Finnish ski detachments.

The Russian advances, representing aggregate gains in 12 days of fighting with sharpshooting Finnish ski units along the snowy eastern frontier, were mainly in two sectors—just north of Lake Ladoga and several hundred miles farther north near Kuolojarvia, which the Russians took yesterday.

Their drive near Kuolojarvia carried today to Salla, just above the Arctic circle and 40 miles in from the border. Finnish troops withdrew from Salla and the Russians promptly burned the town.

White-clad Finnish ski scouts, gliding like ghosts through Karelian isthmus forests, today pierced Russian lines, military dispatches reported, to points about 20 miles from the frontier.

Farther north across Lake Ladoga, the Russians were said to be massing troops for a supreme effort to smash through Finnish defenses which have stalemated them for days.

TIN CAN TOURISTS GATHER

MRS. EULAH LONG DIES OF GUNSHOT

Coroner Calls Inquest for 11 O'Clock Today.

Mrs. Eulah Long, 45, of 29 Prescott street, N. E., died yesterday afternoon of a gunshot wound just below the heart, police reported.

Friends at the same address told Radio Patrolmen Carl Maddox and M. P. Cartwright they heard a shot just after Mrs. Long had excused herself from the room. Her body, with a pistol beneath it, was found on near-by stairs.

Coroner Paul Donehoo announced an inquest will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the J. Austin Dillon Funeral Home.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bowie, Abbeville, S. C., and a brother, Sam L. Bowie, Washington, D. C. The body is to be carried to Abbeville this afternoon for burial.

'RED' FINNS FIGHT WITH SOVIET ARMY, DURANTY WRITES

By WALTER DURANTY.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 11.—(By Wireless)—The Finns continue to resist stubbornly all along the front, but, despite their official comuniques tonight, it looks as if the Russians were halted mainly by the need to bring up fresh troops.

On the middle front, however, where the Russians are attacking Finland's "wasp-waist," there are signs of a Finnish counter-attack. The Russians now hold a line from Kuolo lake—Kuolo Jarvi, they call it, but "jarvi" is Finnish for lake—north of the Arctic Circle, through Salla, where heavy Red forces were reported two days ago, to the region of Suomosalmi, which is almost opposite Uleaborg.

Kuolo lake points northeast to Tornea, and the Russian drive in this sector is directed toward the narrow-gauge railroad from Kemi lake, along the Kemi river, to Tornea. It was earlier reported that the Russians had reached Kemi, but either that was a mistake owing to the fact that the Finns had evacuated the village there because of the aforesaid large enemy concentrations at Salla, or the Finns have actually recaptured it and have advanced eastward. Anyway, what was a considerable salient appears to have been reduced and the Russian line is now almost straight north and south, about 120 miles long.

A woman correspondent of the Dagens Nyheter, who seems to be doing a better job than most of her male colleagues, has just made a quick trip from the Karelian isthmus front to the center of the Finnish wasp-waist, from which she reports tonight that, among the prisoners taken there are "Red" Finns as well as Siberians.

Survivors of 1918-19.

These must be survivors or possibly sons of the Communist refugees who escaped to Russia in 1918-19, after the fratricidal and bloody war in Finland which ended in victory for Marshal Baron Mannerheim, aided by a Swedish volunteer corps and German regular divisions under General Von Der Goltz.

The present Finnish movements are a further indication that the Finns have realized the full menace, I need hardly add, which is fully appreciated in Stockholm, and a glance at the map will show why.

Fortunately, the coast railroad, which runs from the Swedish border at Haparanda to Tornea and Uleaborg down to Abo, is admirably equipped for the movement of troops and supplies, which can be rushed up to the front by the Tornea-Kemi Line and southeastward to the line from Uleaborg to Kontiomaki, which is a point somewhat southeast of Suomosalmi.

Cold to Freeze Marches.

It seems that the Russian northern thrust on this front, through Kuolojarvi toward Kemi, is the most dangerous, because the Russian communications are better behind it, and the further north it is, the more subject to frost, which is now reported to be about 10 below zero in that region.

A week of such temperatures will freeze the marshes and make them easy for passage of troops, convoys and light artillery and 10 days should allow passage of tanks and heavier guns.

But the Finns hold that the Soviets will have transport difficulties in moving trains of troops up here, while they are certain to suppose that, if they really meet Red Finns, the latter will lack proper military training.

Exiles Are Pathetic.

They are rather pathetic—these exiles from their homeland who fought for an ideal and lost their war and fled. And now—nourished by God knows what fantastic nonsense and misinformation—they go out once more to fight for their ideal, without any of them guessing that he is utterly exploited — the ideal and the doctrine behind it—by a sinister pact between the U. S. S. R. and Fascist Germany. Call them traitors and renegades—shoot them like dogs when you catch them—but I think they should be forgiven because they do not know.

Does the Kremlin know, I wonder, what Finland is like today and how the Soviet bombs on Helsinki have destroyed whatever remnants there might have been in Finland in favor of Soviet Russia and Soviet Russia's ideas?

Bombers Double-Edged.

A bomber is a double-edged weapon in fomenting social revolution, if the Kremlin really believes or has been led to believe that its raid on Helsinki 10 days ago might have scared the Finns into surrendering or raising the red flag of revolt.

The bombs fell mostly on workers' tenements, and anyone who has been under an air raid finds it quite impossibly difficult to think of the raiders as comrades and deliverers.

On the front north of Lake Ladoga, the Russians are making progress with their attempt to turn the Mannerheim defense line on the isthmus farther south, but there too, in that northern area, the defense lines are being multiplied by the efforts of the home population, many of whom refused to be evacuated, including women and youngsters, in order to stay and help.

Twenty years ago, in Latvia's war against the Reds, I saw women and boys in their early 'teens tugging stubbornly at ropes to haul a field gun into position so that their soldiers might have moments of rest and time to eat.

Ernest Hutcheson, Famed Pianist, Plays to Capacity Audience Here

Musician Presents Three Beethoven Sonatas, Expressing Poetic Side and Revealing Immense Store of Pyrotechnics; Runs Gamut of Emotions.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

What could be a nicer way to celebrate Agnes Scott's 50th anniversary than to present free to the public a series of lectures and recitals? I can think of nothing better.

One of these "gifts" of Agnes Scott to Atlanta's music-loving public was the rare treat of a concert by Ernest Hutcheson, renowned pianist and head of the Juilliard School of Music in New York City, presented in Bucher Scott auditorium last night. And the public expressed its appreciation by appearing in great numbers to make a capacity audience, and by voicing its enjoyment with prolonged applause.

Charming Personality.

Mr. Hutcheson is a charming personality, with a subtle gift of wit, and a steady flow of verbal description of music with an accent that could easily be thought English, though he is Australian by birth. His informal way of lecturing before his performances enhanced the joy of the evening immeasurably.

Mr. Hutcheson's program last night presented three Beethoven sonatas, and though one knew that he possessed a tremendous piano repertoire, with practically every composer of note for the piano represented in the compositions at his finger-tips, one felt that these three sonatas exhibited admirably his very versatile pianistic ability.

Sonatas Favorites.

The three sonatas were favorites, the "Moonlight," the "Waldstein," and the "Appassionata." The first movement of the "Moonlight" and the slow movements of the other two gave opportunity for expression of Mr. Hutcheson's poetic side, while the last movement of the "Moonlight" revealed an immense store of pyrotechnics, as did also the last movement of the "Appassionata."

The latter was especially masterpiece of pianism, for it ran the gamut of emotions and dramatic intensity, and Mr. Hutchenson delivered it as though every phrase spoke a message and the work was fired with passion. "The Waldstein" was also a noteworthy performance, demanding much artistically and technically and being fully gratified. His marvelous power of shading was particularly evident in this number.

For an encore Mr. Hutcheson played the Scherzo movement from Beethoven's E-flat Major Sonata.

PESO VALUE DROPS, BANKS STOP TRADE

Declining Oil Exports Are Blamed for Crash.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Banks suspended regular trading in the Mexican peso today after it fell about 60 centavos in relation to the United States dollar, reaching an approximate low of 5.65 pesos to the dollar.

The government's Bank of Mexico entered the market, apparently in an effort to cushion the fall, but it sold dollars at 5.50 for only half an hour and withdrew.

Business observers said the peso's fall had been caused by declining oil exports and increased purchases from the United States due to the collapse of the German-Mexican oil barter deal.

O. B. GRINER NAMED TO DOUGHERTY POST

The State Board of Penal Corrections announced yesterday approval of O. B. Griner as deputy warden of the Dougherty county public works camps, succeeding L. B. Herring.

Board officials said Griner was appointed by the Dougherty county commission and approved by the penal board "pursuant to the policy of the penal administration."

COCA-COLA FORMULA SOUGHT BY MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The formula for the beverage Coca-Cola became a subject of public controversy today between a group of Mexican bottlers and a federal department.

Recently the department asked for the formula. The bottlers went to court seeking an injunction.

In a statement tonight the department said it felt the public "should know the composition of the beverage," and had so advised the court.

MERCURY WILL DROP BACK TO 32 TODAY

The mercury will dip back to freezing this morning after several days of near-summer warmth, the United States Weather Bureau forecast last night.

Skies will be clear during the day, with a bright sun expected to warm things up during the day. The low forecast for this morning is 32 degrees. Yesterday's high and low were 58 and 48.

MEDICAL STAFF NAMES DR. TIDMORE PRESIDENT

Dr. T. L. Tidmore was elected president of the medical staff of Piedmont hospital at the monthly meeting last night. He succeeds Dr. J. R. Chiles.

Other officers elected included Dr. Guy C. Hewell, vice president, succeeding Dr. Tidmore in that office, and Dr. William R. Minnich, secretary, succeeding Dr. William R. Mitchell.

HUTCHESON HELPS YOUNG MUSICIANS

Gives Younger Generation Chance by Presenting Concerts.

The man who spends his time helping young musicians last night played three Beethoven sonatas at Agnes Scott College.

He is Ernest Hutcheson, for 63 years a pianist and still going strong. Today he is president of the famed Juilliard School of Music in New York and, backed by the Juilliard Foundation, he gives musicians of the younger generation a chance by presenting concerts in the music center of the Americas.

His interest in promising talent dates back to 1876 when, as a boy of five years, he trotted out on the stage of the town hall in his home city of Melbourne, Australia, and enthralled an audience with a solo on an organ approximately "one million times bigger than I was."

At 14 he went to Germany and there studied under a former student of Franz Liszt. Six years later he came to the United States and since then has been playing a piano in every nook and cranny of the civilized world.

POLIO POST GIVEN TO SCOTT CANDLER

Gets District Chairmanship Second Time.

Scott Candler has been named district chairman for the 1940 "Fight Infantile Paralysis" drive, Governor Rivers, chairman of the Georgia committee for the celebration of the President's birthday, announced yesterday.

This is the second time Candler has served as chairman for the Atlanta district. Under his leadership last year the district exceeded all previous records in raising funds to fight the dread disease.

NAVY APPROVES PLAN FOR RESERVE CRUISES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The navy announced today approval, subject to availability of funds and facilities, of a program of training cruises for naval reserve aviation squadrons aboard carriers of the fleet at least once every four years.

The department also approved, under the same conditions, a plan for training reserve divisions of the ninth (Great Lakes) naval district aboard ships of the fleet at least once every four years.

These were among the major recommendations of a naval reserve policy board convened here last March.

20 SUITS STOLEN FROM DRY CLEANER

Loss Discovered When Police Spy Open Door; Other Thefts Reported.

An open door, discovered early yesterday by radio patrolmen while cruising on Highland avenue, revealed the theft of 20 suits from the Adamson Dry Cleaning Company, it was reported at police headquarters.

Burdett Adamson, the manager, said entrance apparently had been gained by forcing the lock. He could not estimate the amount of the loss.

Another haul was reported by S. R. Foy, of 11 Fairfield Plaza, who said that clothing, jewelry and a gun, with a total value of more than $300, had been taken from his home during the night.

W. M. McCutcheon, a watchmaker, is wondering what the thief is going to do with them and also what he is going to do without them. He reported the theft of $100 worth of tools from a pressing club at 137 Luckie street, where they had been stored.

Two youths, Jack M. Hunt, 21, of 1215 Lucile avenue, and Hiram N. Davis, 18, of 878 Hampton street, were arrested on suspicion of forgery yesterday afternoon, at the request of J. D. Roseberry, manager of the Cain Street Motor Company.

Roseberry said he became suspicious after they had taken some blank checks. Detectives J. Hoyt Langley and Hunert Renshaw, who investigated, said that when arrested, five of them had been filled out for sums totaling $300 and all were signed with Roseberry's name.

COMMISSIONERS' REMAINING CASES PASSED FOR WEEK

Attorney Tells Court Lee and Moore Are Confined to Beds and He, Too, Is Ill Now.

Trial of three remaining Clayton county commissioners indicted for malpractice in office was delayed again yesterday when Solicitor Roy Leathers agreed to a continuance until next Monday.

Scheduled for hearing on five counts charged by the November grand jury were Commissioners W. S. Lee, H. Grady Moore, former board chairman, and Dr. J. R. Wallis. Yesterday's action was the second continuance granted them.

Plea was entered by R. E. Armistead, counsel for two of the Clayton officials, who told Judge James C. Davis that not only were Moore and Lee confined to their beds but that he also was physically unable to defend them at the present time.

Solicitor Leathers suggested that all cases then be continued until Monday morning. This was approved by Mr. Armistead, who said he would have his clients in court at that time if he had "to bring them on a stretcher."

Superior court juries already have found guilty verdicts on three of the five counts of malpractice against F. C. Cargile, present commission chairman, and E. L. Stephens. Both officials have filed for appeal hearings.

The action to postpone the remaining cases will not affect a decision last Saturday to delay a scheduled session of the DeKalb county grand jury and superior court until January or February, Judge Davis said.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS TO VISIT NYA SITE

State Administrator Lassiter Will Be Host on Trip Tomorrow.

Members of the Women's Division, Fulton county Democrats, will be guests of Dillard B. Lassiter, Georgia NYA administrator, on a motor trip tomorrow to Clarkesville, Ga., the site of the largest NYA project in the state.

Cars furnished by the NYA will leave from the Atlanta Woman's Club at 9 o'clock and all wishing to make the trip are requested to make reservations by calling Miss Georgia Pruitt at HE. 7445-W.

Mrs. Max E. Land, division chairman, announced yesterday that the trip will take the place of the December business meeting but that in case of rain it will be postponed and the meeting will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Henry Grady hotel.

Those who already have made reservations are Mrs. Land, Mrs. B. M. Boykin, Mrs. Calvin Shelverton, Mrs. Harry G. Poole, Mrs. R. L. Turman, Mrs. Chauncey Smith, Miss Georgia Pruitt, Mrs. S. R. Dull, Mrs. W. R. Simpson, Mrs. George Conklin, Mrs. Louis B. Eves, Mrs. Carolyn Barnes, Mrs. J. E. McRey, Mrs. T. C. Spencer, Mrs. Sidney Reeves, Mrs. Jefferson Wilcox, Mrs. J. W. Stevenson, Mrs. M. Graphic Scenes in Escape of 'Scarlett' and Friends From Atlanta Aglow With Flames

Scene at the station in Jonesboro yesterday when "Scarlett," "Melanie," "Wade," "Prissy" and little "Beau," in their pitiful equipage, reached journey's end in the historic flight from Atlanta as given in "Gone With the Wind." The episode was staged yesterday for news reels by The Constitution and the Jonesboro chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy.

of the populace were massed enthusiastically.

They will be exhibited throughout the country in "News of the Day," the newsreel of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer organization, as strictly spot news material in connection with the premiere here Friday of the long-awaited film made from Margaret Mitchell's sensational novel.

Four Thespians.

Four distinctly promising Thespians were in the roles. Scarlett was represented by green-eyed, auburn-tressed Molly Puckett, who sat erectly at the reins in a billowy gown of the period. A very winsome Melanie was Ida Louise Huie, similarly attired, who reclined on straw on the wagon floor as required by her part. Both of the young principals are but 16. Four-year-old Lowell Wooten played Scarlett's son, Wade, in blue overalls, sweater and straw hat. Prissy, the negro servant girl, was represented by grinning Leola Lyons, 13-year-old orphan, whose hair was especially braided in Civil War kinks by her aunt, Annie Kate Prothro, servant of Mrs. Travis. The infant Beau was a red-headed doll with a break in the back which required concealment in an antebellum towel.

The horse, Bucephalus, was superb. He was weary and tired when the journey began and it cannot truthfully be said that he picked up any on the way. He, with the triumph of wreckage which was the wagon, was provided by a connoisseur of Reconstruction times, Steve Hall, secretary-treasurer of the National Stockyards Commission Company, who asked only that it should be made clear neither the vehicle nor its motive power was representative of his company's offerings.

Skittered Down.

Four times Bucephalus and the wagon came skittering down the runway of the commodious trailer-truck also supplied by Brother Hall, and four times they were handed in again—the phrase is correct, i. e., handed in—and each time it seemed it couldn't happen again. But they were more durable than appeared, and were still intact when last seen en route home under the chairmanship of L. R. (Red) Harrison and his coworker, Gwindol Hawkins.

Traveling from point to point along the route, as may have been suspected by now, was done by motor. Mrs. Travis and Mrs. Lyle selected the incidents and locale to be presented. The horse and wagon were unloaded, the small actors bundled into their places, "Silence!" was called, and the cameras ground. When J. A. Bockhorst, A. S. C., cameraman, C. S. Paden, sound engineer, and Walter Winn, assistant cameraman, wreathed their intent countenances with satisfied smiles, everybody watched Bucephalus and wagon reloaded, then rushed to the line of automobiles, and was off for the next location.

In all, not more than four hours was consumed. Stills taken by Constitution and other newspaper cameramen indicated the completed film will be dramatic and moving, rivalling in interest the more complete presentation of the incident in the motion picture, "Gone With the Wind."

TENNESSEE PRISONER KILLED BY CELL MATE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 11.—(AP)—James Glidwell, prison record clerk, disclosed today that Durwood Birdwell, 18, a prisoner serving a one-year sentence for larceny and forgery, was stabbed to death in the penitentiary here Saturday night.

Glidwell said that Dalton Mayfield, 21, of Memphis, serving a five-year sentence for robbery, had stabbed Birdwell in the throat with a knife from a clothes cutting machine, causing almost instant death. He quoted Mayfield as saying he acted in self-defense during a fight in the cell jointly occupied by the two prisoners.

NRLB HOUSE PROBE SHOWS DISSENSION

tent and untrustworthy and at least twice has attempted unsuccessfully to get the board to discharge him.

2. Dubinsky telephonically complained to Witt that President Roosevelt did not do "a good thing" when he named Leiserson to the labor board and told Witt "that isn't what we pay our money for."

3. NLRB member Edwin Smith, on August 11, proposed court action to force Leiserson to perform his duties and participate in cases which originated before his appointment to the agency, or at least passage of a board resolution "condemning" Leiserson's refusal to participate in old cases.

4. NLRB Regional Director Elinore Herrick in New York protested on February 21, 1939, in a "personal and confidential" telegram to Chairman J. Warren Madden against an "indecent, destructive and un-American" NLRB investigation of her office and said that procedure followed was what "one might expect" from the OGPU (Russian secret police) but not from fellow administrators of an agency of the American government.

5. NLRB Regional Director Frank H. Bowen in Detroit wrote Benedict Wolf, Witt's predecessor as board secretary, in November, 1937, that "a weak case" was on file against the Aronsson Printing Company, so board agents "are trying to break down Aronsson rather than go to a hearing."

6. In September, 1939, Leiserson told his fellow board members he believed the San Francisco regional office "needs to be investigated immediately to get rid of partisanship." Leiserson said the offices' report in the case "puts the regional office in a ridiculous situation of making charges against itself."

7. A "confidential" memorandum to Madden from Leiserson revising his dissent in the disputed Chrysler bargaining unit decision, later reversed by the board in which Leiserson said he "tried to omit any criticism of members of the board" apparently at Madden's request. Leiserson said his original criticism was aimed at Witt, who, he said, "mishandled" the Chrysler cases as he "mishandled so many others."

Evasion Contended.

Representative Harry N. Routzohn, Republican, Ohio, accused Leiserson of "evading" the issue when the NLRB member dismissed, laughingly, Dubinsky's angry remark about the Alpena Garment Company case in Michigan where the board refused to certify the ILGWU on the basis of membership cards and ordered an election instead.

Leiserson finally said he believed that Dubinsky's reference to money was to campaign fund contributions, and that his anger was directed primarily at Mr. Roosevelt for appointing Leiserson to the board.

Leiserson opened his testimony with a 22-page prepared statement, defending the NLRB's record, admitting its shortcomings, and asserting that the board members now are improving their administration and their personnel. He said the AFL-CIO split complicated the board's work, and expressed the opinion that this conflict was responsible for much of the opposition to the law.

The 'Last' Dinner

But Cast Is Recalled To Make Additions to 'Gone With Wind.'

By ANNIE LAURIE FULLER KURTZ

OCTOBER 24, 1939.

Up early this morning — about sunrise—Wilbur went down across the creek on Forty Acres where he supervised the montage of Sherman's march to the sea. I went on Stage 12 where I had been asked to stay for the shooting of what we called the "sleepy-time at Twelve Oaks," a little added touch to the picture.

Seemed almost like old times with so many back. Vivien (Scarlett), Olivia (Melanie), Evelyn Keyes (Suellen), Bebe Anderson (Maybelle Merriwether), and Margaret Earley, (girl) — yes, and "Mammy" too! We worked till 9:30 p. m.. Had a delicious fried chicken dinner served on Stage 14 about 7 o'clock. We knew this would be the last time we'd be together on "Gone With the Wind," and that this was a sort of extra nice dinner—southern, too—given as a real farewell party.

NOVEMBER 10 AND 11, 1939.

"What! Another call sheet on "Gone With the Wind?'" I said to the boy as he handed me a piece of paper now as familiar to me as my own handwriting. "But we finished everything last October 24!"

"Oh, yeah!" said the boy grinning widely, "that's what you think!"

I picked it up and there it was—a call to work next day on an added scene to be done on "the Acres"—Wilbur had known of this and had been working on it for a couple of days, but we'd been so busy at our separate tasks that he forgot to mention it to me. He had gone somewhere with Jack O'Connor of the property department to select the archaic, wartime musical instruments to be used in this scene—he had also helped in selecting the cast — a bunch of boys to play in the band. So, on Armistice day—November 11, 1939, we did the last scene of the picture, the first one, that of the big fire, having been done December 10, 1938.

Tommy Kelly, of Tom Sawyer celebrity, was called in to play the fife in the band.

Mr. Selznick was very keen about this shot and stayed several hours on the set. Indeed, it is a nice little "bit" and adds considerably to this already impressive scene in front of the Examiner office when the news of the battle of Gettysburg is received and the casualty lists distributed.

she would not have a job even when she has recuperated her strength.

To keep this little group together until Mrs. F. regains her health fully and gets another job, a total of $40 a month is needed, and badly needed!

That's only $13.75 for rent, $20 for food, $3.40 for fuel, and $2.85 for clothing and incidentals. But it will hold this circle unbroken if generous Atlantans contribute that much to adopt this charming family.

Mrs. F. is a nice-looking person, a good saleswoman. She can earn her own way but right now she needs a helping hand. Won't you give a little this year to help tide Mrs. F. and Mary, Susan and Betty over this tough spot? You'll never regret it!

FIRST LADY EXPLAINS ABOUT MRS. M'NUTT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt failed to call on Mrs. Paul V. McNutt for an after-dinner speech at the Gridiron widows' party Saturday night—just because she didn't happen to think of it.

No offense was intended, the first lady told her press conference today, and it did not mean that she did not have the warmest, most pleasant feeling for the wife of the federal security administrator. Too, she said, the party was getting late and there were a great many who were not called on.

Anyway, Mrs. McNutt went along with Mrs. Roosevelt today to a musicale.

LIBRARY ENTERS 'SCARLETT' FETE

Displays 14 Foreign Editions of 'Gone With the Wind.'

The Carnegie Library yesterday entered into "Gone With the Wind" enthusiasm by placing 14 foreign editions of Margaret Mitchell's book on display in the main hall and featuring Atlanta Civil War days in other departments.

The exhibition included copies of the book in Japanese, Polish, Czech, Finnish, German, Italian, Norwegian, Spanish, Hungarian, Danish, Spanish, French and British.

The display represents the worldwide popularity of the story about Atlanta's Confederate history.

Other library departments will feature paintings, flags and relics of the War Between the States, lent by various Atlantans for this week.

LABOR AGENCY ROW TO BE AIRED TODAY

Personnel Committee Will Mediate Curtis-Huiet Dispute at 10 O'Clock.

The state personnel advisory committee this morning will mediate the case of Mrs. Maud Curtis, labor department examiner, who was suspended last Thursday by Commissioner Ben T. Huiet.

Meeting yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Curtis and Commissioner Huiet, the committee set 10 o'clock as the time for the hearing, which will discuss the latest dispute which has thrown state offices into turmoil.

Hearing Agreed To.

T. J. Lance, chairman of the personnel board, said both officials agreed to the hearing "as soon as posible," and are prepared to bring their cases before the body today. Mrs. Curtis, through her attorney, George G. Finch, petitioned for an immediate hearing soon after Commissioner Huiet announced his action.

In a letter to the examiner who studies applications for labor department jobs, Commissioner Huiet charged her with "lack of cooperation, insubordination, use of her office for personal benefit, and issuing statements contrary to the findings of the state auditor."

Five Days Have Passed.

This morning's hearing will mark the fifth day since the suspension was announced. Personnel board mediations usually are held within a five-day period following announcement, officials said.

The center of much controversy during the past several months, it is reported that Commissioner Huiet has been making vigorous efforts during that time to remove Mrs. Curtis from his department. Administration supporters, it is said, have been equally strenuous in urging her retention.

George Googe, of Atlanta, and Harry Nottingham, of Macon, with Chairman Lance, comprise the personnel board, which yesterday made no comment on possible action to be taken.

Today's Contributions.

Contributions are coming in far, far too slowly. Only a total of $28.50 reached H. H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution, the fund treasurer, yesterday.

These donors were:

Mrs. Henry Bauer	$ 1.00
M. D.	5.00
Julien Boehm	2.50
Cash (anonymously)	20.00
Total yesterday	28.50

In The Constitution today is the story of Opportunity No. 3,—your opportunity to help a mother who is trying to keep her three daughters with her and in school. She needs help. Bundle up a few bills and send them to Mr. Trotti.

Families Get All.

If you designate Opportunity Family No. 3, every cent you give will help her fight her battle for independence. And, let us assure you, every cent you contribute is spent for the neediest families. The Family Welfare Society, which co-operates with The Constitution, bears the administration expense. None of the Ten Opportunity fund goes for "everhead."

Make your own Christmas happier this year by giving something to the Ten Opportunity families. You'll feel better next year knowing your dimes and dollars are helping worthy people to defeat difficulties and get back on their feet.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 11.—(AP)—A workman was walking through Indiana University's physics building when a pair of pliars jumped from his pocket and went flying through the air.

HIGH COURT RULES EVIDENCE ILLEGAL IN WIRE TAPPING

Decision Handed Down in Mail Fraud Case; No Discussion Was Made on Ethical Grounds.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The supreme court ruled today that evidence obtained by wire-tapping cannot be used in federal prosecutions but did not discuss the ethical grounds that formed the basis of famous dissents by Justices Holmes and Brandeis when the practice was upheld in the prohibition era.

It dealt solely with interpretation of a law passed since those days—the federal communications act of 1934—which says:

"No person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance, purport, effect or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person."

Since the law was designed to regulate interstate communications, the government contended that the wire-tapping ban, known as "Section 605," applied only to such messages and not to telephone calls taking place entirely within one state.

The decision was rendered in a case involving three New Yorkers—Joseph J. Weiss, a lawyer; Martin Gross, an investigator, and Dr. Maximilian Goldstein, physician—who were convicted with others of using the mails to defraud insurance companies. For several months postal inspectors had their telephone wires tapped, recording the conversations.

U. S. COURT UPHOLDS MANTON DECISION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The supreme court refused today to review a patent infringement case decided by the New York circuit court of appeals while Judge Martin T. Manton, who later was convicted of selling judicial favors, was on the bench.

The original decision held that a cigarette lighter manufactured by the Evans Case Company, of North Attleboro, Mass., did not infringe a patent held by the Art Metal Works, Inc., of New York. Manton wrote the decision.

STATE DEATHS

S. W. MORTON.

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Dec. 11.—S. W. Morton, 63, former Summerville councilman and for a number of years a guard at the Chattooga county convict camp, died at his home here Saturday after a long illness. Services were held yesterday in Summerville Methodist church, the Rev. C. C. Cliett officiating. Interment was in Summerville cemetery. Besides his wife, Mr. Morton is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Ray Jackson, of Henegar, Ala.; Mrs. H. D. Barrow, of Atlanta, and Miss Faye Morton, of Summerville, and a son, Horace Morton, of Atlanta.

MRS. FANNIE R. CRAIG.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 11.—Mrs. Fannie Redd Craig, 54, wife of W. F. Craig, of the Valley section, died Saturday in a local infirmary. There survive, besides her husband, six daughters, Mrs. Horace Garvin, Mrs. Frank Harley and Miss Beatrice Craig, of Augusta, and Misses Hazel and Latisure Craig, of Aiken; four sons, Klencke Craig, of Pritchard, Ala.; William Craig Jr., of Augusta, and Neville and Haskell Craig, of Aiken, and a brother, Louis Redd, of Augusta. Where 'Queen' Carole, Who Rules Champ Heart Flutterer, Will Reign

The bedroom and the parlor of the "queen." Here are the rooms in the "royal suite" at the Georgian Terrace in which Clark Gable and his wife, Screen Actress Carole Lombard, will make their home while in Atlanta for the world's premiere of "Gone With the Wind," in which Gable plays the role of "Rhett Butler." Miss Lombard, whose charms captured the No. 1 feminine heart flutterer of the movies, is shown in the insert. The picture on the right shows Miss Lombard's bedroom in the Gable suite on the ninth floor, while on the right is the sitting room onto which Gable's room opens.

City's Annual Christmas Pageant Falls Victim to 'Scarlett' Fever

Because of Premiere Festivities, Sunday's Affair Will Have Only One More Rehearsal But the Show Is Expected To Be Best Ever.

Atlanta's annual Christmas pageant, like everything else for miles around, has fallen a victim to "Scarlett" fever.

Not to be produced until 2:30 o'clock Sunday, final dress rehearsal will have to be held tomorrow night, Director Eugene J. Bergmann said yesterday, as the winded members of the Junior League polka ensemble and others move into the auditorium Wednesday for last rehearsals for the "Gone With the Wind" ball pre-dance program.

Preparations Complete.

At yesterday's rehearsal, Bergmann commented on the excellent preparation which had been made for the pageant, expressing the opinion that Sunday's performance would be the best work in pageantry Atlanta has seen in a long while.

Tonight, John D. Hoffman, director of the pageant chorus, and Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, pageant organist, will rehearse in preparation for Tuesday evening's dress rehearsal.

No Admission Charge.

There will be no admission charge for the performance and no offering will be asked, Bergmann said. The doors of the auditorium will open at 1:30 o'clock that afternoon, allowing an hour for the seating of the public. Atlanta Boy Scouts will act as ushers.

The entire two-hour program will be broadcast.

Commenting on the performance last night, Mayor William B. Hartsfield said:

"This pageant has established itself as one of the major annual events of the life of the city. It is a community project in which the churches and schools and the city at large unite in reverent acknowledgement of the Christmas season. It is my confirmed belief that the pageant is rendering a tremendous benefit to all our people."

Invocation By Yost.

Dr. John L. Yost, president of the Atlanta Evangelical Ministers' Association, will offer the invocation, and Councilman John A. White will read the mayor's proclamation before the performance.

Dr. Charles A. Stauffer is chairman of the script committee, and Dr. Lester Rumble, casting committee chairman. George Simons and J. Lee Harne are chairmen of the production committee, Miss Ruth Wiegand and Miss Annie Grace O'Callaghan, chairmen of the school committee. Dr. Louie D. Newton is general chairman.

POLICE TO GUARD FILM CELEBRITIES

the Georgian Terrace hotel itself. That's where the stars will reside.

Fear Wild Mob.

These are in addition to the hundreds of policemen, state patrolmen and national guardsmen who will hold back over-enthusiastic hero worshipers studio officials fear will tear the clothes from their stars when they appear publicly on arrival, at the ball, and at the premiere.

Plans for guarding the Hollywood luminaries were worked out yesterday at a meeting of city, state, county and film officials. Lines of march and traffic also were set up.

It all had to be done in a hurry for the Hollywood greats begin arriving tomorrow. Ann Rutherford (Mickey Rooney's sweetheart in the Hardy Family series), who plays "Careen" in the film version of Margaret Mitchell's book, will be the first arrival. She gets in at the Terminal station at 10 o'clock tomorrow accompanied by her mother. They are coming from Lexington, Ky.

Miss Leigh and Miss DeHavilland will arrive by plane at 4:15 o'clock tomorrow at the airport. Gable, Miss Lombard and studio officials will arrive around 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Parade to Await Gable.

Immediately after Gable's arrival Thursday afternoon, he will be hurried into town for the grand parade through downtown Atlanta in which all the Hollywood stars and movie officials will ride in open cars so every one can see them—at least this once, in person.

A change in the parade starting place was announced. It will now begin at Whitehall and Trinity avenue, Mayor Hartsfield said. The route will remain the same, to Five Points and thence out Peachtree to the Georgian Terrace where a platform has been built on which welcoming ceremonies will take place.

Keys to the City.

The presentation of keys to the city to the stars and film officials will be preceded by the raising of a great Confederate flag by one of the six Confederate veterans who will form a guard of honor for Gable on the platform.

Then Governor Rivers will present the visiting governors present after which Mayor Hartsfield will introduce the stars and M.-G.-M. officials and present the stars of the "Gone With the Wind" film with sets of dishes telling the history of Atlanta for the past 100 years. The dishes are presents from the City of Atlanta.

Mayor Hartsfield announced that in case Gable's plane arrives so late that it will be dark when the parade reaches the Georgian Terrace, giant floodlights would be turned on, making the triangle just as brilliant as in mid-day. The lights will be there anyway for the newsreel cameramen.

Confederate Flags Placed.

Placing of Confederate flags on the light posts around downtown Atlanta and in front of the auditorium was begun last night and the job will be completed today so that the town will be dressed in Confederate costume when Miss Rutherford leads the parade of stars to the city tomorrow morning.

Wesleyan College alumnae, who will act as official hostesses at the premiere Friday night, were announced as follows: Misses Lelia Akin, Martha Akin, Eloise Ainsworth, Virginia Broome, Mary Hall, Ruth Hall, Virginia Harvey, Elizabeth Jones, Annie Laurie Kurtz, Marjorie Potts, Ruby Rosser, Charlotte Starr, Virginia Starr, Ida Stephens, Betty Withers, Jane Robertson, Jane Stillwell, Jacqueline Howard, Mildred White, Gladys Morrison, Sara Davison, Betty Aycock, Dorothy Stephens, Jennie Duke and Mesdames Walter Carrard, George Elyea, Ransom Burts, W. R. Bentley, Esmond Walthall and Charles Schilling.

Represeniatives of Wesleyan College will also ride in the star parade Thursday afternoon dressed in the costumes of the sixties.

GRADY DOCTORS CLOSE WOUND IN MAN'S HEART

Grady hospital physicians yesterday took two stitches in the heart of a negro man who had been stabbed and last night his condition was described as "fair."

The patient is Ralph Huff, 32, of an Auburn avenue address. Janie Holmes, 20-year-old negro, of Raspberry alley, has been arrested on a charge of suspicion in connection with the case, police stated.

High School Leader Confesses Beating 14-Year-Old Girl to Death

That tonight was the only reason Warner Blewett, 17, president of the Colwell, Iowa, High school senior class would give from his hospital room here for what officers described as the slaying early today of Dorothy Carter, 14, on a lonely Floyd county road.

Sheriff B. F. Atherton said the youth, who is recovering from the effects of poison allegedly self-administered, signed a confession that he beat the girl to death with a shotgun stock. He is under arrest on a murder warrant.

The body of the Carter girl, who was president of the high school freshman class, was found in the Blewett automobile after H. J. Blewett, the youth's father, had been attracted to Warner's room by the groans of the poisoned youth.

Officers said the boy and girl had dated before and Sunday night went to a movie here.

Shocked by the tragedy involving two leaders of the little school numbering only 45 students, high school officials abandoned most of the Monday class periods.

Colwell, a village of only 100, is in extreme northeastern Iowa about 27 miles from the Minnesota line. The principals in the tragedy were members of widely known and prosperous farm families.

BOMB CASE WITNESS TOLD TO GET GUARD

Attempt Is Made To Dissuade Her From Going to Trial.

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 11.—(AP) District Attoreny Andrew Patton said Miss Mary Jo Miller, chief witness in bombing trial here, was instructed to obtain a police escort in Chicago tonight.

Patton said there had been an attempt to dissuade Miss Miller from returning to Dallas to testify in the trial of E. R. Wyatt, former school principal, who is accused of having placed a bomb in Miss Miller's room here July 25, 1938.

The trial opens tomorrow. Miss Miller is a physical education teacher in an Oak Park, Ill., school.

Patton said a man "called her several times in Chicago, tried to see her personally, and attempted to dissaude her appearance here." She was instructed to get a police escort to the Chicago airport where she boarded a plane for Dallas at 6:15 o'clock.

The district attorney was informed of Miss Miller's plight in a telegram from her. She boarded the Chicago plane under an assumed name.

Down in the Major's Office

By RALPH McGILL

Almost every day there is a little talk down in the Major's office.

Always there is some talk about the newspaper. But we manage, of course, to wonder how the hunting will be this year and how great it would be if we could get away and go fishing.

There always is talk, too, about Georgia and about the people in it, many of them persons we know.

The other day the Major said:

"You know, we often have said how appreciative and humble we feel in the face of a job of getting out a daily newspaper for more than 100,000 subscribers. It is estimated at least four people read each paper. Wouldn't it be great if we could invite them to come and see us? Wouldn't it be fine if we could shake hands with them and meet them, some of whom have been taking this paper for more than half a century?

"The Constitution," he went on to say, "really is their newspaper. They've made it! We work here getting out a newspaper read by more than 400,000 individuals. It is their newspaper.. Without their help, we wouldn't go on.

"We try to please them all, but, being human, know we can't please all the people all the time. But we try to give them a good, honest newspaper. We make mistakes. But we try our best.

"I wish there were some way all those people could come in our door and meet us and get to know us. Maybe they'd like to see how the newspaper comes out, and meet some of the men and see the departments at work."

Well, of course, we knew all our subscribers couldn't do that. But it looked as if the Major had an idea. He is there in that office every day, devoted to the newspaper he owns, devoted to the people who read it. And why not? His grandfather and his father before him did the same thing, devoting their lives to the paper and the state.

So, we got to thinking. If all our more than 400,000 friends can't come to us, we decided to go to them. We are going to prepare a series of full page stories and pictures about various departments of The Constitution.

None of the ads will be about men who know anything about the advertisers. The advertiser can see, though, what a stake he has in the desk men, the press room men, the rewrite men, the reporters, the linotype operators, the stereotypers, all of whom create a newspaper which has attracted a loyal audience for almost three-quarters of a century and which today attracts more than 400,000 intelligent, above-the-average-income group of readers.

But these ads will be for you—a visit to The Constitution.

It's your newspaper. You make it. We appreciate your help.

And so, this really is an invitation from Major Clark Howell, editor and publisher, to visit The Constitution. If you really can come that will be fine.

If you can't come—you can get acquainted through this series of ads. Next Tuesday you will meet some of the news staff.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

FEDERAL AGENCIES HAMPER BANKING, OFFICIALS CHARGE

Secretaries Score Lending by Federal Groups; Say Private Units Are Able to Supply Money.

Delegates to the 11th annual conference of the secretaries of southern banking associations, now in session in Atlanta, yesterday criticized what they described as the "multiplication of governmental lending agencies that are seriously hampering banks."

Singled out for private banking scorn were the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Commodity Credit Corporaion, and production credit associations.

The bankers asserted that the nation's banks are amply provided with resources to furnish all sound loans needed to carry on legitimate businesses.

Work Change Advocated.

Presiding over the round table discussions that began yesterday morning and will continue through this afternoon, was Ralph Fontaine, Louisville, secretary of the Kentucky Bankers' Association.

During the morning session bankers advocated a change in the method of computing working hours for bank employes, generally favoring an amendment to the Fair Labor Standards Act in which the work average would be based on a 30, 60 or 90-day period rather than the present "between pay-day basis."

They pointed out that while bank employes work long hours in rush periods, such as cotton, peach and tobacco marketing seasons, they have no call for lengthy hours in off-seasons and that over a period of two or three months, the undertime could very well be matched against overtime work.

The association comprises secretaries of banking associations of 15 southern states. Eleven secretaries, five presidents, and other association officials from 11 states are represented at the meeting.

Delegates were entertained at luncheon at he Atlanta Athletic Club yesterday by the Georgia Bankers' Association; and at dinner at the Capital City Club last night by the Atlanta Clearing House Association. They will be guests of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta at luncheon today.

Meeting will be adjourned this afternoon after the election of new officers.

Banking Association Officials Meet for Conference

Five presidents and a vice president of southern state banking associations are attending the annual conference of the Secretaries of Southern Banking Associations now in session at the Winecoff hotel. From left to right, seated, are Herbert Huckabee, Fort Valley, president of the Georgia Bankers' Association; C. M. Thompson, Lancaster, president of the Kentucky Bankers' Association, and Joe H. Scales, Perry, president of the Florida group; standing, F. E. Grier, Greenwood, vice president of the South Carolina Bankers' Association; Sam M. Richard, Lake Charles, head of the Louisiana organization, and Maclin F. Smith, Birmingham, president of the Alabama Bankers' Association.

Man, Owing Death Seven Months, Still Living, Planning for Holidays

Was Big Noise at Own Wake in July; Doctors Said He Could Live for Three Months Last February; Improvement Noticed Recently.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Claude J. Bradley gave death another push in the nose today and laughingly planned for Christmas and New Year's.

Bradley has a right to chuckle. He's supposed to be dead. Or at least downhearted. But he's neither.

It was 10 months ago that doctors told him he was due to die within two or three months—from cancer.

The Irish-hearted, 53-year-old Bradley started right in to fight. Now—

"I think I've got this thing licked," he said in his Flatbush home, pounding his fist on the nearest wood. "Why, I've felt better the last three months than I have for the past 15 years. This is going to be a real Christmas for me.

"I'm going to have a Christmas tree—I've invited in my friends to help me share it. And I'm busy right now sending out 500 Christmas cards, and fixing presents for my daughter.

"But there are lots of people in this world I wish I could invite to my Christmas party. Why—I've had letters from all over the world. I'm amazed."

His amazement started after the day last July when his friends staged a "wake" for him—with Bradley at the piano, the life of the party.

TOMMIES WEAR SMART UNIFORMS

British Troops Now Garbed in Better Grade Material, Uniform in Shade.

The wool textile trade is proud of the khaki now being turned out for British troops.

Not only is a better grade of wool going into it than went into khaki during the World War, but the problem of uniformity of shade which gave the industry plenty of headaches from 1914-18 now has been mastered.

The word "khaki" is a Persian term and means "like the earth." The first ever worn by British troops was a coton uniform, for use in the tropics, dyed with almost anything which would give it a light brown shade, including diluted coffee.

Odd Shades Once Prevailed.

During tne early part of the World War, khaki was a blend of seven colors—brown, olive, white and indigo, with touches of red, green and yellow to give the cloth "tone." This resulted in a yellowish-green fabric of eccentric shading. It was rare for two soldiers of different companies to have uniforms of identical hues, judged by scientific color standards.

Toward the close of the war, a committee of experts appointed by the war office reduced the number of colors used to three—olive brown ,indigo and white, used in percentages of 80, five and 15 per cent. This was a great improvement.

Today, it is said, British khaki is still further improved. It consists of three shades, brown, olive and white, but the proportions are now 35, 35 and 30. This means that 35 "slivers" of wool—the term used for the long loose continuous "rope" of combed wool fiber which eventually are spun into yarn—are dyed brown, another 35 "slivers" are dyed olive and 30 "slivers" are of a shade of white.

Result Called Unique.

The "slivers" then are passed through a machine which blends them into another continuous "sliver" with the colors mixed in the exact proportions of the formula. When the "sliver" emerges as a yarn, it not only has a unique shade which no dyeing in cloth could produce exactly, but the uniformity of the shade throughout the entire production is assured.

The dyers who dye the "slivers" have to work to exact shades as indicated on the color chart of the British Color Council and they must submit their work to government experts who pas sit only if satisfied.

The dyestuffs needed both for the woolen and cotton army fabrics are produced in Britain, but they all were placed on the free trade list early in 1938 "just to make sure."

CHARLES R. WALGREEN SUCCUMBS IN CHICAGO

THIRD TERM VITAL TO U. S., SAYS ICKES

Secretary Calls President 'Prescription' To Save Democracy.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Lambasting a group of potential Republican presidential candidates, Secretary Ickes said tonight that a third term for President Roosevelt was "the prescription for the preservation of our democracy against the perils that threaten it."

The secretary of the interior made his remarks in a speech prepared for delivery before the Town Hall of Essex county. General Hugh S. Johnson, speaking on the same program, said in a prepared address he believed the United States would "not only preserve our democracy but also make it the source for a rebroadcast of that precious institution over all the world when the present feverish madness is past."

Ickes asserted that an attempt was being made to "disguise as a moral crusade, the attack on the democratic principles that we enjoy."

"As always in a crisis," he continued, "many messiahs are offering themselves to lead us into the promised land.

"There is Dewey (Thomas E. Dewey) with his 12 brain-trusters—count 'em!

"There is Mr. Gannett (Frank E. Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher) who wants to save the constitution by putting a booby bird into the White House.

"There is Senator Taft (of Ohio) who hopes that the American people have forgotten what happened to the country the last time that we tried to follow a Roosevelt with a Taft.

"Until the inhumanity in Cleveland, Ohio, there was Governor Bricker.

"And there is Senator Vandenberg, of Republican Michigan, wrapped in the flag and uttering long bumbling words."

STATE BRIEFS

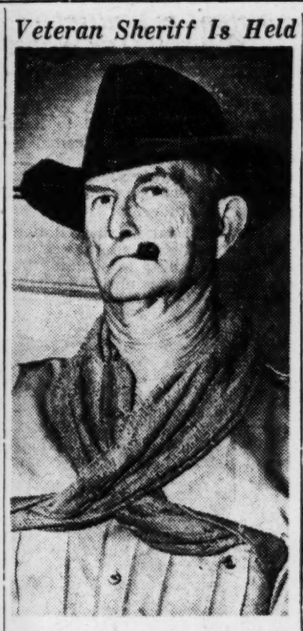
TWO STILLS SEIZED.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 11.—Gwinnett county officers and two internal revenue officers raided and destroyed two illicit distilleries eight miles southeast of here yesterday afternoon. One was a small outfit. The other carried a capacity of 300 gallons a day, and was operated by a 10-horsepower steam boiler, with 30 vats (250 gallons of beer to the vat). Three negroes were taken into custody, and a white man made his escape.

$200,000 FOR WORKERS.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Dec. 11.—Griffinites will have more than $200,000 extra money for Christmas buying, a survey of several industrial firms which sponsor Christmas Savings Clubs revealed today. These firms will pay out approximately $150,000, which, added to $55,000 a local bank put in the mail Saturday night, will bring the total over the $200,000 mark.

Veteran Sheriff Is Held



SHERIFF SAM H. KITCHENS.

SHERIFF OF TWIGGS IS HELD IN SLAYING

Deputy Wounded Also as Climax to Quarrel in Macon.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 11.-(AP)-Five pistol shots fired in a moving automobile in uptown Macon killed one Twiggs county man, criticially wounded a deputy sheriff and sent Twiggs Sheriff Sam Kitchens to jail today on an open charge pending further inquiry.

City Detectives W. H. Bargeron and W. C. Bowden said Kitchens, a veteran Twiggs county sheriff, told them he shot the other two to defend himself in a quarrel climaxing an eight-hour-long drinking party.

The slain man was Forest Wimberly, 60-year-old constable, and the wounded man was Clyde Bridges, a deputy sheriff.

"I had drunk at least a quart of whisky, and so had they," the detectives quoted the sheriff as saying as they held him pending a coroner's inquest.

"I shot both of them. If I didn't kill them, I wanted to. If I didn't, I will when I can."

Kitchens, aged 58, has been sheriff for 11 years. Bargeron and Bowden said he told them he, Wimberly, Bridges and two women had been together since mid-afternoon yesterday and a quarrel developed over a woman.

He related to the detectives, they said, that he was in the rear seat unarmed and Wimberly, sitting in the front seat with Bridges, the driver, turned on him with a pistol. He snatched the weapon, he said, and fired two shots into Wimberly's head.

The sheriff said he saw Bridges make a move as though to draw his pistol and he shot Bridges twice in the head also.

Ousted Highway Chairman To Give His Case on Air

W. Linton Miller Issues Statement From Hospital That He Will 'Take Radio Time' as Soon as He Recovers From 'Cuts and Bruises.'

By The Associated Press.

W. Linton Miller, ousted by Governor E. D. Rivers from the state highway chairmanship and twice forcibly ejected from the office, said yesterday he would "take radio time to give the true facts in the case."

Miller issued a statement from a hospital where he went for treatment of "cuts and bruises" after he was dragged feet first from the highway offices Thursday. He was ejected the first time December 3, shortly after the Governor ordered him removed and appointed Lawson L. Patten, of Lakeland, a fellow townsman, to the highway commission.

Patten later was named chairman to succeed Miller.

The ousted chairman said he would go on the radio as soon as his doctor permits. He said he expected to take approximately the same time as Rivers did Saturday night in a radio presentation of his side of the controversy.

Rivers asserted on the radio Miller had a "malignant case" of "gubernatorial measles" and would never "regain" the road chairmanship as long as he was Governor. Earlier he had accused Miller of using the road job to build up prestige as a potential candidate for Governor.

The fight over the chairmanship will move Saturday to Nashville, Ga., where a three-judge court will seek to determine who the legally-constituted members of the highway commission are and whether Miller or Patten is rightful chairman.

BOY SCOUTS JOIN GROUPS IN DRIVE OF BIG BROTHERS

Troop Members Will Meet at Drive Headquarters Dec. 22, 23 To Deliver Baskets to Needy

Boy Scouts are the latest to volunteer help in the Big Brothers annual Christmas charity drive, A. L. Belle Isle, general chairman, announced yesterday.

The Scouts will gather at the Big Brother office, 251 Peachtree street, December 22 and 23 to check and deliver Christmas baskets to the homes of the needy.

The Boy Scouts is one of the many agencies who have joined the Big Brothers to make this Christmas the merriest in Atlanta's history. Legionnaires, members of high school clubs, Sunday schools, the entire membership of churches have volunteered their aid to raise money and deliver food and toys to the needy during this holiday season.

Invaluable aid has been given the Big Brothers by John Fulton, Frank Gaither, and the entire staff of radio station WGST. Each night during the week the station sponsors a Big Brother broadcast telling of the dire need of many Atlantans; receiving cash contributions, and taking orders for the special edition of The Atlanta Constitution that will be sold next Sunday.

All proceeds from the paper sale and from the charity ball to be staged at the city auditorium December 20 will be lumped together and used to buy a merry Christmas for Atlanta's needy.

Papers will be sold by volunteers, who reversing the old American tradition, will leave their offices behind them and become newsboys for the day.

TROLLEY EXTENSION WORK IS STARTED

Ground Is Broken for Car Line to Girls' High School.

Ground was broken yesterday for a five-block trolley line extension which will bring street cars to Girls' High school for the first time in the institution's history.

Those taking part in the ceremonies included Mrs. Fred L. Tippen, chairman of the transportation committee of the Girls' High P.-T. A., who has been working on the project for more than two years: Mrs. W. P. Dillin, P.-T. A. president, and Miss Mary Moore, school principal.

It is expected that the extension will be in operation by the time Christmas holidays end January 2.

DEL RIO RESIGNS TO RUN.

QUITO, Ecuador, Dec. 11.—(AP) Provisional President Carlos Arroyo Del Rio resigned today to campaign for the presidency in elections scheduled for January 11. The constitution forbids officeholders except congressmen to run for office. Before leaving office he appointed Andres Cordova, president of the chamber of deputies, as provisional head of the nation.

VATICAN APPOINTS TWO U. S. BISHOPS

Several Changes Made in American Posts at Pope's First Consistory.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Pope Pius XII appointed a new cardinal camerlengo of the Holy Roman church, created 13 titular bishops and obtained approval of the cardinals on two proposed canonizations at his first consistory today.

Although the pontiff appointed the Rt. Rev. Albert Fletcher as auxiliary bishop of Little Rock, Ark., he did not announce a successor to the late George Cardinal Mundelein as archbishop of Chicago.

Cardinal Lauri Elevated.

Lorenzo Cardinal Lauri was named camerlengo of the Holy Roman church, whose duty it will be to act as administrative head of the church in the period between the death of the pontiff and the election of his successor.

Among the changes in the United States were the appointment of the Rt. Rev. Fletcher, vicar-general of Little Rock, Ark., as auxiliary of Little Rock and titular bishop of Samos, and the retirement of Bishop Vincent Wehrle of Bismarck, N. D., to become titular bishop of Teos.

Notre Dame President.

The Very Rev. John F. O'Hara, president of Notre Dame University, was named titular bishop of Melasa.

Pope Pius also conferred the pallium, woolen scarf of office, on new archbishops, including the Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, archbishop of New York, and the Most Rev. Joseph Schrembs, archbishop of Cleveland.

Bishop O'Hara also was appointed head of the Catholic Religious Welfare organization for the United States army and navy.

CO-ED, 19, IS CHARGED WITH ASSAULT TO KILL

FORT COLLINS, Col., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Miss Lois Jeanne Vannorsdel, Colorado State College student, held in technical custody after the shooting of Walter Lyons, Aggie football star, was charged today with assault with intent to kill and assault with a deadly weapon.

Lyons, shot November 29 at the girl's apartment, is recovering slowly. His left lung was punctured by one of three revolver bullets.

SEEK 40-CENT WAGE.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Dec. 11.—(AP)—A campaign for a minimum wage of at least 40 cents an hour and intensified organization of South Carolina mills was indicated today as an outcome of the South Carolina conference of the Textile Workers' Union of America (CIO) here yesterday.

ADMIRAL IS HONORED FOR SQUALUS WORK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Charles Edison, acting secretary of the navy, today awarded the distinguished service medal to Rear Admiral Cyrus W. Cole, commandant of the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard, for his service in the submarine Squalus rescue and salvage operations.

The award carried the citation: "By his efficient administration, exceptional ability in planning the operations and his untiring energy in the rescue of the survivors and the salvage of the stricken submarine, he displayed leadership and perseverance of the highest order."

MAN WITH $68 IN CASH DIES AT RELIEF OFFICE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—(AP) An unidentified man, his arms loaded with a sack of apples and a bag of flour, dropped dead today as he walked out of a relief station where he obtained the food. Police found $68.86 in his pockets.

TWO MEN HELD IN AUTO SNATCH

Owner Thrown Out When He Resisted, Is Charge.

Two men were held at the city jail yesterday on complaint of Clarence Williams, of Whitehall terrace, who charged they threw him out of his automobile Sunday and drove away.

They were listed as A. O. Leathers, of a Capitol avenue address and R. H. Davis, of Crew street. Leathers was booked on charges of drunk and disorderly, assault and battery, drunk and reckless driving, operating a motor vehicle without a driver's license, speeding, larceny of an automobile and failing to stop at a stop sign.

Davis is charged with disorderly conduct, assault and battery and larceny of an automobile.

Williams said the two men got into his car at Capitol avenue and Rawson street, ordered him to get out and then threw him out when he protested.

Evelyn Keyes' Eleven-Stanza Poem Reprinted in Joe Brown Magazine

By Sally Forth.

WITHIN the pages of the current issue of "The Bronwie," the monthly magazine published by students at Joe Brown Junior High school, is a poem of 11 stanzas written by Evelyn Keyes. The poem is entitled "Revenge," and, as you know, Evelyn is the talented Atlanta girl who plays the role of Suellen O'Hara in the moving picture version of Margaret Mitchell's story, "Gone With the Wind."

Evelyn was 15 when she wrote the poem, the romantic flavor of which shows up when she brings the princess and a camel driver together at a well on the Sahara desert. The poem is produced in Evelyn's own handwriting, with original drawings to illustrate the stanzas. She composed "Revenge" while in Mrs. C. M. Neal's speech arts class, after the assignment was given by her teacher.

During her school days at Joe Brown High, Evelyn wrote original verses on birthday cards for friends, and won a medal on the "History of Music," which demonstrated her remarkable knowledge of music. She plays the piano exceedingly well, and is decidedly gifted in dramatics.

Beautiful and attractive Evelyn is a natural blonde, but dyed her hair black to play the Suellen role in the technicolor moving picture of Margaret Mitchell's world-famous book. She is the daughter of Mrs. Maude Keyes and the sister of Mrs. M. O. Williamson, who are overjoyed at her home-coming tomorrow.

When Beatrice saw the photograph in the rotogravure, she exclaimed, "I think Mister Brady could have played Mr. Rat Butler just as good as the man they got to play him in the moving picture."

DECEMBER 28 will be a high light in the holiday social calendar for guests planning to attend the party at which a group of attractive lieutenants will entertain in their bachelor quarters at Fort McPherson. Sally was so inspired by the clever invitations to this affair that she can't resist penning a description of them.

Scrawled in varicolored crayon on a large square of yellow paper, they read:

"We all would like for U all to Kom on around to a PARTY in the North Wing Play House on December 28 at VIII and ½ o'clock. Tell your Momy that Blank will Kum for U. Lettuce Kno if you Kan cum, Please U Gotta Ware Play Klose."

Beneath the above appears the nicknames of the hosts, "Butch" (Lieutenant A. W. Haves), "Happy" (Lieutenant A. J. Maroun), "Sonny" (Lieutenant M. F. Smith), and "Skippy" (Lieutenant O. E. Ursin).

THE picture of lovely Anne Suttles, made on the occasion of her debut luncheon on Saturday and appearing in The Constitution yesterday, showed the debutante wearing a lei of flowers over her modish costume.

The lei, fashioned of pale pink carnations, came all the way, via the Hawaiian Clipper, from Honolulu, where the lei is the popular and accepted mode of wearing flowers. It was the gift of Madame Marguerite Leilani, of Honolulu, who is a lifelong friend of the Suttles family, and who had it made especially for the auspicious occasion.

WHEN Josephine Sanders was three years old she started to Mademoiselle Madeline Groleau's French kindergarten, where she began lisping French before she could even speak English plainly.

This winter Josephine is making her debut, and her first teacher devoted a number of hours in making a rare cake for the French tea given recently by Mrs. Joe Brown in honor of this debutante. This cake, called "Baba au Rum," was made in a large round mould and decorated in fruits and chestnuts and mounds of whip cream.

Mademoiselle Groleau says that its unusual flavor is the result of frequent saturations of the sauce during a period of 36 hours. To do this requires a schedule and an alarm clock, but the debs declared that the rum sauce gave a flavor worthy of a day and night's vigil!

Mrs. L. L. McMullan was re-elected president of the St. Charles Garden Club at the recent meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Reuben A. Williams on St. Charles avenue. Mesdames L. L. McMullan and Henry Johnson assisted.

Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. McMullan for the ensuing year are: Mrs. William Scurry, first vice president and flower show chairman; Mrs. James V. Andrew, second vice president and program chairman; Mrs. L. A. Smith, recording secretary; Mrs. P. A. Aicklen, treasurer; Mrs. Samuel G. Hunter, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Henry Johnson, publicity chairman.

Committees will be appointed and plans for the year outlined at the January meeting.

The nominating committee included Mrs. Howard C. Jones, chairman; Mrs. Alvin L. Richards and Mrs. A. A. Watson.

Mesdames T. L. Bishop, Lucile Kelly, R. M. Berry, C. P. Todd, J. S. Justus, L. W. Medlin and Miss Agnes Thompson, visitors, were introduced and welcomed by Mrs. L. L. McMullan, president. Mesdames T. O. Andrew and J. T. Floyd, new members, were welcomed into the club.

In the monthly flower show, Sanford Landers won the trophy for the best specimen. Artistic arrangements were Christmas decorations, and the trophy in this class was won by Mrs. L. L. McMullan for an arrangement of magnolia branches, studded with small frosted electric bulbs burning, to represent magnolia blossoms.

N. C.

Amoma Class Party.

The Amoma Class of the Baptist Tabernacle met recently at the church with officers present.

Plans were made for the Christmas party, which will be held at the home of the teacher, Mrs. R. E. Weinmeister, 195 Poplar circle, N. E., on December 21. For-Get-Me-Nots will be revealed at the party.

Mrs. Legare Davis To Fete Visitor

Among parties planned in compliment to prominent visitors who will be in the city to attend the world premiere of "Gone With the Wind" is the luncheon at which Mrs. Legare Davis will entertain Thursday at the Capital City Club.

The honor guest on this occasion will be Mrs. Allan Taylor, of New York City, formerly, of Atlanta, who, as Lois Cole, is assistant editor of the MacMillan Company.

Other special out-of-town guests will be Mrs. George Brett Jr., Mrs. R. M. Brett, Mrs. A. G. Blanton, Mrs. E. B. Coleman, Miss Katharine Brown, representative of Selznick International Pictures, Inc., of New York City, and Mrs. L. W. Robert Jr., of Washington, D. C.

Inman Park Club.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson spoke on her recent trip to Bethlehem.

Mrs. Booth To Head East Lake Garden Club Next Year

At the recent meeting of the East Lake Garden Club at which Mrs. J. J. Nicholson, president, was hostess at East Lake Country Club, the election of officers was held.

The newly elected officers include: President, Mrs. E. L. Booth; first vice president, Mrs. W. W. Cole; second vice president, Mrs. J. C. Kyle; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Brown; recording secretary, Mrs. W. C. Moseley, and treasurer, Mrs. Theron White.

The luncheon table was decorated with large white candles, pine boughs and cones. Instead of place cards, Mrs. Nicholson used small tulip plaques with an appropriate garden verse.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Nicholson gave a resume of the club's activities for the year. Reports of work done by the various committees were read by the chairmen.

Winners in flower arrangement contest held in November were Mesdames J. J. Nicholson, J. C. Kyle and W. E. Franklin and each was presented with a crystal bubble bowl. Mesdames L. S. Kelley, D. C. Akers, W. C. Moseley, W. E. Franklin, W. Sam Smith and Thomas B. Robertson were presented with orders for one Etoile de Holland rose bush each, for being 100 per cent correct on the horticulture quiz in November.

Short talks were made by Mesdames Myers Loveless and C. A. Moye, honorary members of the club.

As an expression of appreciation for her leadership during the past two years, Mrs. Nicholson was presented with a copper vase.

Miss Anne Harris Joins Debutante Club

Miss Anne Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Harris, is the newest acquisition to the current Debutante Club, and will be central figure at a series of social affairs during the holidays.

Miss Harris with her parents returned recently from Europe. Miss Harris was attending school in Florence, Italy, at the outbreak of the European war, and was prevented from returning immediately to the United States.

Miss Harris will attend the numerous parties planned for debutantes during the holidays prior to leaving Christmas Day for Dallas, Tex., where she will visit friends. Upon the debutante's return plans will be made for her formal presentation.

Continuing the series of social affairs honoring debutantes will be the breakfast Saturday at which Miss Martha Ridley will be hostess at the Henry Grady hotel honoring Miss Virginia Willis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Willis Sr.

Included in parties yesterday for the debutante coterie was the bridge-tea at which Mrs. Carling Dinkler Jr., was hostess in compliment to Miss Peggy Dutton, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer C. Dutton.

Present were—Misses Dutton, Madeline Adair, Alma Wliby, Bolling Spalding, Mary McGaughey, Anne Suttles, Margaret L'Engle, Lillian Klein, Jane Osbun, Martha Frost, Jean Oliver, Mary Virginia McConnell, Selma and Rebecca Wight, Josephine Sanders, Elizabeth Groves, Constance Knowles, Florence Jones, Julia Block, Marilyn Lockwood, Margaret Winship and Mesdames John Witherspoon and George Carroll.

Misses Selma and Rebecca Wight, debutante daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Wight, shared honors yesterday at a Russian luncheon at which Mrs. Hal Davison was hostess at her home on Avery drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens Are Honor Guests.

Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Champion and Dr. and Mrs. Gene Nardin were hosts at an open house on Sunday at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stevens Jr., whose marriage took place recently in Coraopolis, Pan.

A silver bowl filled with red roses and white narcissi centered the table in the dining room, and silver candlesticks held red tapers. Mrs. Frederic E. Stevens Sr. presided over the coffee service, and Mrs. John Dennis poured tea. Assisting in serving were Misses Anne Scott Harman and Frances Woolford.

Gay Christmas Program Planned For Veterans at U. S. Hospital 48

While soldiers of Europe and Asia are celebrating the Christmas season in pillbox and trench, veterans of the last World War at U. S. Hospital 48 here will enjoy one of the most elaborate programs of entertainment ever arranged. Beginning with religious services and Christian militant music by the Salvation Army on December 17, the series will close with a New Year's party on the evening of December 29.

The programs will consist mainly of special parties given by service organizations and entertainments featuring well-known singers, dancers, comedians, musicians and orchestras. The programs will be given in the recreation auditorium at the hospital and will be carried to bed patients in the various wards.

A prominent feature of many of the entertainments will be the distribution of cigarettes, cigars, refreshments and gifts offered by the various service organizations acting as sponsors of the patients.

A motion picture will be shown on Monday evening, December 18, and the following night a stage play sponsored by the East Point post of the American Legion will be given. The program will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

A joint party will be sponsored by two Atlanta chapters and one auxiliary of the Disabled American Veterans. All sponsors will participate in the largest party of the series at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, December 22, and the annual "Christmas Frolic" will begin at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening, December 23.

Lullwater Club To Decorate Home

One of the outstanding events of this week will be the ideally decorated Christmas home by the Lullwater Garden Club on Wednesday and Thursday at 1192 Ponce de Leon avenue.

A distinctive feature will be the authentically decorated dining table of the era of "Gone With the Wind." The details will be unique and unusually beautiful.

At twilight each afternoon Christmas carols will be sung by the junior members of the Garden Club, under the direction of Mrs. Thomas M. Campbell. Many beautiful and artistic Christmas presents will be on display in the ballroom. Mrs. Paul Duke and Mrs. Marion Benson will demonstrate the many phases of Christmas table decorations.

Miss Eleanor Te Bow Marries Mr. Roberts

Miss Eleanor Te Bow became the bride of James Roberts at a ceremony taking place Sunday at West End Baptist church following the 11 o'clock service. Dr. M. A. Cooper read the marriage service before the altar which was artistically banked with palms, ferns and Easter lilies.

A musical program was rendered by Miss Josephine Johnston, organist, who accompanied Mrs. Lillie Belle Wooten, soloist.

The maid of honor and the bride's only attendant was Miss Sarah Gilliland, her cousin. She was gowned in a model of dusty pink alpaca fashioned with shirring across the front and a long waistline in the back. Her accessories were wine-colored and she wore a matching turban with a veil and a shoulder spray of talisman roses and swainsona.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, J. E. Te Bow, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Boyce Roberts, his brother. She wore an attractive model of Boy Blue alpaca fashioned with a round neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves with the yoke extending out to the shoulders. She wore a navy blue turban with a face veil and matching accessories. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls. On her shoulder she wore a spray of deep purple orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. J. E. Te Bow, the bride's mother, wore a becoming model of orchidee alpaca featuring a high neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves. She wore a black turban and matching accessories and a shoulder bouquet of pink roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. J. A. Roberts, the groom's mother, wore a model of navy blue crepe fashioned on becoming lines with which she wore black accessories. She wore a shoulder spray of pink roses and swainsona.

Mrs. Bishop Names Winners of Awards.

Mrs. E. L. Bishop, chairman of the committee of awards of the local Camp Fire Girls' council, announced that 23 girls were examined for rank recently and completed their requirements. The committee serving included Mesdames Lyle Campbell, Robert Mizell, Frank Phillips, O. T. Clark and Miss Emily Lloyd.

Miss Ann Seitzinger was awarded the highest rank in the organization, that of Torchbearer Craftsman. She completed the requirements in Indian lore and presented her material in a handmade book, with a wooden cover on which she had placed the cross log and flame, the insignia of the Camp Fire Girls. Miss Seitzinger has been a member of the Idaka group, now at Girls' High School, for four years, and last year served as president of the All City Girls' Council. Last year she was awarded Torchbearer Craftsman in Literature. She is one of three girls now active in the Atlanta council who have this rank, and the only girl in Atlanta to have Torchbearer in Indian Lore.

Misses Betty Weinschenk and Martha Lindsey passed the requirements for Firemaker's rank. Misses Jean Clark, of Avondale, Beverly Deihl, of Idaka group, and Lida Walker, of O'Keefe Junior High School, passed the second rank, Woodgatherer.

Those passing the first rank, Woodgatherer, were Misses Grace Raffalovich, Charlotte Kerr, Nancy Lee Drummond, Thelma Jo Kerr, Polly Anna Phillips, Roberta Maclagan, Pamela Hayes, Betty Jean Goolsby, Margaret Louise Fisher, Patty Divine, Helen Cottongim, Charmain Martin, Ella Marie Sutton, Phyllis Gorham, Betty Jane McMullen, Marianna McCoy and Mary Elizabeth Jackson.

The next meeting of the committee of awards will be held on January 27, at 9:30 o'clock, at Camp Fire headquarters at Davison-Paxon's. The regular scheduled meeting on December 30 has been cancelled due to Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Johnson Fetes Peachtree Club

Peachtree Garden Club met recently with Mrs. Edwin Johnson, Mrs. James D. Robinson, president, presided.

Mrs. Prince Webster reported progress on the wall being built around "Woodland," the wild flower garden maintained by the club. Mrs. V. R. Manley reported progress of the clean-up program along Peachtree road. Mrs. Frank Neely gave the club a list of garden books describing contents and points of interest. Mrs. Sam Inman, program chairman, introduced Hubert Owens, head of the department of landscape architecture at the University of Georgia.

He spoke on the "Founders' Memorial Garden," now under construction in Athens, and used pictures and plans to demonstrate his talk. He announced that a miniature model of the gardens will be on display at the Garden Center after Christmas.

Mrs. Jesse Draper told of two honors bestowed upon the club by the Garden Club of America. They have asked for detailed plans of the year's horticultural program that was beautifully worked out by Mrs. Arthur Harris. They also requested for exhibit a metallic Christmas wreath made by Mrs. Malcholm Fleming and Mrs. Jesse Draper is requested to make and send a boxwood wreath.

Mrs. Robinson urged members to plant now for the spring flower show. Mrs. Jesse Draper's paper on holly was read by Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun. The three arrangements in niches were done by Mesdames Preston Arkwright, Morris Brandon Jr. and Charles Sisson, all using Christmas materials.

Mrs. E. B. Worsham Elected President.

Mrs. E. B. Worsham was re-elected president of the Avondale Garden Club at the meeting held recently at the clubhouse. Other officers include Mrs. C. C. Sloan, vice president; Mrs. Lee Green, secretary; Mrs. George Wall, treasurer.

A Christmas lighting and decoration contest will be sponsored by the club, with first and second prizes going to the most attractively decorated homes; and a prize will be awarded to the business houses in Avondale Estates for the most attractive decoration. All judging to be from the outside. Judging will take place between Christmas Eve and New Years Eve.

Mrs. Worsham announced the club won first place in the recent table decoration contest held at a department store. Mesdames S. L. Jones, H. M. Van Devender, E. L. Traylor, and V. F. Leach were in charge of the decoration.

Mrs. W. Eugene Harrington gave a talk on Christmas decorations, stressing simplicity and strict adherence to the architectural design of the home in planning decorative motifs, inside and outside. Mrs. Harrington judged the monthly flower arrangements, and awarded Mrs. H. M. De Vender first place, and Mrs. John F. Buffington second place.

OPERA STARS LEAVE TO SING IN MACON

Lehmann and Melchior Present Informal Concert Rehearsal.

Madame Lotte Lehmann and Lauritz Melchior, two of the world's greatest singers of German music, left yesterday afternoon for a concert last night in Macon, after spending the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Hecht and Miss Margaret Hecht at their home on Peachtree Battle avenue.

Atlanta friends of the two artists heard the singers in an informal rehearsal Sunday afternoon as the opera stars with their accompanist, Paul Uhlanovsky, practiced songs by Schubert, Schumann and Mendelssohn, which they will present in joint recital in Carnegie hall in New York in January.

In Macon last night they were scheduled to sing Schumann duets, and love scenes from the two Wagnerian operas—the music of the first act of "Die Walkuere," which begins with Siegmund's "Wintersturme Wichendem Wonnemond," and continues through the act; and the scene between "Elsa" and her bridegroom in the first scene of "Lohengrin's" third act.

Melchior was to sing songs of Scandinavian and German, while Madame Lehmann's program called for groups in German and English.

Fears Tongue Will Slip Again, Slices Off Tip

SILOAM SPRINGS, Ark., Dec. 11.—(UP)—His tongue got him into trouble so Roland Wells, an employe of John Brown University here, sliced off the tip of it and kept salt in his mouth for two days to prevent bleeding.

The act occurred 10 days ago, Stewart Springfield, vice president of the school, revealed today. Although Wells' speech was impaired, he suffered no other ill effects, Springfield said.

"The only explanation he gave," the school official added, "was that his tongue got him into too much trouble."

SweetsFeaturing Fruits Become Healthful

By Sally Saver.

Candy there must be, and plenty of it to complete the Christmas scene. Little candy balls to decorate the tree, bonbon dishes filled with candy to add a note of festivity to the decorations of the house and, of course, cheery boxes filled with candies to present to friends as Christmas gifts.

Candy-making isn't hard if you have the right equipment and if you do not resort to guessing. The successfuly candymaker uses a dependable recipe, follows it carefully and measures accurately. Testing candy in cold water for soft ball, hard ball, is useful, but not entirely trustworthy. If at all possible, use a candy thermometer. Thermometers take the guesswork out of cooking, and if you'll follow my advice you'll sit right down and write Santa Claus a letter asking him to bring you some cooking thermometers, among them one for making candy. One piece of equipment almost as necessary as a thermometer is a pan large enough and heavy enough to prevent scorching.

Orange Fondants.

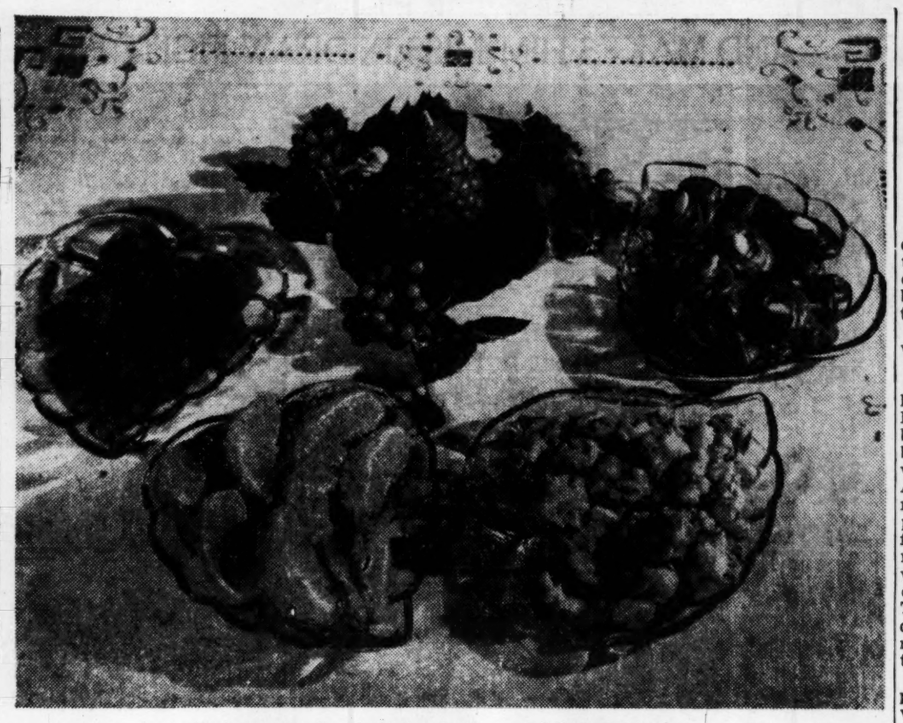
3 cups sugar
1-2 cup evaporated milk
2-3 cup orange juice
1-4 cup butter

Combine and cook in saucepan until mixture comes to a boil. Cover and continue boiling slowly about three minutes to dissolve any sugar crystals which may begin forming on sides of pan. Uncover and cook very slowly without stirring, to the soft-ball stage, 240 degrees. Pour onto buttered platter. Cool until mixture retains a dent made by the finger. Beat or stir, with a spatula or large spoon until fondant is smooth and creamy. Roll into balls. Vary as follows: Top with walnut meats to make orange nut creams; add coconut to make orange coconut creams.

Uncooked Fruit Caramels.

1 cup raisins
1-2 cup figs
1-2 cup stoned dates
1 cup walnut meats
1-2 cup candied orange peel
6 candied cherries (optional)
2 to 4 tablespoons orange juice

Wash dried fruits. Put through food chopper with the nuts. Moisten with orange juice, using just enough to hold fruits and nuts together. Pack into buttered pan. Chill overnight in refrigerator. Cut in squares and dust with powdered sugar. (To dust, put powdered sugar in a small paper bag. Drop candy squares into bag, a few at a time, and shake.)



Christmas candies featuring fruits are wholesome sweets.

New Basic Fashion

By Barbara Bell.

It's safe to predict that you've never worn a more truly becoming dress than this lovely, basic fashion (1878-B). It is beautifully designed to make your figure look slender and softly rounded. The front panels of the bodice are cut in one with the skirt, accenting height. Gathers at the side of the bodice take care of becoming bust fullness.

The only trimming is a row of buttons down the front. The V-neckline is a perfect background for your pet jewelry. Those sash ends in the back may be tied in a flat bow, or to simulate a bustle. Velvet, wool broadcloth and flat crepe are materials in which this design makes up particularly well.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1878-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4 3-8 yards of 39-inch material for three-quarter sleeves; 4 5-8 yards for long sleeves; 4 1-8 yards for short.

Price of Patterns, 15c. Price of Pattern Book, 15c. Do not send stamps.

Lonely Divorcee Is Advised To Write Her Ex-Husband

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

Someone suggested (as a joke) that I write to you and I took is seriously as you can see. If you were a divorcee, insanely lonesome, with no family to be really interested in you, what would you do to find some understanding man who would perchance be as lonely as you? I am sure there are hundreds of them in this town. I've been back home for a few weeks and find most of my old friends married and the females think I should take a back seat. I'm not bad looking, have a good education and am a splendid cook.

PEACH.

Answer:

Sister, I'd write to my ex-husband, explain my predicament and urge him to come at once. There's your best chance to pick up a lonely man without treading on anybody's tender toes. There's no time to be lost; for if you don't move quickly to solace your lonely ex-husband some other gal may move in to solace him.

It has been said that the average divorced woman goes through a period in which she has grave doubts as to the wisdom of the course she's chosen. Naturally the doubts attack her when loneliness has got her down. Even though that husband seemed to be a poor excuse of a man when she had him in town, it's dollars to doughnuts that in retrospect he appears to better advantage. Exceptions of course.

What with the stage show having a long run and the movie a longer one, nearly everybody has seen Clare Booth Brokaw's "The Women." After several years the story is sort of smudged in my mind; yet one thing stands out clearly; those divoced and divorcing women, at home and at Reno, whistled bravely enough but every time anybody punched them, out came a wistful little remark that showed they were whistling through the graveyard.

And so, lonely divorcee, this is no joking answer to your question. If that ex-husband is honest and sober—even half way decent—write to him and urge him to come at once.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

The boy friend is the reckless, lovable type and of course I love him. He's been drinking for several years but says he will stop if I marry him. I know I could never be happy with a husband who got drunk on occasions. If he quit now, how long would I have to wait to be sure the habit was broken.

ANXIOUS.

Answer:

They don't quit for love nor for marriage, my girl. No use to kid yourself or let yourself be kidded. However, if you can persuade the young man to go to a psychiatrist and let the psychiartsit find out why he began to drink, why he continues to drink, also if there is fair chance of removing the cause and freeing him of the habit, then you can put an intelligent time limit on the probation period.

Otherwise, you are dependent upon a miracle, and nobody knows when a miracle will be worked with a weak, reckless, lovable man who loves liquor and resorts to it when he feels inadequate to the demands life makes upon him.

Exercise You Get FromHousework Is Not Slimming

By Ida Jean Kain.

Some one came out the other day with the cheerful observation that "housework is all the exercise a woman needs." It seems as if that should be true, but appearances are undeceiving!

Housework is so far from being specific exercise that it can't even be counted on for slimming the hips. What the average Mrs. America needs is one good exercise for the throatline, one for the arms, one for the midriff and two for the hips.

Any woman past 30 needs an exercise to keep the throatline from slipping. Only by keeping the muscles of the throat column strong can the contour be smooth and unwrinkled.

You probably are wondering why on earth you need more arm exercise! It's all because housework skips the triceps, located on the backs of the upper arms . . . and that's why the arms get so flabby!

If housework took in the muscles of the waist and abdominal girdle, you wouldn't have any trouble holding your waist down to a trim 24 inches, and you would have a naturally flat front line. You would also have a hipline that measured two, or at the most three, inches larger than the bust. But do you? Well, here are the exercises that will do for your figure what housework doesn't!

For the Throatline.

Stand erect with the neck stretched so that you feel a definite pull in the muscles at the back and the sides of the neck. Slowly turn the head over the right shoulder, chewing like a bunny as you turn. Hold for a second, then slowly turn toward the left and over the shoulder. Return to starting position and relax. Repeat and relax, 10 times.

Then the Triceps.

Stand facing the wall and a few inches out from it, palms of hands flat on the wall and turned so that fingertips are almost touching. The hands should be about chest-level, elbows turned out. Keep the abdominal muscles pulled up, hips tucked under, as you lean toward the wall, very slowly, resisting slightly with the arm muscles. Push away from the wall and continue the exercise 15 times.

And the Waist and Tummy.

Sit on the floor with the legs straight out on the floor and as wide apart as possible. Sit perfectly erect, with the trunk and hips at a right angle, and pull up with the lower abdominal muscles. Clasp the hands on top of the head, elbows straight out at the sides. Bend at the waist only as you try to touch the right elbow to the right knee. Straighten up and touch left elbow to left knee. What housework does that!

Finally the Hips.

Remain sitting on the floor but have the legs together and straight out in front, hands out on the floor at either side. Lean slightly backward, but keep the abdominal muscles up, as you roll away over on the left hip, shove with the hand, and roll back over on the right hip. Continue rolling for 50 counts.

"Give and Take" Is Important In Bridge

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Every successful bridge partnership, sooner or later, learns the lesson of give and take . . . of command and obey.

The principal task, during the bidding, is knowing exactly how and when to take over command; how and when to surrender command; how and when to obey.

Note how command passes back and forth between partners in the following deal:

FIRST-ROUND BIDS.

North bids one diamond, assuming command.

East overcalls one heart, passing control on to partner, West.

SECOND-ROUND BIDS.

THIRD-ROUND BIDS.

North now bids four hearts. A bid in opponent's suit showing first round control of hearts and taking command.

East doubles for penalties. East now commands the East-West forces.

North responds five notrump, showing two aces, but South is still in command. East passes.

East suddenly bids seven hearts. South passes. This is a forcing pass, commanding North to either bid seven spades or double opponent's seven heart bid. West passes.

North doubles seven hearts for penalties and takes command. East passes. South passes. West passes.

Let the Doctor Tell You What Is Wrong

By Dr. William Brady.

From the chraracter of the requests coming in every day, for this and that ailment or vague complaint, I infer that the diet business must be pretty good—for the quacks who engage in it.

For instance one correspondent writes:

I have an inactive liver . . .

And I, Ol' Doc Brady, wonder how any one determines that his liver is inactive. Does he see spots before his eyes, or does he feel a bit despondent about life and the way they're running the country? Anyway the correspondent has arrived at that conclusion and I suppose I had better refrain from further debate about it. Sometimes readers are pretty stern when I venture to question the accuracy of the diagnosis they submit They remind me that's over my depth—they'll attend to the diagnosis, all I'm to do is send along the diet.

Knowing diet does wonders, our patient correspondent continues, I would like a leaflet on colitis and a diet also. I believe it is my present diet that keeps my mouth and lips sore . . .

Now it would have been fairly easy to cope with the problem had the correspondent stuck to the inactive liver. But the moment he dragged in colitis I knew I was licked.

Seriously, this correspondent, from the non-medical point of view, seems well above the average grade of intelligence. I fancy he would smile at the absurdity of expecting a doctor to prescribe treatment on the basis of the information given in the letter. Yet he seems to think it should be a simple matter for a doctor to advise what one purporting to have inactive liver and colitis should and should not eat.

"Inactive liver" or lazy liver, as already avowed, is a complete mystery to me. In fact I don't believe it ever happens, outside of an almanac. "Colitis" may be almost anything the victim's fancy suggests at the moment.

This correspondent errs in a familiar way, and in citing the complaint as an example I hope other readers may learn something from it to the advantage of their health and assurance. The correspondent, like a great many patients consulting a physician in person, instead of telling the doctor of what he complains, such as pain here or numbness there, hissing noise in the ears or twitching or trembling in the neck, leaving it to the doctor to interpret the symptoms together with the objective findings of his examination and arrive at an opinion as to the nature of the trouble and what to do about it, attempts to interpret the symptoms himself, without the help of a proper physical examination, and offer the doctor a ready-made diagnosis—or rather a very poor guess—to fool with.

Don't try to tell the doctor what ails you. Rather tell him what you complain of, in the simplest words you know and leave it to the doctor. If any guessing is to be done he can hit much more closely than any layman can, especially a layman so biased as the patient himself.

Traditional Gifts Of Christmas Season

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

Within the memory of most grandmothers living today, Christmas presents once consisted usually of an apple and an orange, some nuts and hard candies and maybe a home-made stocking gift or so. But those, of course, were the days before fast refrigerated trains made fruit in winter such an everyday matter as it is today . . . so grandmother wasn't as neglected as it sounds today. On the other hand fruits and nuts have been the traditional Christmas gift since time immemorial.

So don't shake your head ominously over the modern Christmas with its avalanche of gifts. It is in keeping with the current rhythm of living itself when manufactured things are the order of the day. Weeks of breathless thrilling bustle over gift buying replaces in this day and age the excited pre-Christmas kitchen doings in days when all the Christmas sweet-meats and delicacies had to be made at home.

Speaking of the Christmas cooking—the turkey as the king of the feast is rather modern and wholly American. The boar's head is the old poetic traditional feast of an English Christmas though an "ancient sirloin" later became "the standard of English hospitality," as Washington Irving reports. Another stately old English idea about Christmas was the peacock pie, made with the bird's head, with gilded beak, sticking out of one side and the fan tail in all its glory out the other. The stuffed chine of pork, the saffron and currant cake were other symbolic Christmas dainties in old England.

The Christmas wassail bowl, oft passed around even in American families on Christmas eve, originated as a ceremony beneath fruit trees to assure a bountiful yield the next year. Traditionally it was a large bowl of cider with toast in it which was carried in a procession to the orchard. Cups of the cider were poured around the roots of the tree while bits of the toast were placed on the branches, then the wassailers drank the rest of the cider.

MY DAY: "See America First" Is Spurred by War

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—Friday afternoon, in New York city, I spent an hour with my son, Elliott, who was in an automobile accident recently. I must say that the loss of two front teeth does cause rather a change in his appearance and, in addition, he still has to keep his leg up. He and Ruth were so fortunate not to be more seriously hurt, that we can only be devoutly grateful in spite of what they have suffered.

In the evening I went to a dinner given by some people interested in "The Open Road." This group of young men tried originally to promote education and understanding between this country and Europe by arranging tours at a minimum cost and giving people the opportunity of really knowing people of their own kind in their homes abroad. Now that the war has put a stop to these vacation trips, they are attempting to do something which I think is of great value to our education as citizens in this country.

They propose to take graduate students, people who will be teachers or doctors or nurses or public officials, to study different parts of our own country. This will be of great value to them, because they will see that various parts of this country have to contribute to other parts of it, and they will also see the difficulties which exist in different regions. Since this group of people will be the group who leads in various communities, this knowledge will spread rapidly.

I hope very much that they will be able to raise their modest budget, for it is, I think, one of the best educational projects, besides being a very pleasant way to spend a vacation.

Our flight down yesterday morning was smooth and the day was beautiful. I arrived in time to talk over some plans for the women's committee for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis campaign. Then a few people came up to lunch and in the afternoon I visited the bazar being held here for the benefit of relief in Czecho-Slovakia. They tell me that it is almost impossible now to bring over any of these embroideries and glasswork done by people over there. Fortunately some of the people who are established in this country have not left their art behind them, but are continuing to do the same kind of work in their new homes.

Mr. Max Gordon and Mr. Moss Hart gave several of my guests a great thrill by coming to tea. They were here to attend the Gridiron Club party. A number of ladies were here for the Gridiron "widows'" party, which takes place on the same night. One young lady extracted a promise from Mr. Hart to take her backstage when she goes to his play, for this is an experience which she has always coveted.

In the evening we all had a pleasant time, laughed at our own peculiarities as shown in the skits given by the Gridiron "widows" and an other group, and then enjoyed Miss Helen Howe in her professional monologues, which are exceptionally interesting and well done.

Star's Traveling Outfit Is Smart in Black, Gray

By Sheilah Graham.

Madeleine Carroll of the films wears this suit of gray covert cloth with black velvet lapels. The four-seam skirt has a bias flare, and the jacket is worn over a shirt of black and white pin-stripe taffeta. Black antelope is used for the hat and other accessories.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.—Madeleine Carroll, who says she is not traveling anywhere at the moment, has nevertheless bought herself a tricky traveling outfit—"just in case."

Of gray covert cloth with black velvet lapels, the suit, designed by Edith Head, has a four-seam skirt with a bias flare. The high-lapel treatment is important and the jacket is worn over a tailored shirt of black and white pin-stripe taffeta. Black antelope is used for Miss Carroll's hat and other accessories.

Enormous pockets on very full and very slim skirts, giving the latter a look of "hips," are just the thing, according to Orry-Kelly, Warner Brothers designer. Next spring and summer will see pastel velvet, lace and shirred ribbon pockets on the skirts of buffant organdies and chiffons. A charming example, worn by Miriam Hopkins in "Virginia City," shows black velvet on a printed blue challis, the pockets matching ribbon ties on her poke bonnet. And another get-up couples pockets and chin straps, with a frock of gray wool and navy suede pockets, and a gray pillbox with navy chin tie. Another cute pocket idea is the cigaret slits on the inside of a bolero jacket.

Jane Wyman wears glasses again in "Brother Rat and a Baby," just as she did in "Brother Rat," and illustrates Perc Westmore's dictum that girls who wear glasses should keep their brows uncovered by wearing the hair away from the face, and halo hats or wide-brimmed picture hats that sweep up in front, fur toques and turbans. All of Jane's hats in the picture are in halo style.

Something new in cocktail bonnets is Ann Rutherford's snood of red velvet. Instead of the open mesh, the snood is of solid velvet and ties on top of the starlet's head with a wide taffeta bow. Miss Rutherford, better known as Andy Hardy's sweetheart in M.-G.-M.'s Hardy family series, wears the cap with a pencil-slim black velvet dress which has a fitted bodice draped around the waist to end in a pleated bustle bow, lined in matching red velvet.

Helen Gilbert was the fashion center of attraction at a recent formal affair. She wore a cream velvet period frock with fragile valenciennes lace edging a tiny velvet apron that tucked under the square-necked, fitted bodice. Her coat was a tiny white bolero of ermine.

Yet another evening "sweater" from the Myrna Loy collection. It is in a soft gold angora of the fitted cardigan type, with slide-closing up the front to a high, collarless neckline. Very effective is the rich embroidery in plastron effect in gold and opalescent beads. The M.-G.-M. star wears a matching skull cap which is worn far back on the head with the hair arranged in halo curls.

Everyone is supposed to go quaint in gray the rest of the winter and next spring, says designer Howard Shoup. He intends to use gray linen and combine it with a huge yellow felt hat for a Priscilla Lane outfit.

Talking about Priscilla, she has an evening jacket in natural camel's hair, embroidered in matching sequins, which is quite a new way of combining sport and formal wear.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Are coral lilies hardy in an open border or rock garden?

A. Yes.

Q. Can grapefruit and apricots be crossed?

A.No; they are too widely separated botanically to permit crossing.

Q. Who wrote the famous editorial, "Is There a Santa Claus?" which was published in the New York Sun in 1897 in response to the question sent to the paper by a little girl?

A. Frank P. Church. A mimeographed copy of the editorial may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper's Service Bureau, 1013 Thirteenth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Q. Why is celery blanched?

You Get Slender If You Count Your Calories

So quickly the pounds pile on if you don't know your calories. You want just a snack, so you have 1-2 cup Welsh rarebit on a slice of toast—400 calories! For dessert you take date pudding. A modest piece with hard sauce is 500 calories. And if you like to nbble nut fudge—in 3 pieces, 300 calories!

But know your calories and you can have tasty snacks, desserts too, even while dieting.

Take 1-2 cup cheese souffle and a slice of toast—only 125 calories. For dessert, 1-2 cup orange jelly with cream—160. And for nibbling, chocolate peppermints—3 of them have only 100.

You see what a difference there is—815 calories—between the 3 fat-making snacks (which add up to 1,200 calories) and the 3 low-calory ones (which have only 385 calories). And if you take only 4,000 calories in excess of bodily needs, you gain a pound!

But if for a while you eat fewer calories than your body requires, you force it to burn up the fat you've been hoarding. No, you don't starve! You have 3 good meals a day with lots of protective foods — vegetables, fruits, eggs, milk, butter.

In no time you are slimmer, more graceful. And you feel years younger! Our 40-page booklet, Change Your Weight for Beauty's Sake, gives 42 low-calory reducing menus based on protective foods. Has calory chart for meal planning, 3-day liquid diet to start your reducing. Menus for gaining, too.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, CHANGE YOUR WEIGHT FOR BEAUTY'S SAKE, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

A Scalloped Yoke

By Lillian Mae.

Play the gracious lady-at-home in this becoming housefrock that's so quick to stitch up. It's Lillian Mae's special for matrons who like to look young and slim. The yoke swings all the way around to the back, where it holds in marvelous action-freedom. In front it forms scallops at either side of the charming square neck, and there are scalloped bands to match on the puffed-sleeve style. The unusual softness through the bustline is released by fullness below the front yokes and darts above the waistline. Don't miss the slim lines of the panelled skirt. For an added gay touch, the entire yoke and the sleeve bands may be in bold contrast. Order Pattern 4326 today!

Pattern 4326 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 1-4 yards 35-inch fabric.

Send 15c in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

"Now is the time to prepare for Spring," says Lillian Mae about her new Spring Pattern Book which is now ready for you to order. It's alive with attractive styles including a youth corner for tots, 'teens and twenties, evening belle frocks. Spring bridal finery, carnival cottons and gay prints. You will even find balanced styles for scale-tipping matrons and charm shop suggestions for forty-pluses. The book is 15 cents but when ordered with a pattern, which is also 15 cents.

All in the Game

- by Jack Troy

Julian Boehm is not an alumnus of Georgia Tech, nor a Rotarian, but he showed the Georgia Tech football squad—and Rotary Club members and their guests—some startling feats of magic, without a football, during the club's annual "Christmas" party for the Jackets.

Before Boehm (a Civitan) took over the proceedings, he explained to the boys that "I have just been appointed the football coach at Agnes Scott."

Then for about 30 minutes, Boehm, whose talents as an amateur magician were unknown to this correspondent and to many Rotarians, no doubt, held the stage.

And let it be said here that the legerdemain of Julian Boehm is a fair match for the legerdemain of the Tech Jackets with a football.

He made cards fall out of handkerchiefs which were folded and held firmly in a player's grasp. Once, Buck Murphy and Earl Wheby were called up to take part and he caused cards to transfer from one player to another. Each held handkerchiefs in front of them as they stood several feet apart and Boehm transferred cards from one kerchief to the other, and never could the naked eye detect any trickery.

Finally, as a climax, he borrowed a buck from a Rotarian and placed it carefully in an envelope. The serial number was jotted down and then a match applied to the envelope.

Boehm said he would burn a corner of the envelope so everyone would know there was no chance to switch envelopes. As he lit the envelope he went on talking and it burned completely up. Magician Boehm apologized for talking so much and said that, after all, he had to do just one more trick.

So he emptied a bowl which held an orange, an apple and a lemon, keeping only the lemon after a young lady visitor had requested the orange and the apple.

Well, sir, Boehm then called a Rotarian to aid him. The lemon was sliced in full view of the audience. And lo, the green object sticking in the lemon was the original dollar bill.

Howard Ector, Tech's quarterback who has been termed a "magician" by national football observers, set back in amazement—as did everyone else. That Boehm is a wizard.

He's a pretty good "wise-cracker," too. Said the wizard of Civitan, "They're going to have a big party when Tech plays Missouri in the Orange Bowl and they'll serve a cake with 'All-America Ison' on it."

The Rotary party, an annual event, was by far the best of any this correspondent has ever attended. It was cleverly put together. And the boys got the biggest kick of all when Magician Boehm removed a pair of silk stockings from popular Buck Murphy's coat. The usual fine presents were distributed at the end.

A STORY ABOUT BUBBER QUIGG.

The boys relate a story about a game this year when Bubber Quigg, a guard, took his position and told the boy opposite him, "You're not coming over this way, big boy!" They say that Paul Sprayberry cautioned him, too.

And so the play was run and the boy opposite Quigg knocked him about five feet. Quigg got up, brushed himself off, spat in his hand, adjusted his helmet, and retorted, "Well, you can't do it again!"

That is typical of the spirit of the current Georgia Tech team, one of the cleverest and at the same time, the most accomplished, in the country.

LADY HAD THE RIGHT IDEA.

I forgot who first related the story—it was Harry Davis, Henry Powell, Bob Ingram or Arthur Harris—but it was one of the finest stories of the Knoxville trip.

It seems this lady had been married right extensively. First she had married a millionaire, next an actor, third a minister, and finally an undertaker.

A friend, curious about it, asked her one day why she had gone at marriage in such a strange manner.

PRESSURE PERFORMANCE.

Two great pressure performances—two years apart—have put Southeastern conference football teams in California's massive saucer of concrete and steel which is called the Rose Bowl.

And, strangely enough, both performances were turned in by sophomores.

There was Johnny Butler's terrific climax run last Saturday against Auburn. He had help at first and then ran on alone to dodge the last defender and score the all-important touchdown.

Two years ago, Heyward (Sandy) Sanford, of Alabama, kicked a field goal late in the fourth quarter to win for the Crimson Tide over the Commodores of Vanderbilt.

It was cold and murky in Dudley field that day. It had been raining. The field was wet, the ball was soaked. Previously Sanford had kicked a field goal to beat Tulane.

Well, Alabama had not been able to maneuver into a desireable spot for a field goal, but it was so late that it was necessary to try anything immediately.

Big Sanford leaped off the bench and shucked his rain jacket as he dashed on the field. As the ball was placed in position at an extreme angle to the goal, back on the 35-yard line, he stood back there and studied the kick for a short time. Meanwhile, he limbered up his kicking leg.

Then there was time in and big Sanford swung his foot and the ball went true to the goal posts. Alabama was in the Rose Bowl on one of the most spectacular performances under pressure in modern day football.

It was the pleasure of this correspondent to see Sanford's kick and also Butler's run. Sanford was not used to kick in the Rose Bowl Alabama got behind against California and there never was a chance for the Tide to try a field goal.

Butler, however, will be much in evidence in the huge saucer . . . Butler and Cafego. And it is not hearsay, but actual knowledge born of seeing, to say that Tennessee will go west as a more representative southern team than was Alabama of 1937, or Duke of 1938. Alabama was loaded with sophomores. Duke had a great defense and comparatively little offense.

Tennessee has two fine teams. Tennessee has both offense and defense. Tennessee has experience, team speed, great blocking. It makes a big differenc.

Ben Brown, fifth-ranking middleweight, and Ken Overlin, who rates a second-ranking, fought to a second draw here last night before a crowd of around 1,500 in the city auditorium. Referee Battling Budd called six rounds even and awarded two rounds each to Brown and Overlin, who was satisfied to get a draw. Kenny LaSalle, one of the nation's best wrestlers, stopped Mario Perez in two rounds.

REFEREE CALLS 6 ROUNDS EVEN, GIVES 2 TO BEN

By JACK TROY.

Ben Brown should never fight Ken Overlin in Miami again—if the reports of Overlin's superiority in their recent meeting there are true.

Brown, fighting in a new style, let Overlin, second-ranking middleweight, come to him more in the City Auditorium ring last night, and when the 10th round rolled around and Referee Battling Budd raised the hands of both fighters, proclaiming a draw, the crowd was pretty much divided in its reaction.

For Brown, fighting a cagey, two-fisted fight in which he counter-punched masterfully, had a lead in the early rounds. He appeared to be the leader after the seventh. And there was not much to choose in the eighth.

Overlin finished as the aggressor, however, and here is where he possibly regained enough lost ground to gain another draw.

PUZZLES OVERLIN.

There is no question that Brown, in changing his style from a strict aggressor to a waiting counter-puncher and then, changing at times to a savage rusher, kept Overlin somewhat puzzled.

Brown missed whizzing rights by inches several times—and each time Overlin was fortunate to be in a position to let them go by.

A slight trickle of blood came from Brown's nose after the eighth, but he came out of the fight uninjured. Overlin was unmarked.

The second straight draw here found Brown fighting his heart out for a decision, but Battling Budd's score card showed six rounds even, two for Brown and two for Overlin.

CLEAR LEADER.

It seemed to this observer that Brown was a clear leader even as far as the eighth round, but of course two fast finishing rounds can make a lot of difference. If Ben had kept the pace of the early rounds he could have won without question.

As a fight, it was better than their first one here. Every round was crammed with action and there was no tendency on the part of either boy to give ground.

Brown proved he is at least a fifth-ranking middleweight, but Overlin still has to prove how he is entitled to be ranked three notches higher.

The preliminaries packed action. Kenny LaSalle, the stylish Frenchman who isn't supposed to be a puncher, polished off one Mario Perez, Cuban from Key West, Fla., in two rounds. Few people believed it, however. Rather they were inclined to presume that Mr. Perez, knowing the going over he was due to get in 10 rounds, simply found an easy way out. LaSalle was the most surprised man in the house when the Cuban tumbled to the floor three times. Perez didn't come up for round three.

WILD BATTLE.

One of the wildest, fiercest battles staged locally in years was the scheduled six-rounder between Carl Symmes, Gainesville, Ga., and Bob Michaels, Atlanta heavyweight. Michaels survived bruising punishment from the 200-pound Symmes to make the Gainesville giant quit the ring after three rounds. Both boys were severely cut about the face.

Jabbin' Foots met his match in Popeye, who came on strong in the last couple of heats to earn what looked like an even break, but Referee Frankie Allen liked Foots.

Tiger Jack Wright, Texas heavyweight, won a hairline verdict over Straight Eight Pryor, of Atlanta. It was an eight-rounder.

Ray Carter Re-elected Field Trial Club Head

By MELVIN PAZOL.

Ray W. Carter was re-elected president of the Atlanta Field Trial Club last night and W. D. (Bill) Klinepeter was re-elected secretary over his own opposition. J. H. Geffken was named vice president, succeeding C. V. Mason, and W. O. Lindsay was elected treasurer, replacing Francis Dwyer, who was placed on the board of directors. Other directors are Jim Wilcox and Dr. R. F. Thomas.

Sentiment of the members being strongly in favor of running two trials a year, it was decided to hold a spring trial, and dates for this event were set for March 9-10, so as to give owners and dogs a brief rest period following the close of the hunting season March 1.

Stakes for the spring event will be puppy, derby, junior all-age and all-age.

To enliven winter meetings it was voted that authorities on care and breeding of dogs be brought in to address the club. A suggestion that members co-operate more closely with other Georgia and southern field trial clubs was approved.

President Carter announced that the first four places in the all-age, junior all-age and derby events of the club's fall trials will be eligible to enter the American quail championships at Sumter, S. C., and reminded members that dogs will be run in two-hour heats. Several of those present at last night's meeting plan to be present at the South Carolina trials, starting December 18.

The Atlanta Field Trial Club, which has a membership of 92 amateur dog handlers, will observe its first anniversary December 19.

AUBURN CAGERS PLAY 16 GAMES

Ralph Jordan's Five Likely To Be Composed of Sophomores.

AUBURN, Ala., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Game schedule for Auburn's basketballers, including 13 Southeastern conference tilts, was announced late today by Coach Ralph Jordan.

Nonleague games include two season openers with Spring Hill in Auburn December 14-15, and another with Howard here January 27. The Plainsmen also will enter the conference tournament in Knoxville early in March.

Prospects are the Plainsmen cagers will be better than average, but the squad lacks experience. The first team likely will be composed largely of sophomores.

The schedule:

December 14-15—Spring Hill in Auburn.
January 5-6—Louisiana State in Baton Rouge.
January 11—Vanderbilt in Nashville.
January 12-13—Sewanee in Sewanee.
January 20—Vanderbilt in Auburn.
January 27—Howard in Auburn.
February 3—Georgia in Auburn.
February 6—Georgia Tech in Atlanta.
February 9—Georgia in Athens.
February 16-17—Sewanee in Auburn.
February 21—Georgia Tech in Auburn.
February 24—Florida in Marianna, Fla.
February 28, March 1-2—Southeastern conference tournament in Knoxville.

EASTERN STARS TO JOIN BLUES

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 11. (AP)—Acceptance of bids by three Eastern stars completed today the 22-member northern squad picked for Montgomery's Blue and Gray gridiron classic December 30.

Mayor W. A. Gunter announced final acceptances from William (Big Bill) Tranavitch, Rutgers fullback, and Carl Tomasello, end, and John Rogalla, back, both of Scranton (Pa.) University.

Gunter said Scranton was undefeated for the 1939 season and acceptances from Tomasello and Rogalla were "most welcome."

Selection of Josh Cody, of Florida, to replace Jess Neely, of Clemson, as a Gray squad coach was announced over the week end as was the selection of Ken Kavanaugh, L. S. U. end; Jack Nix, Mississippi State back, and Frank Ribar, Duke guard, for the southern outfit.

Neely and three Clemson standouts were forced to forego the Blue-Grey encounter because of Clemson's acceptance of a Cotton Bowl bid.

Carl Snavely, of Corneli, and Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern, who coached the Blues to a 7-0 victory a year ago, will be back again with the squad from north of the Mason-Dixon Line.

THREE NEW FOES.

DAVIDSON, N. C., Dec. 11.—(AP) Davidson College placed three new opponents on its 1940 football schedule announced today by Norman Shepard, director of athletics. The games are with Sewanee, October 19; Centre, November 2, and Hampden-Sydney, November 16. All will be played here.

Youngsters To Hold Ping Pong Tourney

The Boys' Department of the Central Y. M. C. A., will hold a city-wide ping-pong tournament for all boys under 12 years of age. The tournament will begin at 10 o'clock Saturday, in the boys' lobby of the "Y."

Singles matches will be played. Three medals will be given for the winners. A gold medal for first place, silver for second, and bronze for third. Any boy under 12 years of age will be eligible to enter the tourney.

All entries are requested to phone their names to W. A. Alsobrook, boys' secretary, by Friday.

Jack Doyle Favors Tech in Orange Bowl

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—As far as Jack Doyle, veteran New York betting commissioner, is concerned, three of the four major football "bowl" games are even-Stephen affairs, and only in the Orange Bowl at Miami is there a favorite.

As he quoted his opening prices, which of course are subject to change, he made Georgia Tech a 7-10 favorite over Missouri, but Southern California-Tennessee in the Rose Bowl, Texas Aggies-Tulane in the Sugar Bowl and Clemson-Boston College in the Cotton Bowl are all "4 to 5 and take your pick."

CHALLEDON GETS 'POLE' POSITION

Bimelech Heads Juveniles, Kayak II Best of 'Seniors' in Poll.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Presenting racing's "royal family" for 1939—"Big Pete" Challedon as king, and "Bimmie" Bimelech as "crown prince."

Their "coronation," together with the selection of Kayak II as champion of the older horses and Now What as "queen" of the 2-year-old fillies became official today with announcement of returns from the balloting of 208 turf writers and experts from all sections of the country, who voted in the turf and sports digest's fourth annual poll.

Settling one of the major racing arguments of the year, the voters named W. L. Brann's Challedon as "horse of the year" by a wide majority over those who thought Colonel E. R. Bradley's undefeated 2-year-old hoss, Bimelech, should get the honor. Of the 208 voters, 156 picked Challenger II's big boy, who took command of the 3-year-olds after Johnstown went bad, and then wound up with a smashing half-length victory over Kayak II in the Pimlico special.

Bimelech, who now figures as the shortest-priced future book favorite in all Kentucky Derby history, polled 36 votes for the year's all-age championship, with Kayak getting 12 and Johnstown four. Just as Challedon was a one-sided winner in the horse-of-the-year balloting, so, also, was there strictly "no contest" in the experts' choice of winner in each division. Here are the year's records of each:

Four-year-olds and up: Kayak II, owned by Charles S. Howard; starts, 9; won, 6; 2nd, 2; 3rd, 1; earned, $161,025.

Two-year-old fillies: Now What, owned by Alfred G. Vanderbilt; starts, 8; won, 5; 2nd, 2; eraned, $36,545.

Challedon ran out of the money only once—in the Massachusetts handicap. He whipped them all in the Preakness, the Arlington classic, in which Johnstown finally gave up the ghost; the Pimlico special and five other stakes. And just to make it official, he galloped to a world record for a mile and three-sixteenths in the Tranter at Keeneland. In addition to his horse-of-the-year crown, he won out by a wide margin in the balloting for 3-year-olds, in which second place went to Johnstown, now retired to stud after winning the Derby and Belmont and $137,895.

Bosch on Southeastern All-Sophomore Eleven

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Southeastern conference teams in the lower bracket dominate the annual all-sophomore team as selected by the publicity directors of the big 13 schools.

Georgia Tech is the only undefeated school to place a man on the honor team.

Vanderbilt, Ole Miss, Mississippi State and Alabama placed two each, while Auburn and Kentucky are represented by one each.

The backfield is composed of Johnny Bosch, Tech; Jimmy Nelson, Alabama; Ermal Allen, Kentucky, and Merle Hapes, Ole Miss.

In the line are ends, Holt Rast, Alabama, and James Samford, Auburn; tackles, Mac Peebles, Vanderbilt, and Homer Jones, Mississippi State; guards, Homer Hazel Jr., Ole Miss, and J. M. Patrick, Mississippi State; center, Bob Gude, of Vanderbilt.

LANGSTON LIONS NEGRO TITLISTS

By The Associated Press.

Oklahoma's powerful Langston University Lions, undefeated and tied once this season, have been rated national negro collegiate football champions.

The Langston team, which finished at the top of the Southwest Athletic conference, piled up 98 points and yielded 26 in games with eight opponents.

Florida A. and M. College, of Tallahassee, last year's national champion, finished as runner-up with seven wins, one tie and two losses.

Virginia State College, of Petersburg, Va., for two years champion of the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association, was ranked third nationally with seven wins, one tie and one defeat. The Trojans, unbeaten since 1937, were turned back 13-7 by Morris Brown College, of Atlanta, Saturday in the first annual Peach Blossom game.

Fred Davis Engaged To Miss Jefferies

CINTRONELLE, Ala., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Engagement of Doris Jeffries to Fred Davis, University of Alabama football players, was announced today by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Jeffries.

Miss Jeffries, granddaughter of the late Dr. W. B. Jeffries, attended the university and has held a business position at Tuscaloosa during the past year.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Dec. 11.—(AP) Howard R. (Dick) Kauffman, former major league righthand pitcher, today lost his left hand as a result of a hunting accident.

Kauffman fell as he trudged through underbrush and his gun discharged. Surgeons at a nearby hospital found his hand so mangled it was necessary to amputate.

Kauffman played baseball with the St. Louis Browns and later managed teams in the Southern Association.

NEWBERRY PUTS 2 ON ALL-S.I.A.A.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 11.—(AP) Tennessee Tech and Newberry College placed two men each on the all-conference team of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association compiled by the Associated Press today from a poll of sports writers and coaches.

Angelo Dominic Collangelo, of Newberry, highest scored in South Carolina for two seasons, is at the quarterback post and his teammate and captain, Paul Debruhl, is at tackle.

Ernie Sheffield, a Ft Pierce, Fla., boy playing a tackle for Ogglethorpe University, was named in the honorable mention list.

New York Entries Win Florida Trials

ORLANDO, Fla., Dec. 11.—(AP) Two New York dogs and one central Florida entry won closing events of 11th annual Florida Field Trials meeting here yesterday.

Mail Rider's Sue, lemon and white pointer bitch, owned by Arnold Hanger, New York, won the open all-age stake. Rider's Grey Mist, white, liver and ticked pointer dog, owned by Lester White, Orlando, won the open derby stake. Frank Cummings, Tift pro, handled both entries.

Georgia Coleman Needs Operation

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.—(AP) Friends of Georgia Coleman, former Olympic diving champion, appealed for funds today to finance an operation which might save her life.

The once-brilliant swimmer, victim of a series of misfortunes, is critically ill at a hospital with a liver complaint. The new illness followed an attack of infantile paralysis against which she had made a long fight, apparently with success.

Physicians said an immediate abdominal operation was necessary. Friends estimated at least $2,000 would be required to cover expenses.

Kimball, Severin '40 N. C. Captains

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Dec. 11. (UP)—Gates Kimball, tackle of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Paul Severin, end, of Natrona, Pa., seniors, today were named co-captains of the 1940 University of North Carolina football team. It was the first time both of the Tarheels' co-leaders have been linesmen.

Cohern Is Chosen Maroon Captain

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Hunter Cohern, junior guard of Starkville, was elected captain of the 1940 Mississippi State College football team at the annual banquet tonight.

Nile Kinnick Named Nation's Top Athlete

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Not since the palmy days of Red Grange has a football player "caught on" throughout the entire sports world like Nile Clarke Kinnick, the likeable "iron man" back of Iowa's surprising Hawkeyes.

Topping off a long list of awards he has won since the season ended, the All-America "60-minute man" today was selected in the Associated Press' ninth annual poll of the nation's sports experts as the No. 1 athlete of all sports for 1939.

He won out over the stiff competition of such seasoned performers as Joe DiMaggio and Joe Louis to give football its first "outstanding athlete" for a year in the Associated Press poll. In the eight previous annual polls, baseball won three times with Pepper Martin, Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean; tennis and track each had one "Mr. Big," with Gene Sarazen in '32, Joe Louis in '35 and Jesse Owens in '36, respectively.

PLEASING PERSONALITY.

Now, along comes a youngster with a pleasing personality and the ability to play 60 minutes of high-clas football in a tough league every Saturday during the fall to bring the honor to the gridiron. Of the 61 experts who voted, 21, including some from every section of the country, picked him at the top of the list; three named him second and 10 had him third. Votes were counted on a basis of thre points for a first-place nomination, two for second and one for third.

On that basis, Kinnick polled 79 points to nose out DiMaggio, the New York Yankees' outfield ace, by the narow margin of eight points in as close a race as the poll has ever seen. DiMaggio was picked first on 11 ballots. Louis who defended his world heavyweight championship with four knockout triumphs during the year, drew five first-place selections and 35 points for third place.

Bucky Walters, pitching workhouse of the National league champion Cincinnati Reds, was picked on five ballots for first place and came in fourth with 28 points. Yet, his hurling mate, Paul Derringer, who was just as important and hard-working in the Red's pennant parade, could do no better than eleventh place, with six points.

GRIDMEN LEAD VOTING.

Headed by Kinnick's apeal to popular fancy, football, as a whole, led all other sports on the voting list. Ten gridmen were nominated on the list, while baseball, the 1938 leader, dropped to second with eight. Along with Kinnick was his coach, Dr. Eddie Anderson, who brought Iowa football out of the doldrums this year, for which the experts named him eighth on the "outstanding athlete" list with 10 points.

The voting:

Player and Sport—	Firsts.	Points.
Nile Kinnick, football	21	79
Joe DiMaggio, baseball	11	71
Joe Louis, boxing	5	35
Bucky Walters, baseball	6	28
Byron Nelson, golf	3	25
Billy Conn, boxing	2	16
Marvin Ward, golf	2	16
Eddie Anderson, football	2	10
Parker Hall, football	2	7
Don Budge, tennis	2	7
Paul Derringer, baseball	1	6
Ted Williams, baseball	1	5
Charley Keller, baseball	—	5
Bob Feller, baseball	—	5
Don Meade, racing	1	4
Monte Pearson, baseball	—	4

Two Points Each—Don Hutson, football; Paul Christman, football; Ken Kavanaugh, football; Ralph Guldahl, golf; Bobby Riggs, tennis; Eddie Shore, hockey.

ROUGH SESSIONS TO BE STARTED AT END OF WEEK

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Tech yesterday opened a new football season as work was begun for the Jackets' Orange Bowl classic against Missouri in Miami January 1.

The Jackets' already small coaching staff was reduced by two members for yesterday's drill, Coach Bill Alexander and Assistant Bobby Dodd being out of the city.

Coach Alex is in South Bend, Ind., and Dodd is in Miami, making hotel and other arrangements for the New Year's Day game.

The Tech varsity, having enjoyed a full week's vacation, went about a light workout full of pep. All cripples are nearly recovered and should be at full strength in another week.

Dressed in their white and orange jersies for the benefit of photographers, the Southeastern co-champions spent most of the afternoon kicking, passing and running signals. Line Coach Mack Tharpe had charge of the boys. The Bee team is also getting back in shape under the direction of Coach Roy McArthur and will be ready to go against the varsity when scrimmage time rolls around again.

Impressive about the squad is the flaming spirit of the players, whom you'd think of as having enough football for one year after such a hard schedule. But they romped through the drill as if it were the first of the season. Such a team just won't be flat against Missouri.

Indeed, the Jackets can't hope to do much good against Paul Christman and company if they are the least bit stale. But coaches and players, themselves, will look after that angle. They all want to win and will play the best game of the season, in all probability.

Tech will continue to work lightly for a couple of days but may get in some rough knocks towards the latter part of the week.

Gardner Is Named Rose Bowl Official

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—(AP) L. G. Cowlan, of San Francisco, a St. Mary's alumnus, will referee the Rose Bowl football game between University of Southern California and University of Tennessee in Pasadena on New Year's Day.

The other officials will be H. W. Sholar, Greensboro, N. C., alumnus of Presbyterian College, umpire; George Gardner, Atlanta, Ga., alumnus of Georgia Tech, head linesman, and William Dunn, Pasadena, alumnus of Michigan State, field judge.

LAMPE QUINTET DEFEATS BUFORD

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 11.—Georgia's quintet defeated Bona Allen, of Buford, here tonight, 58-29, in a practice game.

It was the Bulldogs' initial start of the season. Coach Elmer Lampe played the substitutes half the game. Lanky Dan Kirkland, Columbus boy, led the Bulldogs with 16 points. Mercer Harris, Buford star, tallied 15 points.

Armstrong, Hostak Win Cleveland Bouts

Both Champions Are Victors by Kayos, Al in 1st, Henry in 7th.

By JACK CUDDY.

Blond Hostak, of Seattle, who is recognized as 160-pound king by the National Boxing Association, made an impressive showing in his first fight east of the Rockies by knocking out Eric Seelig, German veteran, in the first round. This bout was slated for 15 rounds.

Armstrong, somewhat recovered from a severe cold, registered a technical knockout over Jimmy Garrison, of Kansas City, in the seventh round. This return brawl had been slated for 10 heats.

Hostak, the "Seattle Savage," kayoed his man in such quick time that experts assembled from many cities for this double-header title show had little time properly to judge his all-round ability. But the 23-year-old knockout artist from the northwest left little doubt in their minds as to his punching prowess as he put Seelig down for the count of nine with a straight right to the chin and then floored him for the full 10-count with a right upercut.

Armstrong, although he knocked out the rugged Garrison who had gone the full 10-round distance in October with Armstrong at Los Angeles, was not as impressive as usual. "Hammering Hank" tore after his man in the first three rounds, and in the third session had Garrison staggering and bleeding from a gash on his right cheek. Then — either Armstrong tired because of the illness that forced him to cancel his scheduled title defense against Lou Ambers at New York on December 1—or he coasted—during the next three sessions.

He set to work in the seventh and floored blood-smeared Jimmy with a left hook to the chin for count of nine. Garrison rose, but a barrage of hooks sent him to the canvas again in such a helpless condition that Referee Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, halted the massacre at 1:19 of the seventh and gave the bull-shouldered Los Angeles negro victory on a technical kayo. Garrison had fought on even terms only in the second round. Challenger Jimmy weighed 140 pounds against Armstrong's 138 3-4.

Dickinson Rates Southern Cal 1st; Aggies Are Next

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Southern California's Trojans were rated the No. 1 football team of the nation today by Frank Dickinson, University of Illinois professor and originator of the ranking system which bears his name.

On a 30-point basis, the Trojans had a point rating of 25.73.

Dickinson placed Texas A. & M. second with 25.43 points; Cornell third, 25.26; Tulane fourth, 23.61, and Tennessee, the Trojans' Rose Bowl opponent, fifth at 22.97. Texas Aggies and Tulane clash in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans.

Notre Dame was rated sixth at 22.59; Michigan seventh, 22.50; Duke eighth, 22.34; Missouri ninth, 22.29; U. C. L. A. tenth, 21.91, and Iowa eleventh, 21.02.

Southern California will receive the Knute Rockne memorial award in recognition of the Dickinson rating. The Trojans were rated the top team also in 1928 and 1931 by Dickinson.

Dickinson, rating football by sections, placed the Pacific coast first, middle west second, southeastern third, east fourth, Big Six fifth, southwest sixth, southern seventh and Missouri valley eighth.

Notre Dame ranked first a year ago although losing one game.

'Gator Assistants Are Reappointed

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Harold Williams and Walter Milligan, assistant football coaches at the University of Florida, were reappointed for another year by the state board of control, Dr. John J. Tigert, president of the university, announced today.

Tigert said the board exercised an option held on the services of the two former Pittsburgh men.

Kilpatrick Heads Touchdown Club

Al Staton was named vice president and Fred Moore was unanimously re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Pup Phillips, one of the officials, reported the Tennessee-Auburn game to the club. He praised the clean play and fighting spirit of both teams.

Pup also lauded Johnny Butler's great run and the play of Rufus Deal for Auburn.

WARD TESTIFIES AT 'FAKE FIGHTS' HEARING TODAY

Thomas, Who Said He Was Forced To Take Dive, Absent.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP)—After conducting a three-hour hearing today on the alleged "fake fights" of Harry Thomas, the Illinois state athletic commission adjourned until tomorrow to hear testimony from Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, which published Thomas' charges.

Thomas charged he was forced to "throw" his fights with Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, and Tony Galento, New Jersey contender. Thomas was conspicuous by his absence from today's meeting.

Only one of the five invited witnesses—Nate Lewis of Chicago, manager of Thomas—appeared. Lewis said he had "some information" to disclose to the commission, but preferred to wait until the return of his counsel from California.

GOVERNOR INSTRUCTS.

Edward T. Breen, first assistant attorney general, conducting the investigation, said Governor Henry Horner had instructed Attorney General John E. Cassidy to institute criminal proceedings if the evidence warrants.

Joseph Triner, chairman of the commission, reported that two registered letters addressed to Thomas, asking him to appear for the hearing, were returned marked "refused." One of the letters had been opened, however, Triner said.

Lee Carroll, of Chicago, a friend of Thomas, identified a published letter which he said Thomas wrote him before the Schmeling fight in which Thomas said he would "lay down," and not to bet on his chances. Thomas wrote he was supposed to lose in the fourth round—" That was the only condition under which I could get the match."

SWORN STATEMENT.

A sworn statement from William L. "Kid" McPartland, judge of the Schmeling-Thomas fight in New New, December 13, 1937, to the effect that Thomas had fought his best, was read into the record, along with a statement from Thomas O'Keefe, referee of the Galento-Thomas bout in Philadelphia, December 14, 1938. O'Keefe described the bout as a "terrible thing to look at, from a spectator's viewpoint" but believed it was on the square.

Mike Jacobs, of New York, promoter of the Schmeling-Thomas match; Herman "Muggsy" Taylor, of Philadelphia, who staged the Galento-Thomas bout and Joe Jacobs, manager of both Schmeling and Galento, failed to appear, although invited by the commission along with the seconds of the fighters involved.

Vol Tackle Reveals Marriage of 3 Years

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Boyd Clay, tackle on the University of Tennessee Vols championship football team, has been married for three years, he and his bride, revealed toinght just two days after the close of the regular season.

Clay and Miss Blaine Ketcham, old Old Hichory, Tenn., were wed three years ago at Franklin, Ky., they told friends at a dinner party.

Clay's marriage will not keep him from playing in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day, Professor N. W. Dougherty, chairman of the atheltic council, said.

Clay is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Clay, of Old Hickory. His bride is librarian at the same town.

They met four years ago when Clay was a senior at Old Hickory High school and captain of the football team, and Miss Ketcham was a sophomore.

North Fulton Plays Russell High Tonight

North Fulton basketball teams play the Russell High teams tonight at 7:30 at the North Fulton court.

The North Fulton boys will be handicapped if Donald Benton and Gene Broadwell can't play. Both have been sick. The team has practiced 12 days.

In the games with Monroe last week, G. W. Whitlow led the North Fulton boys' scoring and Jo Ann Dorman the girls.

SHOFFNER SIGNS.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Milburn Shoffner, veteran left-hander who joined the National league champion Reds late in the season on waivers from Boston, signed a one-year contract today. He was the sixth player to do so. Terms were not disclosed.

14 Southern Writers Will Accompany Vols

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Sports writers from the state's four major cities, Atlanta and Birmingham, will be invited to accompany Tennessee's Volunteers to the Rose Bowl, Major Bob Neyland said today.

Newspapers to be represented are the Knoxville Journal, Knoxville News-Sentinel, Chattanooga Times, Chattanooga News, Chattanooga Free Press, Nashville Tennessean, Nashville Banner, Memphis Commercial, Memphis Press-Scimitar, Atlanta Journal, Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta Georgian, Birmingham News and Birmingham Age-Herald.

BOB CROSBY—Some years ago Bob Crosby's string bass player, Bob Haggart, heard a negro congregation sing a haunting spiritual—so haunting that Haggart wrote, "I'm Prayin' Humble," his impression of the chant.

Now "I'm Prayin' Humble" has become one of the Dixieland Band's most popular recordings, and will be the featured selection on the program to be heard over WGST at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Program will include:
"Darn That Dream."
"I'd Climb the Highest Mountain."
"Oh Johnny Oh."
"You're Driving Me Crazy."
"You're the Top."
"Eccentric."

JOHNNY PRESENTS — "Yodeling Jive," a Swiss version of the current hit, "Jumpin' Jive," will be featured by Johnny Green's orchestra and the Swing Fourteen during the "Johnny Presents" broadcast to be heard over WSB at 7 o'clock tonight.

The concluding installment of "Smuggler's Bond" will be the dramatic presentation.

Program will include:
"Little Street in Singapore."
"Stop, It's Wonderful."
"Blue Danube" Waltz.
"My Prayer."

TUESDAY PARTY — George Raft, filmdom's smoothest "touch guy," will trade wisecracks with Walter O'Keefe on the final "Tuesday Night Party" program to be heard over WGST at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Raft is very much alive when it comes to repartee and O'Keefe is waiting to test his own wit.

KISS AFTER MIDNIGHT

When Faith Gets Home She Finds Gretchen Packing for Trip to Paris

By Margaret Gorman Nichols.

SYNOPSIS.

Faith Gardner, orphaned as a child, moves from the New England village where she is a stenographer in a factory when her aunt dies. Lonely, jobless sometimes, after two years she and Gretchen Cole furnish a small apartment. Faith then is secretary in the firm of which Walter Edmonds is vice president. Gretchen, who left an Ohio town after a shattered romance, is a stylist in a big store. At a party given by Edmonds and his wife, Astrid, Faith meets Franz Braggionier, musician and composer whom Astrid loved. Even before Faith meets Carl Edmonds, Walter's brother, a famous aviator, she is in love with him. Walter's 16-year-old daughter, Sue, runs away from school again, meets Faith, likes her and at Sue's suggestion Walter makes her his secretary. He asks her to win Sue's confidence and suggests how to handle her. Faith despairs when Carl says he will never marry because of his roving, hazardous life. Gretchen is made Paris buyer and refuses to Marry Philip Turner, who quits his hard drinking when he met her. Young Michael Britton wants Sue to elope, she refuses, then is desperate when he says he will never see her again. Carl kisses Faith for the first time but she knows her love is hopeless. Walter sends her to Florida with Sue, who meets Michael there. Walter flies to Miami Beach. He rebukes himself for his feeling toward Faith. Astrid writes that she is arranging a divorce, not mentioning Franz. Carl appears as Faith and Sue are dining with Walter, takes her aside and berates her for taking Walter from Astrid. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

Feeling the sudden change from the Florida climate to New York in February, she put on a red wool frock and began to unpack thinking of Walter taking Sue back to the luxurious apartment which Astrid had made a perfect background for herself, of father and daughter dining together, only the two of them, the absence of the third member felt chiefly by Walter who knew now that he and Sue would dine alone together for a long time to come. Had Carl returned? Where was Carl?

She had come into the living room to turn on the lamps when Gretchen came in.

"Faith! I didn't know . . ."

Faith went to her and kissed her. "I had such short notice I couldn't let you know."

"Darling, I'm so glad you came back today! Because I'm sailing tomorrow! Short notice for me, too. Did you see my trunk in the middle of the floor? I haven't had time to pack. Sailing tomorrof at 5 o'clock and now you can see me off . . ."

Much of Fretchen's gaiety was false, Faith knew. Nor would she, Faith, thrust her painful problems upon her friend. Gretchen had waited, hoped and worked too long for a trip to Paris to have her enthusiasm dulled by the plot into which she, Faith, had innocently walked months ago. And for ambition, for a trip to Paris, Gretchen had not only waited and hoped and worked—she had sacrificed Philip Turner and sent him away.

They went to a nearby restaurant for dinner, and Gretchen talked excitedly. Every one at the store had been lovely and innumerable letters of introduction assured her of a delightful time in Paris and London. She had shopped. Hadn't Faith seen her new clothes? She had excellent accommodations on the ship and Katharine Strothers had said she knew some people who were sailing and that they would be pleasant company. What did Faith wish her to bring her for a gift? Faith said something truly Parisian.

When they had finished dinner and were lingering for Gretchen to finish her cigaret, Gretchen looked up and her expression was no longer excited but worried.

"Faith, if only I knew one thing—that Philip didn't begin to drink again. He had so much to live down and was doing it beautifully until . . ."

"Oh, Faith, I'm not . . ."

"But you are." Carl's words were her own now. "You've been calling it by a different word, the wrong word, denying it . . ."

Gretchen lowered her head and her voice. "Yes, I have been miserable. I didn't realize until he was gone. And last week at the store I made a silly mistake, lost my temper, nearly lost my precious job. And it didn't matter very much. Katharine finally straightened it out for me. She's been marvelous. You weren't here and so I told her that the next best thing to what Philip had offered was my job. Now my job is all I have. My precious job, he called it."

She looked up and her mouth curved into a sad smile. "One good career girl goes up in smoke, Faith. Love failed me once and this time I have failed love."

"It isn't too late, Gretchen." Not too late for Gretchen and Philip but too late for Carl and her . . .

"I don't know where he is. I doubt if he is even in New York. I put a barrier of ice between us. And I have the most terrifying ideas that wake me up at night. Philip drunk somewhere, without money, a job, ill. And I'm going to Paris." She picked up her purse and gloves. "Faith, I'd like so much to change the decision I made in Ohio some years ago. I do want children for comfort in my old age. I want a house with a garden and a man to come home to me at night. I want Philip . . . I've got to pack. You're unpacking and I'm packing. And I've talked so much about myself I haven't asked you about Florida and the Edmonds or told you what a lovely sunburn you have. Or asked about Carl . . ."

Walter telephoned in the morning and accepted her reluctant refusal to have luncheon with him. Gretchen was sailing at 5 o'clock, she told him, and Katharine Strothers was having a luncheon for her. He said he would call the following day.

Katharine's luncheon for Gretchen, to which she had invited 12 of her friends, went off smoothly. Gretchen, guest of honor, wearing a black wool suit and a chic little black hat and orchids, capably played the role of the excited and fortunate young woman going to Paris. Only Faith, wearing black, too, sensed her strain and the false gaiety with which she received the felicitations of her friends.

When the luncheon was over only Faith and the attractive, dark-haired, middle-aged Katharine remained. They returned to the apartment for Gretchen's baggage and took a taxi to the ship. A cloudy morning became a rainy afternoon.

At the pier the scene was one of happy confusion — stewards hurrying to and fro, passengers, well-wishers, the inevitable inebriate and dowager with a dog and hilarious wedding party with an embarrassed bride and groom.

Flowers and telegrams had already arrived in Gretchen's spacious cabin. Gretchen said that she would read them later.

Katharine smiled. "I'm going out to see if my friends are here. I'll meet you and Faith near the gangplank. Now don't let us get lost from each other, please."

When she left, Gretchen said, "Flowers from the people at the store and telegrams from my family, I suppose. Nothing from Philip. He doesn't even know I'm going. Funny, isn't it, that of all men only one is important. You know that."

Faith thought, "Yes, I know. For me only Carl who walked out of a lovely garden in Florida and out of my life, believing a hideous lie . . ." She said, "Shall we look for Katharine now? She wants you to meet her friends . . ."

Christmas Money for Juvenile Artists

Girls!

The boys are catching up with you in the Kris Kringle coloring contest. All the winners for last Thursday's cartoon were girls, but since that time, the boys apparently have accepted the challenge, for two out of the three winners for both Friday and Saturday were boys.

It's a nip-and tuck race, and lots of fun, so, if you haven't entered the contest yet, do so now. The best three entries each day receive one dollar.

Here are the rules:

1.—The contest is open to any boy or girl of grammar school age.

2.—Color the drawing of the Kris Kringle Kids which appear accompanying these rules. You may use either crayons or water colors and may decorate the cartoon in any manner you choose.

3.—After you have colored the drawing, print your name, age, address and the school you attend on a sheet of paper and attach it to the cartoon with paste.

4.—Mail or deliver today's drawing to the Contest Editor, Atlanta Constitution, before midnight tonight.

5.—The Constitution will award three prizes a day for 12 days for the best entries. Originality and neatness will be considered in the judging. Names of today's winners will be published Wednesday.

So Says

Mr. McCollum—

"He who is determined has half his work done."

MOST any job or problem will yield to a man who has made up his mind. So if scattered obligations have been bothering you, decide today that you're going to clean them up. Of course, it'll take cash to work out a consolidation. But you can get $36 to $1,000 from me and repay it over 1 or 2 years at Low interest. See me at the Seaboard Loan Corp. 12 and 14 Pryor St., S. DIES IS REBUKED BY ONE OF PROBERS

Hit for Releasing Report Against Certain Consumer Organizations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Representative Dies, Democrat, Texas, was sharply rebuked today by a member of his committee on un-American activities for releasing a report branding certain consumer organizations as Communists "transmission belts."

In a statement, Representative Voorhis, Democrat, California, protested that the whole procedure of accepting and releasing the report was "undemocratic."

Dies, acting as a subcommittee, was the only committeeman present when, without any hearings, the report was submitted by J. B. Matthews, committee researcher, and put into the record.

Voorhis, who did not mention Dies by name, said the subcommittee was "suddenly appointed" and the report released to the press over the week end "before other members even knew such a report was in process of preparation."

UNFAIRNESS CHARGED TO DIES COMMITTEE

AMHERST, Mass., Dec. 11.—(AP) Listing of the Consumers Union of the United States as "formed by Communists" was described today as "indicative of the unfairness of the Dies committee" by Professor Colston E. Warne, of Amherst College, president of the organization.

DAILY WORKER AIDE IS INDICTED

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(UP)—Harry Gannes, foreign editor and columnist of the Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist party, has been indicted on charges of falsifying a passport application, it was disclosed today.

Fourth member of the party to be accused in the government's fraudulent passport investigation, Gannes is to be arraigned tomorrow. Two others—Earl Browder, Communist general secretary, and Robert William Wiener, party financial secretary—have been indicted, and Nicholas Dozenberg, described as American Communist No. 2, has been arrested at Bend, Ore., on a federal bench warrant issued here.

DIES COMMITTEEMAN NAMES ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(UP)—Prominent New Dealers, including President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, were named today by Representative J. Parnell Thomas, New Jersey Republican and member of the Dies committee, as having "welcomed" conventions of so-called "Communist front" organizations during the past three years.

Thomas told the allied patriotic societies that the groups had been described by Earl Browder, Communist party general secretary, as "Communist fronts."

DOUBLE TROUBLE.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Merl H. Golay, 23, with his leg in a cast because of a motorcycle accident injury, went out to drive his racing automobile. The cast became entangled in the mechanism and the car crashed into a fence. Golay suffered a fractured skull and several broken ribs.

Former Red Leader Arraigned in Oregon

At the Courthouse

N. T. Eason yesterday drew a 12 months' sentence for stealing an old iron wash pot belonging to John Moore, 317 Georgia avenue. Judge John S. McClelland, of the criminal court of Fulton county classified wash pot stealing as "about the lowest trick I know of." Eason agreed.

John B. Ennis, printing plant superintendent, yesterday launched a legal fight for $50,000 damages in Fulton county superior court for the death of his wife. The suit alleges an ambulance belonging to Roswell Stores, Inc., of Roswell, Ga., struck a car driven by Mrs. Ennis at the intersection of West Peachtree and Fourteenth streets. The trial opened before Judge John D. Humphries with Attorneys Augustus Roan and Young H. Fraser representing Ennis and Attorney Edgar Neely presenting the defense.

County taxpayers yesterday began responding to an appeal by Troy G. Chastain, chairman of the finance committee of the Fulton county commission, to pay 1939 taxes before books close December 19. Early payment will avert the necessity of issuing fi. fas. and avoid a 1940 crisis in county finances.

Joe Fleming, chief engineer of Atlanta police radio station WPDY, will attend the conference Wednesday between members of the Fulton county commission and city council's police committee regarding equipment of from 20 to 25 county police cars with two-way radios. Officials of the two governments are attempting to devise some contractual relationship to centralize police radio activities and make them more efficient.

Jimmie Maddox, Chester Perryman and C. F. Dunn, former employes of Fulton County Industrial Farms for white youths, Hapeville, are slated to face a Fulton county superior court on morals charges this morning.

LAGUARDIA SETS TREE ON HIS 57TH BIRTHDAY

As usual he worked.

One of the things he did was to plant one of the first three trees set out in the Sixth avenue beautification program. As the mayor drove a shovel into a heap of loam and threw it against the roots of the 20-foot oriental plane tree, he remarked:

"LaGuardia for President," shouted a bystander.

LaGuardia grinned, but said nothing.

WINTER DESCENDS ON EASTERN STATES

Snow Whips New York; South Has Normal Temperature.

By The Associated Press.

Northeastern states had their first hearty bout with winter yesterday but the rest of the country generally experienced unseasonable or just normal weather.

Snow whipped through the streets of New York City on strong winds, but melted quickly. The temperature was dropping with a low of 20 degrees predicted for the night.
